FRANCO DEAD

Times News Services

MADRID — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's dictator for 36 years and Europe's longest surviving head of state, died early this morning after a month-long battle against heart failure, intestinal bleeding and paralysis, pulmonary infections, edema and other grave illnesses.

He was two weeks away from his 83rd birthday.

When the Republican government began purges of the military in 1936, the slow but thorough Franco rose to the top of the rebellion.

His death carries heavy symbolism as well as immediate importance for Spain and Europe. He was a living reminder of one of Europe's darkest moments in the 20th century, the rise of dictators espousing fascism in the 1930s.

Supported by Hitler and Mussolini, Franco began his reign in the bloodshed of the 1936-39 Spanish Civil War, which served as a testing ground for the Second World War at a cost of one million Spanish lives and enormous destruction.

10% of Mailmen Back on the Job

TORONTO (CP) — A total of about 200 inside postal workers reported for work Thursday for the 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. shifts at postal Terminal A here, a spokesman for the post office said.

About 150 workers showed up Wednesday for the same shifts and a total of 241 full-time and part-time workers reported during that 24-hour period for Wednesday morning to Thursday morning.

Across the country, 2,200 inside postal workers—10 per cent of the work force—worked Thursday, Ed Roworth, a public relations officer for the post office, said.

He said the post office is still "a long way off from being 25-per-cent operational."

Wednesday, he said that Terminal A, which normally handles more than seven million pieces of mail daily, must be at least 25-per-cent operational before any mail could start moving.

No mail now is moving in or out, he said.

Roworth said Thursday that workers who returned were getting threatening phone calls.

"A very active telephone campaign is going on," he said, adding that workers were receiving "threats of physical harm and threats of suspension from the union" if they continued to defy picket lines.

He said that in Toronto and surrounding area 879 inside postal employees had returned to their jobs despite the national strike of members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

Families on welfare in B.C., meanwhile, will receive an advance from the provincial government equal to the family allowance money they would normally receive from Ottawa this month.

Federal authorities have announced that November family allowance cheques will not be delivered due to the postal strike and at the beginning of December families will receive double cheques for both months.

Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said today the delay would place a severe hardship on families already on social assistance so the province has decided to advance them the money.

The province will advance $20 per child for the approximately 50,000 children in social assistance families for a total advance of about $1 million.

The money will be deducted from future social assistance cheques some time in the new year, said Levi.

October family allowance cheques were sent out.

More than 240 Victoria letter carriers, meanwhile, completed thier appointed rounds today, delivering more than 30,000 federal pension cheques to recipients.

The one-day respite from the nation-wide postal strike, now in its fifth week, went off without a hitch, post office spokesman Buz Sawyer said.

The striking Canadian Union of Postal Workers withdrew its picket lines from post offices on Vancouver Island today so members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada could enter the offices to pick up the cheques for delivery.

Sawyer said the letter carries received a great reception from the general public and everyone greeted them with "big smiles."

The cheques were sorted by CUPW members who earlier

1-in-4 Youngsters 'Moderate Drinkers'

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — About one of every four 13-year-olds in the United States can be considered a "moderate" drinker while only 38 per cent never drink alcoholic beverages at all, according to a Research Triangle Institute study.

Results of the study, based on a survey of classrooms across the country last year, were released Wednesday.

The study said about half the students reported that they had been drunk within the past year and the ranks of teetotaling teen-agers dwindled steadily with age from a high of 38 per cent at age 13 to less than half that by age 17.

A moderate drinker is defined as one who has one or two drinks in a week's time and occasionally gets intoxicated.

Thirst Comes First

OTTAWA (CP) — If delegates at a four-day conference on alcoholism here found themselves a little thirsty, they could nip just outside the conference room to a portable bar thoughtfully provided by the hotel.

"We didn't ask specifically for the bar," said Jim Simon, of the Addiction Research Foundation, one of the conference's sponsors.

"The hotel offered it to us and we accepted it.

"I think it is interesting to note that originally two bars were set up, but they have received so little use that the hotel closed one down."

The conference, on occupational alcoholism and drug abuse, also was sponsored by Humber College of Toronto.

BIG CARS HIT

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec motorists will have to pay as much as $30 more to drive large cars when they purchase their 1976 automobile licence plates.

TORY DEMAND

18-Month Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Wednesday night drew the line against the federal anti-inflation program, threatening to fight it in Parliament unless it is shortened to an 18-month time limit.

In a speech to the National Press Club, he said he had gained support for his position at a meeting of the 95-member Progressive Conservative caucus earlier in the day.

Only two days earlier, the Conservatives joined the Liberals to crush a New Democratic Party motion condemning the controls by vote of 183 to 19. Stanfield had said in debate on the NDP motion that it was "premature and clearly destructive."

Wednesday, he said his party's decision to oppose the legislation in its current form may weaken public acceptance of any pay and price restraints.

But he said the Conservatives cannot allow "patriotic consideration" to stand in the way of what he regards as a principle — the fear that "open-ended controls will lead to permanent controls."

If the government pushes through its proposed three-year program, the Conservatives will stop short of supporting any defiance of the selected wage and price controls with guides by organized labor, he said.

The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), representing two million workers, has promised to fight the controls program in every legal way possible. But the CLC has never specified whether it will defy the controls by strikes and lock-outs if they become law.

In Vancouver the Seafarers' International Union of Canada declared Wednesday that it will fight to prevent application of federal wage controls in the west coast towboat industry.

SIU president Roman Gralewicz said the union had been offered an "insulting package" and has no alternative but to break off negotiations and seek a strike vote.

An industry spokesman, however, said he fully expects that talks will continue.

UNFAMILIAR but especially welcome sight for Victoria's senior citizens today was their friendly neighborhood postman, delivering goodies in the form of federal old-age pension cheques. Smiles for postman Steve Henry from Alva and Phyllis Wetherell, 519 William Street, were a typical reception as letter carriers—laid off because of the strike—were recalled today for the special job. Bennett Grabs Thunder Of B.C. Rail Proposal

PROWSE

MERRITT (CP) — Social Credit leader Bill Bennett beat Premier Barrett to the punch Wednesday by releasing details of a major federal government rail offer for northwestern British Columbia.

In Dawson Creek, Barrett said Wednesday he would make a major announcement today on coal development in northern British Columbia.

The premier said that during a visit to Terrace he will have an announcement of good news for all of northern B.C. concerning coal development.

Barrett also said the announcement will also include the role of the B.C. Railway in the development.

Bennett said the premier cannot sign the multi-million-dollar agreement because it would be unethical, now that an election has been called.

When Barrett was asked late Wednesday about Bennett's revelation, Barrett would say only that he would make the announcement today in Terrace as originally planned. He would make no further comment.

Bennett had an eight-page telegram from federal Transport Minister Otto Lang stamped "Received Oct. 29, Premier's Office." The provincial election was declared four days later.

The telegram says that under a joint Canadian National-British Columbia Railway, revenue-and-construction sharing program, the federal government is prepared to give the B.C. government $117.5 million over two years.

The federal government is seeking a final understanding with the province on an Ashcroft-to-Clinton line connecting BCR and CNR and an intensified development of the Port of Prince Rupert.

The telegram from the transport minister, proposes that the CNR line which now runs 456 miles from Prince George to Prince Rupert on the coast, connect with the BCR through a new line north of Terrace, which lies between the two cities.

The BCR now runs from Prince George to Fort St. James with an extension running from Fort St. James to Dease Lake.

About three-quarters of the extension has been completed and an additional stretch of 125 miles from Dease Lake to Lower Post at the Yukon border is to be constructed.

The telegram says Ottawa wants four changes made in an agreement on new northern rail lines reached with the B.C. government in 1973.

Why Save The Bacon?

OTTAWA (CP) — The trouble is that no ones seems to give a damn about it. Liberal Senator J. Harper Prowse of Alberta is talking about the seven pounds of peameal back bacon on his desk.

What bothers the senator is the price. He bought the bacon last Saturday in an Ottawa Loblaws store in three different packages. One was $1.99 a pound, another was $2.38 and the third was $3.35.

The senator has run into one brick wall after another as he tried to draw attention to the fact that a store was selling packages of bacon at three different prices.

Wednesday, as a last-ditch effort, he even carried it to the Liberal caucus.

But there was little reaction to his appeal for action.

"I don't understand why people are not more concerned about this," he said in a later interview. "Perhaps this explains why we're in the trouble we are in — nobody gives a damn."

$54,000 FOR PEPIN

OTTAWA (CP)—Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the federal anti-inflation board, gets paid $1,038 a week, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Vice-chairman Beryl Plumptre gets $770 a week and the five, part-time regional members of the board are paid $200 a day when they meet.

Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet announced the pay rates. When the board was set up a month ago. Pepin said he could not be precise about his salary and as late as last week board officials told a reporter they did not know how much their boss was being paid.

Ouellet said Pepin, at an annual rate of $54,000, is receiving less than the top scale for his rank. He has been designated the pay of a second-level deputy minister or DM2 category, with a salary range between $47,500 and $60,500 a year.

Egg Board Faces Challenge

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Anti-Inflation Board will challenge the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) to justify a recent one-cent-a-dozen increase in egg prices.

Beryl Plumptre, vice-chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, told the Commons finance committee yesterday that although "farm gate" prices are exempt from the government's controls program, she believes the egg price increase should have to be justified.

Plumptre said the egg price increase had been authorized at a time when feed prices were declining by $9 a ton.

Such a decline in production costs should have resulted in a two-cent-a-dozen decline in egg prices, she stated.

Feed accounts for 50 per cent of egg production costs, she told the committee. And if the cost of purchasing production quotas in not included, feed amounts to 70 per cent of the egg production costs.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said today the anti-inflation board is welcome to "monitor anything it wants" but it will have no authority over CEMA.

The minister made the statement at a meeting of the Commons finance committee, which began clause-by-clause consideration of the legislation establishing the government's anti-inflation program.

Canadian Index Dips

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Canadian index of industrial production dropped almost one per cent in seasonally adjusted terms during the third quarter of this year, Statistics Canada announced Wednesday. New USC Fund Drive Launched

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, is in town until Saturday to launch the Victoria portion of the annual USC fund raising campaign.

She will speak at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Friday at St. John's Ambulance Society auditorium, 941 Pandora.

The topic will be "Entering the Fourth Decade of USC Service Around the Globe".

A special appeal will be made for volunteers.

Dr. Hitschmanova founded the USC in 1945, with headquarters in her own small apartment on Cooper Street in Ottawa, where she filled the roles of secretary, receipt writer and fund-raiser.

Spurred on by the knowledge that thousands of children, mutilated by bombs or scarred by memories, needed aid in war-savaged Europe, Dr. Hitschmanova appealed to Canadians for help.

In February of 1946 the UBC was officially recognized as a non-denominational, charitable organization without church affiliation.

By the end of 1946, Dr. Hitschmanova was able to report $46,000 raised in cash and $134,000 worth of clothing and other gifts shipped to France and Czechoslovakia. Through the USC Foster Parent Scheme Canadians were already supporting 127 children's convalescent homes in Czechoslovakia.

Today more than 21,000 children have passed through USC-sponsored homes in 11 countries and the agency has raised a total of over $13 million in funds and over $12 million in gifts in-kind.

This year's USC campaign objective has been set at $2,600,000 in funds and gifts, before the Dec. 31 deadline. The goal for the Greater Victoria area is $25,000, $3,600 more than was raised in this area last year.

USC contributions can be made at all Banks of Nova Scotia on Vancouver Island.

Portugal Gov't Goes on Strike

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The Portuguese Government of Prime Minister Pinheiro De Azevedo walked off the job without resigning today in a showdown protest against rising anarchy in the streets of Lisbon. It said it would not return until the military restores law and order.

The Communists and other radical groups responded with calls for a general strike and thousands flocked to the presidential palace to demand the cabinet's replacement with a Soviet-style "peoples government."

Teen-age toughs wandered through the city threatening shopkeepers with violence unless they shut their doors, corrugated iron shutters clanged down in the face of the warnings in some neighborhoods, but business activity in the city centre remained normal.

As the left-wing crowds swelled outside the president's Belem Palace, President Francisco Da Costa Gomes moved his headquarters to the greater security of suburban Sao Joao De Barra fortress where he met with Azevedo, then presided over an emergency meeting of the military's powerful 19-man Revolutionary Council.

The Socialist-dominated cabinet made its unprecedented move to suspend governmental activity in a predawn statement that said the ministers would not return to their offices until Costa Gomes and the military could guarantee their personal safety and authority in the streets.

Politicians said the cabinet's main target was Gen. Otelo Saraiva De Carvalho, Portugal's flamboyant military security chief who has refused demands for his resignation. They said the ministers also wanted the replacement of army chief Gen. Carlos Fabiao.

Argentine CANDU Deal Near

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Wednesday the government has loaned $15 million to Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. to help it honor a contract being renegotiated with Argentina.

"We feel we are very close to a successful conclusion of the safeguards agreement," Gillespie said in a Commons reply to former New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas.

"I would hope that it would be signed before the end of the year."

The loan enables AECL to enter preliminary stages of producing the Argentina reactor.

The 1973 sale agreement did not foresee rising reactor costs which, Douglas said, might mean a loss to Canada of up to $160 million on the sale.

LOAN PROTECTED

Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday protested the B.C. Development Corp.'s granting of a $25,000 loan to Nu-Way Cleaners of Victoria, a non-union firm.

The loan, announced Wednesday morning by provincial Industrial Development Minister Gary Lauk, was to help expand the firm's business.

Council delegates were read a letter from the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union local at Canadian Linen on North Park, the only union industrial cleaning firm in town, saying the employees of Canadian Linen have been asked to forgo a 1976 wage increase, or the owners would close the plant.

The RWDSU members asked that labor council affiliates try to ensure that uniforms they wore on the job came from Canadian Linen, not from the non-union firms which included White Dove, Individual Dry Cleaners, Commercial Linen and Nu-Way.

Delegates voted to write to Lauk and protest the loan to Nu-Way.

Man Shot By Police Hiding In House

LADYSMITH — One of three Ladysmith men who broke into a house on High Street Wednesday night was shot in the leg by police carrying out a stake-out inside the building.

Craig was taken to Ladysmith Hospital, treated and transferred this morning to the police lockup.

Craig, Randy Arvid Wilson, and Bradley David Lockhart all 23, appeared in Ladysmith provincial court today charged with breaking and entering with intent. Other charges are expected to be laid in connection with the incident.

The spokesman said Craig and Lockhart were to have appeared in court today charged with common assault arising out of another incident in Ladysmith earlier Wednesday involving a woman in her eary 20s.

He said two officers went to the woman's house early Wednesday evening in anticipation of someone trying to break into the house.

The officers were hiding in a bedroom when at about 7:55 p.m. one man forced open the back door and two others entered through the unlocked front door.

The lights were on in the house and the woman inside at the time, the spokesman said.

Following the scuffle and shooting, one of the men fled out the front door, got into a car and drove off. He turned himself in to police this morning, the spokesman said.

Chief Justice Nathan Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court said today the special seminar for newly appointed federal judges will be held at Universtiy of Victoria, hosted by the faculty of law March 31-April 2.

The seminar will be sponsored by the Canadian Judicial Council.

Nemetz said some 24 supreme and county court judges from all provinces west of Quebec will likely attend.

"We are particularly delighted that so many distinguished Canadian jurists will be here at a time when our first year classes are in session."

Triple Surprise For Newlyweds

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto couple was married Saturday, and became the proud parents of triplets 24 horus later.

"What a wedding present," said the bride, Alma Collins, 19. "How can you beat it?"

Hotel Fire Sends Pair To Hospital

Two men were taken to hospital after a fire broke out in a room on the second floor of the Chandler Hotel, 723 Yates, shortly before 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Sanor Borza, 51, and Charles Plumridge, 43, were treated at Victoria General Hospital for smoke inhalation. Plumridge was released and Borza kept overnight for observation.

The fire, which originated in a mattress, was confined to a room occupied by Borza. Plumridge was overcome as he and the hotel manager tried to extinguish the fire.

crossed the picket line to return to work, in defiance of the union's national executive.

In Victoria, six CUPW members were on the job Wednesday and today, an increase of two people. The two returned to sorting duties on the afternoon shift Wednesday.

In Canada's main post office, Terminal A in Toronto, 75 CUPW members are back on the job. The CBC reported earlier that 150 members had broken union ranks to return. The total CUPW membership in Toronto is just less than 5,000

The 18,000 letter carriers across the country, laid off shortly after the inside workers went on strike, will be called in again either later this month or next month for another one-day delivery of federal family allowance cheques.

The Victoria labor council Wednesday pledged full support for the striking CUPW members and urged all affiliates, about 80 unions in Victoria, to donate to the union's defence fund.

The first payment of strike benefits since the strike began is scheduled for Friday, but it is not known how much the payments will be.

Clare Walsh, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver local of the letter carriers union of Canada, said the carriers there are not happy about the one-day callback.

"This hit-and-miss day of work is bordering on irresponsibility," he said. "About 1,000 of us have already lost 10 days' pay and this move could jeopardize our unemployment insurance for a day's pay.

"It's not what I would call a good move."

In Vancouver, support for a petition demanding that striking postal workers be allowed a secret ballot on the last government wage offer has not grown "as fast as we would have liked," dissident spokeman Bert Watch said Wednesday.

After quickly collecting 70 signatures by Tuesday, Watch said the number had just nudged over the 100 mark, despite widespread publicity and the establishment of three signing locations.

He blamed a threat by union leaders Frank Walden to suspend anyone from the union involved in organizing the petition as one reason for the disappointing response.

Man Guilty On Heroin Charge

Judge William Ostler remanded him to Dec. 3 for sentencing.

1. The public responds enthusiastically.
2. The competition tries to copy the idea.

Hundreds of Victorians took advantage of our Prime 55 plan within the first few days it was offered. And it keeps on growing.

Because public acceptance is the measure of an innovative idea. So is imitation. Which they say is the sincerest form of flattery.

Well, we're flattered. But we invite you to compare Prime 55 with the plans other financial institutions offer people 55 and over.

Compare the 10 5/8% interest rates we give on Guaranteed Investment Certificates.

And the free Chequing/Savings account which earns 8.4% calculated and paid monthly.

And the many other no-cost financial services.

Then, if you haven't taken advantage of Prime 55 already, start considering our great idea.

Glenlyon to Celebrate Completion of Building

Glenlyon School, 1701 Beach Drive, has completed its five-year development plan and will mark the completion with a grand opening at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Since 1970, when the boys preparatory school became a non-profit society, three new wings have been added: a math wing and lunchroom; facilities for primary grades 1 to 3, and additonal art and classrooms.

Headmaster Hamish Simpson said the buildings were erected to provide first-class academic facilities for the boys.

"So many parents today are seeking private schools which keep academic and disciplinary standards at their highest and offer smaller classes," Simpson said.

He said the maximum number of students per class is 24. The school runs from grades 1 to 10 and enrolment is 212. There are no boarders.

The school retains corporal punishment and Simpson says it is used as parents might use it at home.

"Our discipline is tight and students know that they are expected to achieve certain standards and must do so in order to stay in the school," he said.

The school also offers a compulsory academic program and fine arts and public speaking courses.

"I maintain that boys who work the hardest and play the hardest are the happiest . . . I don't apologize that we make demands on our boys because they rise to this challenge and know where they stand."

The school was founded in 1932 by Simpson's father — James Ian Simpson — who named the school after Glen Lyon in his native Scotland.

Glenlyon was first housed in rented premises on St. David Street. The present site was bought in 1935. The main house on the property was the home of F. M. Rattenbury, who designed the Legislative Buildings and Empress Hotel.

Whither Habitat?

Allegedly, there is going to be a United Nations conference on human settlements, called Habitat, in Vancouver next year. Reportedly, it will be hosted by Canada and has the backing of the federal government. Supposedly, Ottawa is ready for the expected 5,000 or so delegates and journalists from more than 140 UN member countries and thousands more representing non-governmental organizations. We've been told, in full-page ads paid for by the taxpayer: "The most crucial problem of the next century may be urban overcrowding ..., unless we act now, realistically and wisely, to plan the communities of the future. Read what Canada is doing about it."

But look closely, and about all Ottawa seems to have done so far is run a series of newspaper ads, appoint troubleshooter Dr. Hugh Keenleyside to pull things together and devise a cute little logo for the conference — a little stick man trapped within a triangle inside a circle. He seems to be yelling for help.

Others have noted that Ottawa's attitude to Habitat seems to be one of benign neglect, hoping that the thing will go away quietly. Habitat is now under its third director, and the cabinet member responsible for it, Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson, is so reluctant about the whole exercise he had to be talked out of walking away from it by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Danson apparently drafted a letter resigning the job of Canada's Habitat host, over the UN's repugnant resolution equating Zionism with racism, but the minister tore it up after his tete a tete with the PM and parliament's unanimous condemnation of the resolution.

The minister's conscience may have been salved, but what about the conference? If Jewish groups start again to put pressure on Ottawa to cancel it, as they did earlier this year in the case of the much smaller UN conference on crime prevention scheduled for Toronto, will the cabinet cave in at the last minute again?

The stakes have been raised. No longer is it a UN conference on Canadian soil in which the terrorist Palestine Liberation Organization will participate; it is a conference sponsored by a United Nations which formally and deliberately condemned Israel's right to exist.

Whether to co-operate with a UN so radically changed from its founding days, with such blatant anti-semitism, and allow Habitat to be held in Canada is a question worthy of debate. But Ottawa seems to be edging away from any direct discussion. It doesn't want to confront the matter. External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen says Canada might pull out of a 1977 UN conference and the UN's racism decade — but what about Habitat?

If the conference is to go ahead with the federal government's blessing, then it deserves the full support of an administration determined to make it a success. (Isn't housing one of Canada's — and the world's — most urgent needs?) If, as the government maintains, Canada is committed to Habitat then the conference deserves more than the lukewarm support at the top and sloppy organization it has received so far.

One Who Knows

America has a surfeit of cynicism, according to ex-president Richard M. Nixon. "We are so cynical, so disbelieving — it may take the shock of an invasion, in Korea or in Thailand. If American lives are threatened, we may regain our sense of belief in our country and our need for strength."

A fine old cynic himself, can Nixon really be surprised at the extent of cynicism — about government, foreign affairs, big business, almost everything — in North America? As one who contributed mightily during six years in the White House to the development of that cynicism, through evasions, lies, sabotage of the justice system, wiretapping, covert operations against foreign governments, can he really be surprised at his legacy?

If he can't acknowledge that heavy debt, if he expects several years of American history to be excised, then he hasn't seen real cynicism yet.

NORMAN GIDNEY

Showdown at the McPherson

● Is ex-mayor Peter Pollen washed up as a vote-getter in Victoria, after he was so decisively beaten by Sam Bawlf and Ian Rendle for the Victoria nomination? How do you explain Pollen's poor showing — just 77 votes on the first ballot, little more than twice that in voting for the second seat, out of a total of 500 voters?

Before the balloting began in the McPherson theatre, it was expected that Pollen would walk away with a nomination. What happened?

It was a combination of events in recent weeks which did Pollen in. If he deliberately set out to lose, he probably couldn't have done a better job. Going out of his way to attack the incumbent MLA, Newell Morrison, in his own inimitable shoot-from-the-lip style, as a man who "has been most inadequate and has done virtually nothing for the city" didn't help.

Emphatically denying on Nov. 7 that he would be a candidate, then waiting until the day before the nomination meeting to declare his true intentions stuck in some people's craws. Even Socreds draw the line somewhere. Announcing less than two weeks before (as Bawlf did) is enlightened statesmanship, doing it the day before is grubby opportunism. Oddly enough, the fact that Pollen didn't qualify (Bawlf did by 17 days) to be a candidate under the spirit, if not the letter, of the 30-day rule in the Socred constitution wasn't a factor.

Quiet Worker

Virtually being called a liar by Conservative leader Scott Wallace, whose sincerity and honesty is conceded even by the Socreds whom the good doctor detests with a passion, was not helpful to Pollen's chances either. He came out of all the speculation making Hamlet look decisive by comparison.

Morrison's swan song at the nominating convention was another knock at Pollen. Although he didn't mention the mayor by name, everyone knew who he was talking about. "I have always quietly gone about doing my job and have never sought publicity. I do not believe in building my house by destroying my neighbors. And I never sold Chevrolets by knocking Fords."

Pollen delivered an odd speech to the nominating meeting. He was by far the best speaker there, with a strong rapport with his audience. But the substance of what he said was an odd mixture.

First, he snuggled up to the party patriarch W. A. C. Bennett, telling a little joke on himself about the Oak Bay by-election "away back in the old days" of 1968 when Pollen was the Socred candidate (and lost 7,892 to 4,678). Bennett Sr. called him to his small apartment on Satellite Avenue behind the Oak Bay Beach Hotel for a cup of tea. "The brickbats are flying," Bennett told Pollen. "But let me tell you, they never shoot at a dead duck."

The rest of Pollen's brief nomination speech was a proud — some might say conceited, almost megalomanic — recounting of his accomplishments as mayor. It could have been a civic election speech he never used. He apologized for not doing more for Social Credit in the years since the byelection, "but I was working with 927 employees rebuilding a city.

IAN RENDLE
. . . Socred nominee in Victoria

"I place my candidacy before you not because of my ambition or vainglory but because of the work we have to do." "Dangerous oil tank farms" must be removed. Victoria needs a transportation system. For the work ahead Socreds needed "more than rhetoric, more than sloganeering."

"Who can best serve you?" he asked the Socred delegates. "With all modesty but sincere conviction, the man who with his eight colleagues has delivered to you one of the finest urban environments in Canada." There, Socreds, you rejected a superman.

● Sam Bawlf didn't hide his talents under a basket either, though his speech was wooden and his jokes were flat. (Sample: "To me profit is not a four-letter word. Loss is." "Can anyone tell me why the government is in the chicken processing business? It hasn't brought us cheaper chicken. Maybe they're working on laying a bigger egg.")

A leaflet his supporters handed out at the meeting laid it on thickly. "Sam Bawlf is one of the strongest candidates ever to stand for nomination in Victoria . . . is a young man completely in tune with today . . . strong . . . relevant . . . known across Canada for his tremendous impact in the city of Victoria. His work in bringing about the rebirth of Old Town and in safeguarding our heritage indicates a wisdom beyond his years." Might ex-city planner Rod Clack and even Pollen himself get a little credit, Sam? Another superman.

● Ian Rendle, the man who will be Bawlf's running mate, is 43 and from another generation. (Bawlf is just 31.) Rendle, now vice-president of Gardner Agencies Ltd., a local insurance company, has been running hard for more than six months for the nomination. He claimed he's already knocked on 1,000 doors in the city.

Too Smooth

He came across in a patronizing speech as just a bit too smooth and unctuous, stamped from the Dale Carnegie mold. "Integrity and accountability" is his slogan. Self-described in his campaign literature as "an honest, intelligent, hard-working family man . . . (with) high ethical standards," Rendle seemed to have half the younger members of Central Baptist Church, where he has been Sunday school superintendent for five years, outside the McPherson with signs and boxes of buttons and leaflets. They weren't allowed inside the auditorium because of fire regulations. Rendle asked the help of Almighty God and the assembled Socreds and closed with an oblique reference to the NDP — a quotation from Proverbs about the people mourning when the wicked are in power, but rejoicing when the righteous are restored.

● But the man who really impressed the crowd was someone whose name wasn't entered — Robert Bonner, an old pro from the good old pre-1972 days. "This government is unpeeling promises like an artichoke, a new leaf a day," he said. "Never in the affairs of public government have so many been taxed so much by so few." Vintage Social Credit.

MAURICE WESTERN

Over-Selling Controls Plan?

OTTAWA — The prime minister was criticized, during the consensus exercise earlier this year, for his apparent willingness to leave to others, especially to John Turner, public exposition of the government's case. That reproach cannot be levelled now for Trudeau has campaigned almost with election fervor for public support of the controls program.

Such has been the change in the style of leadership that the prime minister now says of the earlier period: "Nobody was in charge." That cevrtainly was the burden of the criticism. It may fairly be asked, however, if Trudeau, with his new conviction, is not rather weakening his advocacy by over-sell.

Trudeau suggested in Halifax recently that if his wage and price controls program is not a success, democracy may have failed in Canada. This is going very far. If the report is correct, the warning could well provoke an incredulous reaction.

The view that controls are necessary is now very widely held. But the present program is certainly not the only one which might be invoked. Since we can only speculate on the future, we cannot even be sure that it is the government's last word. It is, to say the least of it, fortunate that no such warning was issued in the course of the consensus exercise when "nobody was in charge."

Astounding Statements

There can be no denying the dangers of inflation. Trudeau's general case for restraint is very strong. But democracy in this country is also fairly rugged. It did, after all, survive the disastrous decade of the 1930s and we have not yet had another experience to match that.

There have been other examples of dramatic over-simplifications. One of them is so extraordinary that it can only be attributed to an error in the prime minister's office, which supplies transcripts to the parliamentary press gallery. In the course of an interview with Bruce Garvey, Trudeau complained that the government's attempts at economies were ill received by the public. He cited the example of the Veterans Land Act. The text has him saying:

"Well, 30 years after a program was brought in and 30 years after the need for it has disappeared, we're going to cut it back. Well, hell, the whole roof fell in . . ."

Anyone would deduce from this passage that the prime minister believed need for the VLA disappeared in 1945 — a startling revelation, even in these times.

In the same interview, however, the prime minister defended the great growth of government ober the past 20 years. There is no reason here to suspect the accuracy of his transcript.

"You know," he said, "it was a fast-growth of government over the past 20 of living doubled — more than doubled — in real terms, in the past 25 years, and it couldn't have happened if we'd had conservative small-c governments or had been very cautious in expanding the monetary supply, very cautious in increasing the demands for public and private goods by our generaous welfare scheme, generous to the old-age and retired, generous to those with large families and so on."

We know, of course, what happened with the governments which we had over that period. Increasingly, they were big-S, big spending governments. But how can anyone say categorically what would, or would not, have happened with the small-c or small-l governments, which we did not have? Even ministers, in their more sober moments, have been known to admit that governments do not do everything for us, that some credit for national achievements has to be conceded to the productive forces of the country.

Ernest Manning's government in Alberta, despite its Social Credit label, was generally credited with small-c conservative policies. At the least, they did not reduce the province to utter ruin. Oil, of course, was a great asset but other provinces also had assets, whether in exploitable resources or industrial concentrations, and there was a generally favorable international environment.

It seems to me that Trudeau has involved himself in a chicken and egg argument. Which came first? Did the GNP respond to ever-bigger government or were the ministers enabled to build an ever-bigger structure of government because they could rely on the booming GNP?

The interesting fact is that the Pearson administration at the outset was very cautious. Although the Liberals came in with an ambitious program, the then prime minister insisted that it was a program for a full parliament, not to be implemented immediately lest it over-burden the economy. Only later, as the country became more prosperous, did the government cast restraint to the winds.

It is puzzling, in light of the prime minister's argument, that in this small-l period, there was less unemployment and much less inflation than we now endure under big-S government. Family allowances and welfare payments were also less but it cannot be overlooked that recent government generosity has been defended as a necessary response to the inflation that ministers were unable to control.

Changed Mentality?

Trudeau's own record rather parallels that of Pearson. He did not come into office as an advocate of big government. Indeed there was a freeze in 1968. He thought spending on welfare was about right and opposed further universal programs. This attitude, however, did not last very long. Within a short time the new government was breaking all records in the acceleration of public expenditures.

Free and easy spending is no longer tolerable. "We're forcing ourselves," says the prime minister, "to change the mentality." It is now the task of the government, through economy, to curb rising expectations. But it may not be helpful, may simply confuse people, to defend the past by over-simplifications. "I don't think we should be too apologetic for having created the mentality that created the jobs."

In the present circumstances the association of the big spending mentality with jobs seems distinctly unfortunate. It is essential that the prime minister, as leader of the government, should defend the new program. But over-sell is not the most persuasive defence. Trudeau can do better.

Utter Hypocrisy

I should like to congratulate you on your editorial, Ignorance of Ethics (Nov. 7).

The tragedy, as I see it in today's society, is the complete lack of ethics in all factions of our society. Even Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to have said that he could see nothing wrong in the actions of Senator Louis Giguere and this, in my view, constitutes the tragedy of our times. Senator Giguere, a "backroom boy" and a fund raiser for the Liberal Party, apparently can do no wrong and he is assured of a political plum as a senator until he reaches the age of 75. Of course, the same applies to the recent appointment of Jack Austin to the senate. This man will receive almost one million dollars from the Canadian taxpayer if he lives to retirement age. It is indeed a very distressing situation but apparently is accepted by the docile Canadian taxpayer as a way of life.

Of course, the case of Claude Wagner is equally wrong and the fact that similar funds were raised for several good Liberals does not make his case right. However apparently Claude Wagner cannot exist on his parliamentary salary of $34,600 — almost a third of its tax-free — when countless thousands of Canadians and many of Wagner's own constituents live on a mere fraction of his salary.

However, as long as the Canadian voter and taxpayer continues to accept this way of life I can see little for the future. We Canadians have a free democracy and so we must accept blame for the actions of our elected members. It amazes me to hear the prime minister speak of restraint and equal sacrifice by all Canadians. What utter hypocrisy. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 20, 1915

There is no fraud so evergreen as "the Spanish prisoner." It has all the evidence of perpetual youth. The latest attempt at soliciting funds from unsuspecting individuals was in Victoria. A Victorian received a letter from Spain, purportedly from a prisoner in a Spanish dungeon who asks aid. In return he will pay one-third of his fortune, usually set at $250,000 or thereabouts (the details of its location are in his baggage, which was seized by the authorities) if the recipient will provide protection to his motherless daughter of 15. The letter is always written in impeccable English, in violet ink and angular handwriting.

Inflation: Fight It or Forget It

By GEOFFREY STEVENS
The Globe and Mail

The momentum seems to have gone out of the government's crusade to sell wage and price controls. The prime minister is winding down his schedule of public appearances and most of the other ministers seem to have retreated to doing whatever it is they normally do when they are not being unleashed to apprehend a state of inflation in the land.

It's as though the government, having demonstrated a short burst of leadership in October, has fallen back, exhausted. And the Commons is preoccupied with getting away for Christmas. Why, if this war on inflation is for real, are MPs thinking about holidays?

Over at the Anti-Inflation Board, disorganization vies with complacency. It takes the better part of a week to get through to someone for simple answers to a few simple questions. Sorry, no one here knows anything about that, better try another number. No, sorry, they're all out to lunch. Lunch? Did the Iron Duke break for luncheon during the Battle of Waterloo? Did the Germans slip out for schnapps during the Battle of Britain?

The government seems to have forgotten about appointing the third member of the Board. And who is the Administrator to be? Doesn't anyone know, or care? The Board is mute on prices and circumspect on wages. It holds stubbornly to the view that it can't be expected to do anything until the legislation passes. Garbage. Wouldn't the Board be doing a public service if it could stir itself to take a look at, say, the teachers' strike in metro Toronto and give an advance opinion: "Whoa. Those salary figures are away out of line. We warn you that if you persist, you will be rolled back as soon as Parliament gives us the power"? But no. No one, you see, has any power just yet. An excuse for inaction, nothing more.

Inaction on inflation, but not on empire-building. Last week's supplementary estimates give offence. Why does the Anti-Inflation Board need $4,863,000 between now and March 31? Aren't all but 10 of its current 175 employees on loan from federal departments? True, but, you see, once the legislation passes, they will all become employees of the Board and, naturally, they'll have to be replaced in their departments. Why? Why? Why?

Worse than the $2.6-million for salaries is the $1 million to mount a campaign to advertise wage and price controls. Advertising is the time-honoured panacea. Look how advertising solved the energy crisis. Well, this campaign isn't necessary. Trot out the big boys and use the free enterprise — television news, front pages, radio hot-line shows, speeches to public meetings. Stick hand-lettered signs in the windows of every Information Canada shop — Wage and Price Control Details Inside. It wouldn't cost a dime, and perhaps that's why the government won't do it.

The government can't expect us to enlist in its on-again-off-again war if it keeps insulting our intelligence. The Anti-Inflation Board doesn't need $4.9-million; it doesn't need $1-million. Cut out the advertising, insist none of the employees be replaced in their old departments. Go further. Why not eliminate all government advertising for the duration of the war? Stop fiddling around with holding the growth of the civil service to 1.5 per cent. Freeze it. Show you are serious about restraint by staging public executions of a few spending programs.

Ground the fleet of executive jets and let cabinet ministers get around like the rest of us, by bus if necessary. Don't give parliamentarians their cost-of-living raise on the first of the year. Hand them a 10 per cent pay cut instead. They can afford it and the example could work wonders in the country.

If we're going to fight a war, let's fight it properly. Otherwise, let's forget it.

Old Stuffing In New Shirts

By CRISTOPHER DAFOE
The Sun

The taxi driver who keeps me up to date on what is really going on in this provincial election campaign (behind every successful professional opinion - giver stands a taxi driver with his flag down) insists that there are, in fact, two Social Credit parties, the one superimposed upon the other.

The Social Credit party on the bottom, the "old" party led into the wilderness of defeat by Bill Bennett's dad, is gradually becoming, I am told, no more than a vague memory. Up front, however, we have the "new" Social Credit party led by Bill himself, a smart, young, go-ahead party with new faces, new ideas, nice new suits and a smoother, better-groomed and generally more up-to-date image with which to dazzle and convince the voters.

Fred, who drives on the night shift and has run up a grand total of 10 demerit points during two years on the job, told me last week that the "new" Social Credit party is best represented by newly - a c t i v a t e d, swinging youngsters like Gerry Strongman, 39, and Stephen Rogers, 33.

Strongman is a close friend of Peter Hyndman and recently graduated to Social Credit from the Conservatives. He lives on the North Shore but drives to South Vancouver every day where he is big in Color Your World Paint. Rogers, a junior member of the noted sugar and syrup family, flies airplanes professionally and dabbles in small business. He was head-boy at St. George's in 1960.

They are, if you will, the new surface on the old picture, the glossy new colors applied over the old, fading pigments. A new, blue wash over an old cloudy sky.

Art collectors may be familiar with the term "pentimento", a phenomenon in which color on an over-painted surface fades and becomes transparent, revealing the old picture underneath. There is every indication that — Fred's assertions notwithstanding — t h e heartbreak and horror of pentimento has p r e m a t u r e l y struck the "new" Social Credit party. Here and there old familiar faces are burning through the glossy new paint, old embarrassments are returning to haunt the moulders of-the new "it-all - came-out-in-the-wash" image. The "old" party and the "new" party, in fact, give every indication of being one and the same.

Take, for example, an incident that took place at John Oliver School Sunday afternoon. Rogers and Strongman (or Strongman and Rogers), running as a matched set (love me, love my colleague), took the dual nomination for South Vancouver away from Agnes Kripps, regarded by many as the figure-head on the Social Credit battle ship, and Ira Monson, a Social Credit warhorse in the area since the days when W. A. C. Bennett first got the scent of victory. (Let us all pause and p i n c h ourselves. A g n e s Kripps? Ousted? Can it be?)

On the surface, Fred seems to be correct. The "new", hand - picked - by - Bill Social Credit seems to be coming into its own. The painter and the pilot, heralds of a new era, have triumphed. Agnes is back in the kitchen. Ira is left with his memories.

But wait! Has anything really changed? Is it a new millennium or have Agnes and Ira simply passed the old torch on to younger, more trendy versions of themselves?

On Sunday afternoon, as a matter of fact, the four candidates proved to be as alike as a pocket-full of pennies. Everyone stressed the importance of putting the business mentality back into power in Victoria. There seemed to be general agreement that red socialism is wicked, if not downright evil. Deep love of this great, wonderful province was expressed by all. Ira Monson wanted to "unravel the socialist web", but he certainly wasn't the only one. G e r r y Strongman declared himself an advocate of "business freedom." The others were clearly of one mind on that question. Stephen Rogers wants to c a s t out evil in Victoria.

In the end, I suspect, it was simply a question of who had been able to squeeze the most supporters into the limited confines of John Oliver School.

The shirts may be bright and of the latest cut, but the stuffing inside has an old, familiar smell to it.

Mexico's Landless Peasants Under the Gun

By MARLISE SIMONS
Washington Post

MEXICO CITY—One morning last week, 200 armed men — land - owners and h i r e d gunmen — arrived in trucks and tractors at Tlapacoyan, a village close to the Mexican gulf coast. They demanded the return of "their" land, now taken over by some 80 peasant families assigned by a Sept. 6 presidential resolution.

The families, who had pleaded for the land since 1929, refused to move. Within an hour the land-owners and their men had smashed the peasants' rickety new huts with the tractors and shot 14 peasants, killing six of them.

Shot in the Back

Seven days earlier, state police opened fire to force other peasants off plots they had invaded at El Chaparral in the northern state of Sonora. The police, who had a judge's order to clear the land, left six peasants dead and 14 seriously injured. As eyewitnesses tell it, some of the dead had been shot in the back after surrendering.

Two months ago, six peasants were killed in an office in Huejutla in central Mexico. They were gunned down by land-owners while s e e k i n g titles to land they claimed.

Even last week, as government, opposition and press alike were loudly deploring the violence and chaos in the countryside, more land invasions by landless peasants occurred in the states of Sonora, Colina, Culiacan and Tamalipas. In Chihuahua, police used tear gas and clubs to move invaders, while at Zacatepec, near Cuernavaca, h u n d r e d s of sugarcane-growers occupied a sugar mill and demanded replacement of the "corrupt administrators."

Agricultural experts here blame the turmoil on what they call decades of haphazard political solutions to agricultural problems. Mexico's 1910 revolution, fought in the name of the peasants, was motivated by land-ownership rather than by clear ideology. It was followed by one of the most far-reaching land reforms on this continent.

Yet the shape given to the land reform is seen as the main culprit for the low production and continuing misery in the Mexican countryside. Although successive governments carved up large holdings, about half the beneficiaries never received proper title. In many cases this prevented them from getting credit and led to endless fights with bureaucracy and neighbors that have frequently continued to this day, as illustrated by the Tlapacoyan killings.

Reports of bloodshed in the countryside do not usually surprise or shock Mexicans. After all, as one of the country's prominent columnists, Gaston Garcia Cantu, argued: "In our country, as in the rest of Latin America, we have been assassinating peasants for centuries."

Yet as social unrest is growing in this country, so are armed confrontations, and the demands and repercussions appear increasingly bitter.

Blame Government

Following the recent killings, Sonora's Gov. Armando Biebrich was forced to resign and the state police chief landed in jail. Peasant organizations started to ask for military protection, despite the irony, as one peasant leader put it, "that the army itself is often used to repress the peasants."

The land-owners, in turn, seemed increasingly determined to defend their property and to take direct action if necessary. They have publicly blamed the government for "agitating the peasantry" and defied its efforts to distribute more land among the poor.

Beneath the killings, the anger and the growing split between Mexico's haves and have-nots lies what a leading newspaper here described as "the vast and hidden iceberg of Mexico's agrarian crisis."

The "ejido" system — land owned by the nation but given to peasants to use — was created as a protection against renewed concentration of land in the hands of a few. Mexico now counts about 23,000 ejidos, comprising more than half the agricultural land. Yet 34 per cent of the ejidos are reported as not providing sufficient employment or income for the families that work them. Lack of credit, poor irrigation techniques and bad access roads have forced many peasants to rent, illegally sell or abandon their land. Illegal large landholdings have formed again, often with the protection of government officials. Private enterprise — modern, mechanized, irrigated and creditworthy — is now responsible for the greater part of Mexico's food production. Rather than exporting, Mexico lately has been forced to import staple foods.

Migrate to Cities

At present, Mexico has almost twice as many landless peasants as before the 1910 revolution, and their pressures on insufficient land continue. Many migrate to the cities, adding to the vast urban unemployment. Others work as underpaid day laborers here or illegally in the United States. Leftist guerrilla groups have inevitably found their greatest support in the rural areas.

The current administration has drawn much attention to the "time bomb" in the countryside, but critics claim that the fundamental problems are not being tackled.

In the last five years, public investments in the country have quadrupled.

Government projects are designed to make ejidos into economic units by truly collectivizing them. A new credit law aims at financing not only agricultural activities of the poor but also transportation and sales of the produce, thereby eliminating traditional manipulations of middlemen and money lenders.

Corrupt System

Yet pessimists here are increasingly heard to say that even the best-intentioned measures have little chance while the country maintains its inefficient and corrupt bureaucracy and political system in which popular organizations have no real influence.

Such corruption was underlined last week when Sen. Victor Manzanilla charged that at a government credit bank in Yucatan $40,000 a week "lands in the pockets of bank employees." These funds, he said, were nominally allotted to owners of ejidos who are dead or who no longer live in the state.

The Umpires of Chic

russell baker

Not long ago, a New York woman I know awoke one morning and discovered her eyebrows were out. I don't mean they had stepped out for a drink before breakfast. Even in New York, eyebrows aren't doing that sort of thing yet.

What had happened was that this woman's eyebrows had been called out by an umpire of fashion just as definitely as a base runner given the thumb in a close call at home plate. In this case, the umpire was a journal called W which calls balls, strikes and failed slides in the game of high-income chic.

My acquaintance's eyebrows were not the only anatomical accessories that got the thumb that morning. Dina Merrill's hair ("too fixed"), Kay Thompson's fingernails ("too long and too pale"), Carol Channing's eyes ("overlashed") and Cheray Duchin's mouth ("too pale") were also waved out.

As in baseball, an umpire's call is always subject to appeal to an assistant umpire, meaning in this case that the women involved can always turn to Vogue for reconsideration. As in baseball, the appeal is rarely granted, which means they will probably be safer getting out of those old eyebrows, hair, fingernails, eyes and mouths and slipping into something that will pass muster fast with W.

New York is filled with umpires like this who can settle your hash to the city's complete satisfaction with a whimsical wave of the thumb. Clive Barnes of The New York Times umpires the theatre. The New York Review of Books and Commentary umpire liberal intellectual orthodoxy. New York Magazine umpires middle-brow chic. Ms. Magazine umpires feminism. The New York Times Book Review umpires publishing. A restaurant owner known only but universally as Elaine umpires social status. The list goes on.

The odd thing about the New York umpiring system is the players' willing submission to the umpires' calls. In most cases, the umpires' authority rests on pure gall, which is to say a confident assumption that the players will abide by their decisions and that any who don't will be hooted out of the park.

Barnes, reviewing theatre for The Times, is an exception, since he has some power to make a play prosper or suffer in the marketplace, but in most of the umpired sports the only thing at stake is ego.

If your game is high-income chic, and the umpire calls your eyebrows or fingernails out, there is no loss at the box office, but the damage to the ego can be acute. Suppose you panic and go to Elaine's to take a reading on your status barometer.

If Elaine seats you immediately at a front table—happiness! If she keeps you waiting at the bar, then hides you in the backroom, it's not just three strikes. You may very well sense that the ball game is over. Suicide? Or a hollow cry of "Wait till next year"?

The quality of the umpiring is often whimsical and tyrannical, which means that it takes a certain courage to play at these games. It is far easier to sit on the sidelines and jeer at the players' pretensions than it is to enter the arena.

I can illustrate by personal example. I happen to know the umpires at W. Now and then, they let me sit by and watch as they work, waving these nostrils in, those nostrils out, sending this woman's teeth to the showers, letting that woman's kneecaps take an extra base.

★ ★ ★

After work one evening, one of them noticed my cowlick and called it to the attention of the crew. They wanted to declare my cowlick in.

"With that cowlick," they said, "you could go places in this town. You could be in."

It was a terrifying possibility. Headwaiters being polite. Interviews in the leading barber publications. Jealous stares from men left herded at the bar because they could not get their hair to stand on end, while I was being bowed to the best tables.

It would have been a glorious run for a while, but I lacked the courage to dot it, and the W umpires were kind enough not to insist. I knew that eventually I would wake one morning and discover my cowlick was out, just as out as Dina Merrill's hair ("too fixed"), and I knew I lacked the grit to take the blow and fight back.

As the old-timers say, it doesn't matter whether you're in or out, but how you refuse to quit playing the game, since that's what keeps the umpires eating.

Next: Hypermarkets, Bankers Told

VANCOUVER (CP)) — Discount department stores are in the weakest position in Canadian retailing, D. J. Tiggert, professor of marketing at the University of Toronto, told a seminar held by the Institute of Canadian Bankers Wednesday.

Tiggert said the trend in retailing was towards three possible types of outlets — very small specialty stores, very large specialty stores or hypermarkets — extremely large supermarkets.

More than 80 bank managers from throughout B.C. scribbled notes as he outlined his predictions as to what type of stores would succeed and which were likely to go to the wall in the coming years.

Tiggert gave a glimpse of what may be coming when he spoke of the hypermarkets now operating in Europe.

"These hypermarkets have only one strategy on location — a site within 20 minutes drive of at least 200,000 people," he said. "You then build a simple store of at least 300,000 square feet and provide parking for at least 10,000 cars.

"Food goods coming into the store are packed in bins on wooden pallets and the prices of the goods are premarked by the manufacturer. There is no need for any employee to go messing about with the goods.

"When the bin is empty, a new one is put in its place and the old one collapses and it taken back to the manufacturer.

"The low handling costs mean that the hypermarkets can set prices at levels 20 per cent below those of existing outlets," Tiggert said. He said the one hypermarket in Canada, in Montreal, was not having spectacular success because its prices were around regular price levels.

He said the volume of sales a square foot of space in the hypermarkets was about $500 a year. This compared with the best Vancouver figures of around $127 a square foot for one of the big department store chains and about $30 a square foot for some of the discount department stores.

Tiggert also warned the bankers to take a careful look at existing mortgages they might have on shopping centres and to be careful when assessing shopping centre proposals put to them.

He believes some shopping centres in established areas could shortly be running into difficulties because of lack of populaion growth.

He predicted what might happen when a large sized specialty shop moved into an area.

"If, for instance, a store specializing in paint and wallpaper moves into an area, you can guarantee that any other independent paint stores or hardware stores carrying paint will be in difficulty within 12 months. The big stores can sell paint at prices 20 per cent below the independent, and it is just a matter of time."

He said most fast-food stores are in trouble.

UNION LEADERS' DEMANDS 'WISHFUL THINKING, GREED'

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Reed Paper Ltd. said today many industries in Canada are dealing with union leaders "whose demands are based more on wishful thinking—or greed, pure and simple—than on realism."

"Some union leaders are blithely ignoring whatever economics they might have learned," R. W. Billingsley told a seminar on Canada's competitive position in world markets sponsored by the Conference Board in Canada.

"They seem to expect that companies can pay whatever is asked, without any possible long-term injury. And they seem to have forgotten that workers have a real stake in the health and profitability of Canada's industry—through the new jobs that industry creates, and through participation in the pension funds which are invested in the debt and equity securities of Canadian companies."

He accused some national unions of showing scant respect for such basic democratic principles as the secret ballot.

"If there is any hopeful sign, it is that some union members are showing less inclination to be 'led' by their officials."

Mr. Billingsley said because Canada lacks a large domestic market it must export profitably. But the demands placed on industry by labor make it increasingly difficult for Canadian businesses to deliver goods at reasonable prices with reasonable profits.

Canadian industry in general has had lower productivity than United States industry, he said. But he added that in the forest industry wages in Canada are already 20 per cent higher than those in the U.S.

Mr. Billingsley criticized governments for the "extremely high" wage settlements reached with civil servants. He said they set a pattern that other labor union leaders find irresistible and result in higher taxes.

The present system of unemployment insurance also is adding significantly to the cost of labor in Canada, Mr. Billingsley said.

"I know of many companies which find they train new employees just long enough to begin getting some return—and then find that those employees qualify for unemployment insurance benefits, and leave."

He said the government's wage and price control program will have little detrimental effect on the economy because it will not work.

He suggested a flat wage-price freeze perhaps for 90 days would have been the best way to implement the program.

Rags, Riches in Seconds On Commodities Hot Line

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Hot line" commodities is the newest game being played on Howe Street, the centre of stock market activity here.

It's a game for traders several cuts above your average penny stock speculator, where fickle traders move so quickly that fools could be wiped out in seconds.

At the "hot line" house, a client can know within two minutes of placing his order just how he's doing. That compares with 10 to 15 minutes for orders placed by wire.

International Futures Ltd. was established last June by three traders who left the commodity sections of national brokerage houses here to cater to fast-action futures freaks. The partners are John Ramsey, who is president, Bruce James and Graham Dallimore.

Their hopes are based on speed. A little speaker on their trading desk never shuts up and sounds like solemn voices on a police radio—orders being placed — speaking over the roar of a sports crowd-trading floor in action.

To reach the trading floor in Chicago, the trader picks up his phone and orders over his "hot line" which has a number of U.S. offices plugged into it as well as the Vancouver operation.

The circuit is that of the Peavey company, a 100-year-old United States firm with which International Futures is affiliated. It's a handy system to have both before and after the market, too, because with dozens of traders on the line there's an on-going stream of gossip about what's happening in the business.

There's also no excuse for forgetting a client's order — their television screens can be preset to flash an alert signal when something is happening concerning a client's position.

Authorities in B.C. are surprised about the sudden interest in "hot lines" because commodities trading isn't regulated here. Commodities trading in Canada in the past has been mainly carried out by large national brokerage houses.

Now that almost anyone can get into an unregulated fast-money game, the superintendent of brokers in Victoria recently advised the public:

"The subject of trading in commodities futures and commodities options is under consideration to varying degrees by the provinces with a view to determining whether commodities futures trading should be controlled by bringing it into the securities acts by amendment; by separate statute administered by securities administrators; or by separate statute administered by other than securities administrators."

In the meantime, he said, "we suggest that in the interim speculators and investors, inexperienced on commodities trading of whatever nature, should they contemplate becoming involved in this type of market, first consult one of the national securities firms in Vancouver having a commodities section."

The International Futures Group, which has a combined 20 years of experience in commodities trading at brokerage houses, said it welcomes the proposal for regulations.

"That could only help us," said Ramsay.

"You've got to be very disciplined in paying attention to your customers' accounts; otherwise they could get into a lot of trouble. You can't leave the market while they're in positions. You just can't ignore that responsibility."

Even if they're not in positions, it pays to be standing by the hot line waiting for flurries like the lumber twitch recently.

It happened so quickly that anyone on a wire circuit wouldn't have been able to participate. But minutes before the close a number of clients hopped into the rally via International's hot line. Most sold out immediately the next morning.

"They got a $5 to $6 rise in about three minutes," said James. "That means $500 to $600 a contract."

Although a contract is for 100,000 board feet, all a client would need in his account for one contract is $700 because of low margin requirements in futures trading.

Such margin gives considerable leverage. One client, for instance, sold 10 contracts which means that overnight he made a $5,000 profit on a minimum of $7,000 that he would have had to put up to buy them. This leverage works just as dramatically when the price is plunging, which is why commodities trading is so dangerous for the small investor.

PRODUCTIVITY VS. WAGES

TORONTO (CP) — Canada must strive to overcome "excessive" wage levels by means of increased productivity, says D. G. Wilmot, chairman of the Molson Companies Ltd.

"Rollbacks of wage gains in the absolute sense cannot be expected," he told about 250 persons attending a seminar on Canada's competitive position in world markets.

He said that from 1970 to 1974 hourly compensation in Canada increased 51 per cent and output per man hour increased by 17 per cent while in the United States compensation climbed 32 per cent and output 20 per cent.

"When these two factors are combined, it turns out that unit labor costs in the United States increased by 10 per cent over four years while in Canada that increase was 29 per cent or almost three times as much."

Willmot said Canada's average output per employed person between 1960 and 1970 was 2.3 per cent, almost the lowest of all industrialized nations.

Increased productivity is not necessarily the result of harder work, he said, but is most likely the result of more efficient work because of technology.

Technoligy is the product of human ingenuity and capital, he said, adding he has some doubt the Canadian investment climate can attract the necessary capital needed to improve technology.

ECM Bottoms Out

BRUSSELS (AP)—Recession in the world has bottomed out and there are signs of improvement in some Common Market industries, the European Commission reports. But it said clear evidence of recovery is limited so far to the United States and Japan.

The monthly report of the European Economic Community for October found indications that trade is steadying after world imports—not including the Common Market's own—dropped at an annual rate of nearly 10 per cent in the first half of 1975. It predicted an expansion of nearly five per cent next year.

The decline in world commodity prices ended in the first half of the year, it reported, and in the summer some food and raw material prices started edging up again.

The report said the 10-percent increase in oil prices which took effect Oct. 1 will further add to costs. It said the rise in consumer prices speeded up in September to an annual rate of 10 per cent.

The commission said industry stagnated during the summer within the nine countries of the Common Market, producing 13.5 per cent less than in mid-1974. A gradual upturn no wis evident in France and West Germany, offsetting continued decline in Italy, Britain, Belgium and the Netherlands, it said.

GCOS Practices Reviewed

FORT McMURRAY (CP) — Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. announced Wednesday the formation of a special committee on performance improvement to review various practices at the company's plant near this northern Alberta community.

Stan Cowtan, GCOS vice-president and general manager, said in a prepared statement the task force will review operating procedures and performance standards throughout all areas and levels of plant operations.

He said the committee will identify opportunities to improve performance through increased production and better cost control.

The first report of the committee, chaired by Peter Dolezal, is due in late January. findings and recommendations will be referred directly to Cowtan and E. J. Rea, director of plant operations.

In the nine-month period ended Sept. 30,, GCOS recorded a loss of more than $7 million.

Economy 'Sacrificed' To Politics

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Bell Canada said Wednesday that political expediency has contributed to the weakening of Canada's ability to compete on world markets.

"Even though basic economic facts are known and accepted, they are sacrificed to the political expedient of staying in power," A. Jean de Grandpre told a seminar on Canada's competitive position sponsored by the Conference Board in Canada.

As examples, he cited actions taken by governments in Canada on oil and steel prices rates.

As a result of government intervention, he said few commodities and services still have a market-based price.

The food industry is so regulated that one does not really know the true price of wheat, milk, butter or meat. Subsidies are masking true costs, and controls are imposing another financial burden, which also distorts the price paid by the consumer.

"We all know that regulation breeds more regulation, to the point of over-regulation."

He had heard of a petroleum company study showing its operations were subject to 373 statutes or pieces of regulation.

"In such an environment it becomes extremely difficult to generate sufficient earnings to do an adequate job for the consumer."

Mayor-Elect Waves Peace Flag at Business

The era of strained relations between Victoria city council and the business community seems to be over.

That was the clear indication Wednesday in Mayor-elect Mike Young's first public appearance since his runaway victory in Saturday's civic election.

His luncheon address to the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce contained both a pledge of rapprochment and a plea for positive co-operation — But none of the verbal darts which Mayor Peter Pollen has been so fond of flinging at businessmen.

Young even cracked a joke on the theme of Pollen's favorite term of abuse for the chamber — "the flat earth society."

"I realize that the relationship between the Chamber of Commerce and city council has not always been too cordial in the past few years," he said.

"However, I do not intend to spend time debating Copernicus's theory of the universe with members of your chamber. I would personally prefer to exploit people for what they are — not for what they are not."

Young added that he intends to "foster the positive and ignore the negative," and he appealed to the chamber to offer in return constructive criticism and a positive contribution to improving the community.

In supporting council's efforts to solve many current problems, he said, businessmen should put the community interest first and their own business interests second.

They should also make a point of seeking direct discussions with city hall, "rather than the current system of communication by press release, which is all too popular with bodies politic at the present time."

In his well-received speech — read from a prepared text, in contrast to Pollen's usual off-the-cuff delivery — Young avoided any detailing of council's priorities and objectives in the year ahead.

But he repeated a commitment stressed in his election campaign, to harry the provincial government until it pays a full grant in lieu of property taxes, rather than the present fixed grant of 15 mills or about one-third of its due tax bill.

Young said this underpayment at a time when the government is undertaking a major construction program in the city, and Victoria's mill rate is likely to reach 50 mills next year, is "grossly unfair."

He urged the businessmen present to "join me in this plea to save Victoria from the poorhouse."

"Like Oliver Twist we must bang our spoon upon our empty plate until we are heard by Mr. Bumble, Mr. Barrett or as the case may be," he said.

"If we are not heard the city will have no alternative but to start picking the pockets of our citizens."

Among other pleiges, Young listed a more active role by elected representatives in preparation of the city's provisional budget for 1976; preparation and filing of community plans for all areas of the city by the target date of Nov. 1, 1976; and co-operation with provincial government departments in development of the Inner Harbor.

In dealing briefly with the city's growing traffic problems, he warned that "anyone wishing to park 20 feet of steel downtown all day must be prepared to pay for the luxury."

All-day parking will be both limited and more expensive, as part of council5s policy of providing better access to the downtown area for shoppers who come by car, bus, bicycle of on foot.

Young said it's essential that the city "dramatically decrease" traffic volumes in the city core by the continued development of bypass routes.

No Storms With Young —Williams

Resources Minister Bob Williams said Wednesday he expects smooth sailing with the city of Victoria when Mike Young takes over from Mayor Peter Pollen.

"I think it's now clear that the former mayor and one alderman on city council who said they were playing a non-partisan role were not non-partisan," and their views could have contributed to the oft-stormy relations between the two levels of government, Williams said.

Williams said the office the Socred nomination meeting in the Victoria riding Tuesday in which Ald. Sam Bawlf won the nomination, and Pollen was unsuccessful in his bid.

The minister, anticipating a new era of co-operation, has proposed that both governments operate a joint Inner Harbor planning office in the Malahat building.

This plan updates an earlier proposal which would have seen a temporary structure erected on the Inner Causeway to receive ideas from the public on the development of the Inner Harbor.

Williams said the ffice would be designed as a public participation centre, manned by both level of governments under direction of John Webster, in charge of development with the lands department.

Similar offices, he said, have proven that the community appreciates input before plans are completed and "a good compromise can be achieved."

"But I'm not anxious to see any hasty decisions made about so important a development," said Williams.

"I'm sure the mayor-elect will be a man we can deal well with and development will be handled well and we look forward to dealing with him," said Williams.

Williams said the office idea was the brainchild of NDP candidates in Victoria, Charles Barber and Gordon Hanson.

PIT PROJECT TO BE PROBED

The B.C. Land Commission is conducting an investigation into Jim Gillespie's controversial agricultural reclamation project in Polson's Pit in Central Saanich.

The commission earlier this year said it had no objection to the project, but has apparently changed its mind because of the controversy surrounding the endeavor.

A letter to Central Saanich council from land commission chairman G. G. Runka says the apparent controversy has cast some doubt on the project.

The letter says the commission places on notice that it reserves the right to place additional stipulations and conditons on the development and may require a "proof of performance" from Gillespie.

Gillespie is attempting to reclaim as agricultural land an old gravel pit on central Saanich Road, but has met with opposition from Central Saanich council which earlier tried to evict him from the pit.

Gillespie said Wednesday his plans for the pit have not changed since the land commission said in June that it had no objection to the project, and that the controversy referred to in the commission's letter has been generated by Central Saanich council.

He said residents around the pit have no objection to his project and that he has undertaken the reclamation with the assurance that it will not affect his neighbor's rest or way of life.

Soviets Link Unmanned Craft

MOSCOW (Reuter) — An unmanned Soviet spacecraft docked Wednesday with the orbiting space laboratory Salyut-4, Tass news agency reported.

The agency said the Soyuz-20 craft, launched Tuesday, is intended to test "unit construction and on-board systems" of the two unmanned vehicles in joint flights.

Grit Attacks Party for Vote-Splitting

A long-time Liberal supporter Wednesday accused party officials of "doing a disservice to the province" by nominating candidates who are bound to lose the provincial election.

Bob Beer, a 40-year member, said the party should forfeit constituencies in which "we cannot get elected" to avoid splitting the vote against the NDP.

Beer made his comments at the Saanich and The Islands nomination meeting as Victoria car dealer Edgar Rhomberg unanimously won the nomination. In Oak Bay constituency association president Lee Jameson received the nomination. Both were unopposed.

"You haven't got a chance."

His attack was aimed at the Anderson family — Dr. J. W. Anderson, Saanich association president and father of Victoria MLA David Anderson and Malcolm Anderson, Victoria alderman and David's brother, who nominated Rhomberg.

And "where are all our members from Vancouver?" he asked David Anderson, in a reference to the defections of former Liberal MLAs Allan Williams, Pat McGeer and Garde Gardom, now Socreds.

Beer was opposed from the floor by a supporter who said the party "can do without any of that."

"I don't think the Anderson family controls the association. We try to serve but not control and I have every confidence we are doing the right thing."

Rhomberg, who previously considered running for the Tories, is president of Georgia Pacific Motors and Island Indoor Tennis and in his nomination speech called for more communication between the provincial government and municipalities to ensure a "return to neutral and sensible administration."

He said both Barrett and Opposition leader Bill Bennett are trying to play the role of Santa and Conservative-turned-Socred MLA Hugh Curtis is "probably one of the most lost and indecisive elves."

In Oak Bay, Mrs. Jameson told the meeting she is standing as a Liberal because she believes "it is a pragmatic party whose philosophy of reform was based on a concern for personal liberty and individual.

"The citizens of Oak Bay should have an opportunity to vote for a Liberal candidate.

"We'll reach our destiny. We'll have a member elected," the former nurse, a mother of four said.

Post Makes A Profit

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Washington Post said Wednesday the newspaper is making a profit during the current strike, and is publishing three-quarters as much advertising now as it did a year ago, despite production problems caused by the strike.

Mark Meagher, Post general manager, told reporters that the newspaper went into the black in the fourth week of the strike, and that profits and the size of the newspaper are growing substantially every week. The paper is now about 80 per cent as big as it was at this time last year, Meagher said.

Laundry Merger Sought

Capital Region Hospital Planning Commission Wednesday directed planner John A. Clark to find out how a single agency may assume responsibility for all hospital laundry facilities in the Victoria area.

The request is based on a special study ordered by the commission through its resources development committee and adopted in principle by the commission.

Clark, director of hospital planning, will examine the questions of whether the commission or an agency it may set up would be empowered to take on such a responsibility, whether it could secure the several laundries involved, or whether it could have administrative control without ownership.

Hospital laundry has become a problem for Royal Jubilee, Victoria General, Glendale, Saanich Peninsula, Gorge Road hospitals and provincial infirmaries because of the volume — about 6.5 million pounds a year — staff shortages and administrative snarls.

Glendale has assumed the task of laundering for most of the above institutions, but Victoria General still does its own. The laundry at Glendale is five years old and is administered by the provincial public works department.

The special study was carried out by management analyst R. G. Anderson, hospital planning co-ordinator J. P. W. Pennington and management engineering consultant L. P. Mann. They found Glendale laundry was poorly designed, had equipment problems, managerial and organizational difficulties, to which public works had been slow to respond.

Among the report's other recommendations are:

Transfer of Victoria General laundry to the commission or other independent society.

Standardization of hospital linen.

Complete linen service for all hospitals.

Anti-Glare Testing Delayed

Installation of anti-glare amber lighting on a test stretch of Royal Oak Avenue has been delayed because of delivery problems, Saanich engineer Cliff Warren said Wednesday.

In consultation with the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain, the municipal works department adopted a trial program of street lighting using high pressure sodium vapor lamps which produce an amber-colored light and less glare than the conventional mercury vapor lamps which have a bluish white light.

Saanich agreed to the trial after about three years of campaigning by the observatory where astronomers are hampered in their use of telescopes by an increasing amount of glare reflected into the atmosphere from highways, main thoroughfares, shopping centres and subdivisions.

Warren said 18 and 25-foot steel standards to be used in the experiment had been held up in transit as have the post-top fixtures themselves.

The test will determine whether there will be adequate illumination in a concentrated area from the proposed lamps, similar to new lighting at Oak Bay Recreation Centre.

'I Killed Those Ladies in Esquimalt'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Two witnesses told B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday that 21-year-old Larry Lovell confessed to them that he killed two women in Esquimalt Sept. 6, 1974.

Capt. Dennis Clooney, head of security and military police at Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, told the jury and Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie that Lovell asked to see him March 3 while in detention on other matters.

"As soon as I entered the cell he asked to be given civilian clothes and taken to the Esquimalt police department," Clooney testified.

"I asked him why. He said: 'Sir, can I sit down.' He sat on the edge of his bunk, his head in his hands, and cried very convulsively. It took a minute or two for him to compose himself."

Then, Clooney said, Lovell told him:

"Sir, I need help, it's got to me, I killed those ladies in Esquimalt."

Lovell, who had been an able seaman in the navy, is accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the deaths of Isabel Jane Plume, 51, and Isabel Florence Bevan, 62, at Ray's Food Market, 1325 Esquimalt Road.

Plume was found stabbed 47 times and Bevan was found stabbed 20 times.

Lovell's trial was in its seventh day Wednesday and for the first time in a week the jury returned to the courtroom.

The jury had been excused at noon last Wednesday while legal arguments were heard before Mr. Justice McKenzie. It was the longest voire dire, or trial within a trial, which several criminal lawyers could recall.

Clooney said he told Lovell to refrain from further comment and he made arrangements to go to Esquimalt police station.

Jack Enston, then a sergeant with the special investigation unit at CFB Esquimalt, told court he and Sgt. Doug Sproxton of the Esquimalt police interviewed Lovell after he arrived at the police station that day.

He said Lovell told them he threw the knife overboard from a ferry Sept. 13, 1974, and threw the shoes he wore Sept. 6 into a garbage can in Vancouver.

When Lovell went into the grocery store Sept. 6, the younger woman was in the back cutting cheese. He saw the till open and he took some money, Enston said.

"At this time the lady came in from the back of the store, with a knife in her hand, and she began yelling at him," Enston said.

"He took the knife from her, stabbed her in the stomach. The older lady came into the store. After this point he doesn't remember what happened because he went crazy."

After Sproxton arrested him, Lovell made a phone call to his father in Vancouver and said he didn't want to discuss the matter further until his father arrived via ferry.

"I asked him what prompted him to tell the truth," Enston said.

"He said he'd been bothered by his actions for some time and he felt it was time to tell the truth."

Lovell later said he went to the store to pay for groceries he had bought the day before. He also bought some gum.

He said he carried the knife, probably in a paper bag, and left it on a counter in his apartment on Constance Avenue. Later he put the knife in a drawer and took it from there Sept. 13 when he went to Vancover.

"He said he thought he had $60 extra in his pocket that he had taken from Ray's" (Food Store), Enston said.

He added that Lovell said his statement to Clooney was "blurted out" by him.

100 Million From Booze: Just One for the Damage

Item: Some interesting follow-ups to our visit to one chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, notably a fine article by Nicole Strickland, formerly of these parts, now with the Vancouver Province.

Reduced to the simplest statistics it appears that the provincial government realizes revenue of some $108 million a year from the sale of alcohol, but that "alcohol-related damage" in British Columbia is estimated at $250 million annually and the total amount spent by the provincial government for services for alcohol-related problems is only about one-and-a-quarter million dollars. Any way you look at it they're alarming figures.

Nicole quotes Dr. Christine Rodgers, program director for the alcohol and drug counselling service of the Vancouver Resources Board: "Everything is either AA or religion-oriented treatment and a lot of people that's not acceptable . . . We're away behind every other province in Canada."

Another frightening statistic, this time from Human Resources Minister Norman Levi: One in every five persons in British Columbia is either directly or indirectly affected by alcoholism.

Item: Listening today to Geoffrey Spencer, public relations man for the province's community colleges, who has become the staunch advocate of a "press council" as the cure for the excesses of newspapers. It is, I think, an opinion held by many well-meaning men who have reason for their mistrust in the public prints, yet really offers no solution whatever.

Mayor Peter Pollen is another who sees this as a check on newspapers. In a recent note to me he asks: "Would a Press or Media Council be one small step toward upgrading the standards of Canadian newspapering? Not, of course, a Press Council with the very limited objectives of the 'toothless bulldog' in Britain, but rather a Council with a number of well-articulated objectives including the standards to which newspapering could aspire."

Having seen it at work in Britain, and in a limited way in Ontario, I cannot see it as a realistic solution. Apart from any limiting of the freedom of a newspaper, always the threat of the most well-meaning of censors, it ignores the avenues of rebuttal open to any who fancy themselves maligned. Through the courts there are the laws of libel and slander. Through the papers, themselves, there is the right to reply through a letter to the editor, a right that's rarely denied by any responsible journal.

Item: A fascinating report from Bill Ward, the editor of Wildlife Review, on seven weeks spent in roaming Britain, mainly about the pubs. Though Bill visited many of our old war-time haunts in London his notes on the country and provincial inns are equally enthusiastic and should be a guide for any Canadian going that way.

Of the Bentinck Arms, hard by the railway station at Nottingham, he writes: "You check in through the bar. There is no 'office' as we know it. In our case we arrived at about two in the afternoon. The pub closed at three. Shortly after that the landlady knocked on our door to say she was going out for the rest of the afternoon. She handed us the key to the bar, the only way in or out. I wondered aloud whether she might not worry about a guest getting into the available drinks. She looked puzzled for a moment and then said, 'Why, of course, if you need any refreshment just help yourself.'"

Most pubs offer bed and breakfast and Bill gives the example of a typical breakfast at the Lion and the Lamb, in York: Two fried eggs, sausages, a thick slice of ham, fried tomatoes, fried bread, mushrooms and toast, tea.

It was also at the Lion and the Lamb, after arriving in a pouring rain, that Bill announced he'd be taking off for the bus station for a tour of the city. When they arrived at the door there was the landlord in his private car. "Couldn't see you walking all that way in this rain," he explained.

Bill's conclusion: "There is a sort of personal obligation assumed by the landlords and the landladies that is quite touching."

Item: A perplexing report today from Duncan that the MacMillan Bloedel Co. Ltd. has cancelled its scholarship fund to the Cowichan School District, a grant, I gather, of a mere $500 annually.

The reason, of course, is that the company for the moment is not doing too well financially — "adverse market conditions," as the saying goes. Yet it does seem astonishing that such a token "gift", in the very heart of a valley that's contributed to those millions earned in happier times, should be withdrawn. "A poor gesture" as one of the school board trustees called it. That is the understatement of the year.

Andy Bigg, former publisher of the Cowichan Leader and the Pictorial, has put up the $500 as a temporary replacement until the big boys come to their senses. (The donation was made Oct. 15, several weeks before he made the decision to contest the B.C. election as an independent.) What makes it all the more ironic is that the Mac-Blo cancellation was announced by their local manager of "community relations."

TAX BREAK DENIED RACQUET CLUB

Saanich council decided this week against giving Victoria Racquet Club tax concessions in return for the club's facilities being open to the public at certain times.

"We would be opening up a big can of worms," Mayor Ed Lum said, adding there were other private recreation facilities in Ssanich that would also want tax concessions.

"It's unfortunate, but I agree it is precedent-setting," Ald. Joe Bourque said.

"We did consider buying some of the time available to the municipality for public use but this (the time) is all in the early morning and time we don't want," said Lum.

B.C. TEL'S Victoria customers will have "line of sight" service to up-Island and Vancouver when new microwave tower and radio complex atop Smith Hill, at end of Summit Street, starts operating early next month. The $1 million tower will carry phone conversations from Victoria and eliminate need for the tower now on top of Blanshard Street B.C. Tel office. Mayor Peter Pollen and Island division manager Bob Henderson inspected the structure this week. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Battle Brewing Over Spectrum Auditorium Plan

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Spectrum community school supporters will lock horns with Saanich council to fight for the school auditorium rejected in Saturday's referendum.

At a stormy meeting Wednesday night, parents rejected suggestions of a sit-in at Mayor Ed Lum's office but they will band together under defeated mayoralty candidate Jim Maxwell to get action from council.

The auditorium was rejected 8,978 to 5,855.

The meeting was called by the Greater Victoria school board to discuss changes in school boundaries, but that agenda was quickly rejected by parents who wanted trustees to be aware of the anger and frustration over the "doomed" future of a community school without integral auditorium facilities.

One parent accused the joint school board and municipal planning committee of meeting only three times on the auditorium — "a scarce amount of meetings for a project of this importance."

But Trusteee Daphne Temple said an in-camera meeting between the board and council had been held and "Mayor Lum was very well informed. All the background on this was sent out special delivery for council and we got to the meeting and some of them hadn't read it and some hadn't even brought the material."

"Mr. Lum knows he doesn't have to go to referendum on this and they backed off and put it on the shopping list," she said.

"I suggest we all go up there to the mayor's office and sit there," said on parent.

Maxwell said he fought for the auditorium during the campaign "and I'll still do it.

"It would be a very great pleasure for me to fight municipal hall," he said.

Board chairman Bill Ross added his support for any initiatives by a community organization.

He said the board is in a bind because to receive provincial funding for joint recreational facilities the municipality must initiate the project.

He said, however, that the board would likely be willing to earmark its share of the funds, $165,000 of the $420,000 cost, in the upcoming budget. The community group could use that as a lever to pressure the municipality.

There are several options open to council to fund, at least a good portion of its share, without going to referendum, the meeting was told.

Maxwell said that if council really supported the project, it could have explored use of local improvement measures which would result in residents in the area paying a special tax to fund the facility. Under the Municipal Act a council can raise up to $100,000 without going to referendum leaving $65,000 to be raised by the community, an option the parents were willing to take on.

"It's in the Saanich bailiwick," said school superintendent Jake Longmore. "It's not our prerogative to do Saanich business."

"We've got to lean on Saanich to get this god-damned thing going," said one man. "It can get going and I nominate Mr. Maxwell to lead us."

Spectrum principal Wally Russell said "that auditorium was critical. It would have forced Saanich council to play ball with us in terms of community education programs.

"We have no funding for the auditorium, the municipality is not supporting us," he said, adding cost of custodians to work overtime to keep the school open late in the evening for the community is going to be prohibitive in some cases — "and we feel that our lighted (community) school house is kind of doomed."

Pollen Slams Absent Sam

Mayor Peter Pollen suggested today that Ald. Sam Bawlf resign from city council if his campaigning for the provinical election prevents him from carrying out his aldermanic duties.

In making the comments at this morning's Group A committee meeting, Pollen didn't mention Bawlf by name.

But he was obviously referring to both Bawlf and Ald. Malcolm Anderson, who has attended few city meetings since he switched jobs from stockbroker to radio station salesman a few weeks ago.

One of the committees in Group A is the finance committee, of which Bawlf is chairman, Pollen had to chair the meeting in his absence.

But Anderson was present as the mayor suggested that council members with higher political aspirations or new occupations should resign from council if they couldn't properly fulfill their civic responsibilities.

"If these people can't come to these meetings because of their new positions I think they should resign," he said.

"Quite frankly I find the demands of this office . . . overwhelming, but I still think there should be a basic responsibility to fulfil their elected commitments to the citizenry, and it is quite easy to resign if you can't fulfil them."

After the meeting Pollen and other members of the committee adjourned to the cafeteria for coffee, but Anderson pointedly sat at another table.

Bawlf defeated Pollen Tuesday night for the Social Credit nomination in the two-seat Victoria riding. Insurance executive Ian Rendle is the other Socred candidate.

ARTS GROUPS ECSTATIC OVER B.C. GRANT BOOSTS

Major increases in grants to professional arts organizations in British Columbia from the B.C. Cultural Fund were welcomed today.

"We're elated," said Dennis Killian, Victoria Conservatory of Music administrator, concerning their $31,600 boost over 1974. "It's going to help us tremendously."

The conservatory's $45,000 grant is part of a total $1.5 million announced Wednesday by Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall.

Concerning Bastion Theatre's $72,500 compared to $43,620 in 1974, Helen Simpson-Baikie said: "It's fabulous. We can scarcely believe it."

Other Victoria groups receiving substantial amounts are the Northwest Coast Institute of the Arts which receives $17,250, and Laszlo Gati's Summer Festival, $25,800.

Amity Singers of Victoria will receive $3,000, and in other parts of the island, Nanaimo Symphony will get $3,800 and the Courtenay Youth Music Camp, which is operated from Vancouver, $55,000.

CBRT in Huff Over Teamster Tenancy

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Delegates from the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers Union walked out of the Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday to protest the Teamsters Union's tenancy in the Union Centre on Quadra.

Jack Sullivan, secretary of the CBRT unit at The Empress and an executive member of the labor council, resigned from the council and walked out of the meeting after delegates upheld a ruling that the council had no right to attempt to evict the Teamsters from the co-operatively-owned union centre.

Another CBRT delegate followed Sullivan.

Sullivan had asked the council to write to the Victoria Building Co-op which operates the centre, and ask that the Teamsters be removed from the building.

The Teamsters Union is not affiliated to either the labor council, the B.C. Federation of Labor or the Canadian Labor Congress.

Sullivan said the Teamsters Union has been raiding the CBRT and his union had lost about 2,000 members in B.C.

International Woodworkers of America delegate Jack Groves said the Teamsters Union is not just a tenant in the Union Centre, it is an owner because the building is run as a co-op.

Sullivan said the CBRT is mounting an offensive against the Teamsters over the raiding practices.

The union attempted to have a motion prohibiting any CLC or B.C. Federation of Labor affiliate from assisting the Teamsters put before the B.C. Federation of Labor convention earlier this month, but it was not brought up before the convention ended.

Canadian Union of Postal Workers president Stan Darlington said the council could ill-afford to lose a delegate "with the enthusiasm Brother Sullivan has shown" and said he hoped he would reconsider his decision.

Schibli said he felt every officer of the council shared those sentiments.

In other council business, delegates voted to donate $25 to the B.C. Federation of Labor's political education fund to support the NDP in the Dec. 11 election, but not without a fight.

Several delegates spoke against the contribution to a political party and one delegate slammed out of the meeting saying, "I leave you to your political rally."

Canadian Labor Congress representative Bill Smalley, in Victoria to promote the CLC's fight against the federal wage controls, said he supported the donation to the NDP because "what you win at the bargainig table can be taken away by the stroke of the legislative pen."

"Don't you think that MacMillan Bloedel donates to a political party? Your money is going to a political party through the giant corporations," Smalley said.

Esks' Castoffs In Key Roles

CALGARY (CP) — Imports Dan Kepley and Wayne Matherne, two newcomers on the Edmonton Eskimo defensive team, have much in common as they prepare for Sunday's Grey Cup rematch with Montreal Alouettes.

Kepley will work at the middle linebacker spot he grabbed after an injury to Sam Britts. Matherne will play the inside defensive back position he filled brilliantly during Edmonton's 30-18 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference final last weekend.

Both believed previously this season that they were through with football, at least until 1976, and both needed a stroke of fortune to help them find a place in the lineup.

Matherne failed in a trial as a defensive cornerback when he could not adjust to the outside position and was cut by head coach Ray Jauch, while Kepley, who signed as a free agent, was released by Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League as one of the final Dallas cuts.

After Matherne was chopped, an injury opened a new spot on the Edmonton roster. A telephone call by Jauch found Matherne eating breakfast in Vancouver at the home of British Columbia quarterback Don Moorhead.

Matherne, who attended Louisiana State Univerity, accepted the new Edmonton offer. He returned on short notice but suffered the injury that kept him on the sidelines after that.

Matherne had a deep hamstring pull that responded slowly to treatment. When the leg was ready, so was Jauch, who knew he wanted Matherne in the lineup and who found space on the active list in time for the WFC final.

Matherne helped clinch the victory—Edmonton's third in three years over Saskatchewan in the final—with a 72-yard [illegible] for a touchdown with 2:56 remaining.

"On the other one the ball was underthrown," said Matherne, who arrived here Wednesday night with the Eskimos, who lost 20-7 to Montreal in the 1974 final, and bowed to Ottawa Rough Riders the previous year.

"I would have caught that ball but I lost my balance," said Matherne. "I'm just glad I could jump high enough to catch the last one."

Kepley was approached by Edmonton general manager Norm Kimball after he graduated last season but he had already signed a trial contract with Dallas.

Kepley got a second chance to join the Eskimos after Britts suffered a neck injury. Kepley arrived as the Edmonton defence was at its lowest ebb. Despite some errors, caused by unfamiliarity with the Eskimo defence and rival personnel, he performed well enough to keep the job when Britts became eligible to come off the injured list.

"When I came up here I didn't know the first thing about Canadian football," said Kepley. "Everybody helped me. This is a great bunch of guys. They knew I was working hard to catch on and they showed confidence in me.

"I'm just glad I've got a chance to play."

The Grey Cup Story Of 'Cool-Hand Luke'

The annual Grey Cup game for the football championship of Canada will be contested in Calgary on Sunday afternoon and I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to give you some of the news reports in advance and then provide the name of the winning team. A pre-game bonus, so to speak.

Naturally, the big story is the day-by-day condition of Bruce Lemmerman. He is the Edmonton quarterback. He has a circulatory ailment in his throwing arm and, as a result, has a problem keeping his pitching hand warm. The question is: can this modern-day "cool-hand Luke" survive the weather and a shoot-out against the Eastern invaders, the Montreal Alouettes?

This is vital to the Eskimo cause. For if they don't get the heat to Lemmerman before the Alouettes put it on him, the Eskimo game-plan could go straight up the blower. Lemmerman is the new darling of the Edmonton fans and coach Ray Jauch, and was the hero of the 30-18 victory over Saskatchewan in the Western final, coming on in relief of Tom Wilkinson.

Jauch will be asked this week: "Will Lemmerman dress?" He will answer: "Lemmerman will dress and he will play even if we have to provide electric mittens to keep his pinkies warm."

Then someone will recall that Edmonton had a similar quarterbacking problem last year, or have you forgotten so quickly? It was just one year ago that Wilkinson, pot belly, cigar, et al, was being feted at the annual Schenley awards as the best player in Canada and there was some question then if he would play. Jauch answered that one: "He'll dress and he'll play. He just pulled some fat in his back."

So coaches are entitled to their funnies.

Otherwise, each coach in turn, Jauch and Marv Levy of the Alouettes will be featured on national TV in the coaches' pre-game media conference where they will reveal all. In fact nothing.

Each will say he respects the other; is aware the opposing team wouldn't be there unless it was extremely capable; admits he fears the place-kicking abilities of Dave Cutler of the Esks and Don Sweet of the Als; fears the breakaway talents of such players as Larry Highbaugh of Edmonton and Johnny Rodgers of Montreal; hopes the field remains dry, and will suggest that it should be an evenly-played contest and the team that gets the breaks, or makes the breaks, will probably win. The clubs are that even.

Someone is certain to ask Levy about Rodgers' charge in a magazine article that Alouette quarterback Sonny Wade is a white southerner and that's why he won't throw to him.

Levy will field this one neatly and bring out statistics refuting the charge and pointing up in particular that Wade threw to Rodgers twice for touchdowns in the Als' 35-12 victory over Hamilton in Eastern semi-final. Wade will be asked a similar question. He'll suggest it isn't true, noting that Jimmy Jones, the other Montreal quarterback, goes to Rodgers more often that he does because he throws the deep pattern oftener and that's where Rodgers is.

Then, of course, will come the day of the big game. And with it, the weather. What will it be like and whom will it favor? Who Knows?

Still, it shouldn't matter at this late stage, even though the Alouettes will likely be three to four-point favorites. The eastern team always is, for some reason, mainly because that's where most of the money is.

Which brings up the original question. What about "cool-hand Luke"? Will Lemmerman be able to warm to his task and exhibit the hot hand he showed against Saskatchewan before he meets up with the vaunted pigpen patrol of the Alouettes? That's the Montreal front four, the same crowd that put Wilkinson out of last year's game, remember?

The betting here is that he will; and also that Cutler, who never even got a chance to kick a field goal last year, will boot a couple early this time; and, that even if Lemmerman does happen to get caught in a deep-freeze, there will always be a Wilkinson to take over and get the job done.

He can be a cool customer if need be. Edmonton by four, 26-22.

Braves Win, Demons Lose

Belmont Braves won and Dunsmuir Demons lost during pre-season exhibiton high school boys' basketball games Wednesday.

Bruce Robertson and Darrell Johnson fired 18 points each to lead Braves to an 83-60 victory over visiting Nanaimo Hubsters while Demons began a road trip to the interior with a 59-55 loss to Hope.

Skinny Denny Loves Labor

By The Canadian Press

Denis Herron is thriving on hard work.

Wednesday was a busy night for the Kansas City goalie and he responded to the challenge by kicking out 42 shots to enable the Scouts to upset New York Rangers 6-4 in a National Hockey League game.

Playing goal behind an often porous defence can be a physically taxing occupation, but the 23-year-old native of Chambly, Que., has been gaining weight since he joined the Scouts last year.

Still a skinny 150 pounds, Herron has used a special training regimen and a diet loaded with milkshakes to build himself up from the 139 pounds he weighed when he turned professional three years ago.

"The extra weight makes me feel stronger," he says.

Kansas City coach Bep Guidolin says Herron has been playing well all along.

"When he came here he knew he was going to see a lot of shots," he says. "He knows that someday we'll protect him like we should."

In Wednesday's other NHL games, Vancouver Canucks defeated Washington Capitals 6-2, Chicago Black Hawks stopped Los Angeles Kings 4-2, Detroit Red Wings tied Boston Bruins 3-3 and Montreal Canadiens blanked Minnesota North Stars 6-0.

A Ranger defence that frequently found itself out of position left Ranger goalie Dunc Wilson over and over again. Wilson didn't deny he had been let down by his defence.

"They must have had 20 good shots," he said. "Things like that shouldn't happen."

Ed Gilbert and Dennis Patterson netted two goals apiece for the light-scoring Scouts, who entered the contest with a four-game winless streak and just 30 goals in their first 16 games this season.

A Landover, Md., crowd of 6,298 saw Rick Blight, Gerry O'Flaherty, John Gould, Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Ververgaert score a goal each for the Canucks.

Dennis Hull and Darcy Rota scored goals for Chicago 16 seconds apart in the final period, snapping a 2-2 tie and helping the Black Hawks stretch their unbeaten string to 10 games.

Hull's goal at 2:17 of the third period, his second of the night, beat Gary Edwards on a five-foot rebound as the Kings' goalie was on the ice. Rota added an insurance tally for Chicago at 2:33 on a breakaway to score his sixth goal of the season.

The goaltending of Ed Giacomin, who made 28 saves, helped the Wings move into a tie with Pittsburgh Penguins for third place in the Norris Division.

A goal by Mickey Redmond with 10 seconds on the clock gave Detroit its tie.

Yvan Cournoyer scored the first of six third-period goals for the Canadiens, breaking up a goaltenders' duel between Ken Dryden of Montreal and Pete LoPresti of the North Stars.

Steve Shutt added two goals and Guy Lapointe, Guy Lafleur and Doug Risebrough one each for the Canadiens, who had a 43-17 edge in shots.

Dave Whitehead of Claremont finished second, 1:31 behind Smith and 12 seconds ahead of third-place Kevin Kendall of Mt. Douglas.

Esquimalt easily retained the girls' team championship with 29 points, 39 less than runner-up Belmont. Sharon Doherty led Esquimalt with a second-place finish, only 14 seconds behind Miss Scott. Cheryl Matthews, Carole Pickard and Rebecca Staples supplied the remaining Esquimalt points with third, fourth and eighth-place finishes.

Jack Carlson set a new World Hockey Association standard for truculence Wednesday night.

The 21-year-old native of Virginia, Minn., became the first player ever to draw four major penalties in a single game, upstaging Cleveland Crusaders, who beat the Saints 4-3.

Because a third major leads to an automatic game misconduct, a player can accumulate four majors in a game only by drawing a double major after he has already accumulated two majors in the game.

Carlson began by drawing majors for high-sticking and fighting in the first period, then drew majors for slashing and fighting in a second-period brawl that also led to the exclusion of Cleveland's Paul Baxter.

In Wednesday's only other game, Indianapolis Racers downed New England Whalters, 3-1.

NEW ENGLAND (1): Wayne Carleton (8th). INDIANAPOLIS (3): Reg Thomas (9th), Brian Coates (6th), Nick Harbaruk (7th). Attendance: 7135.

Character Alouette Strong Point

CALGARY (CP) — Character has played a large role in the success of Montreal Alouettes, says centre Wayne Conrad.

"I personally think it is the character of this team that's important," Conrad said after the Alouettes' workout Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's Grey Cup final against Edmonton Eskimos in Canadian Football League action.

"I don't think it's the defensive line or the defensive backfield or the offensive backfield," he said. "The team as a whole has so much character. When you have character you have a chance."

"What I mean by character is when you're playing as a team and things . . . are not going well we stick together and that's what I call character.

"We don't have any of this dissension stuff," Conrad added.

Conrad said another key factor with the Alouettes is their backup personnel.

"I don't think its unfair to make a comparison between this year's team and last year's. We have had injuries to guys like Chuck Zapiec and Dave Braggins. Of course this is a tremendous loss.

"Frank Pomarico is filling in Braggins' spot. We have tremendous backup talent on the Montreal Alouettes. I said our strong point was character, which it is, but one of our strong points is our backup personnel. We have a lot of guys that could start on any team in the CFL."

Conrad said the Eskimos have a "fine football club."

"They have Tom Wilkinson, Bruce Lemmerman and of course George McGown. Should I go on? They have great defence with people like Tom Laputka, Dave Fennell and they've added a new linebacker, Dan Kapley. I haven't played against him but I watched him against Regina and he was superb. I'm preparing for playing against him now."

Conrad and teammate Steve Ferrughelli went horseback riding prior to Wednesday's workout because of a promise Conrad made prior to the Alouettes 20-10 win over Ottawa Roughriders last Saturday in the Eastern Football Conference final.

"The reason I rode was that I made a statement in Ottawa that I would ride a horse in Calgary. I said I would show them what the Grey Cup festivities in Calgary were really going to be like," said Conrad.

The Alouettes have been rated as underdogs for Sunday's game against the Eskimos, who defeated Montreal 31-29 in a regular season clash.

"In 1974 we were underdogs and we won the Grey Cup," Conrad said.

"If omens are omens, we will be Grey Cup champions again."

Conrad played for Victoria Steelers in 1967.

Meanwhile, coach Marv Levy said it appears Pomarico will start in Braggins' right offensive guard slot in Sunday's game. Braggins suffered a fractured jaw in the eastern final against Ottawa and the top offensive lineman in the East was put on the Montreal injury list Monday.

Defensive half Phil Price is still being bothered by a sore ankle and Levy hopes he will be able to resume full workouts with the club today.

You Can Bet New Tide Coach Is Working on His Timing

RUGBY
max low

Timing never has been Bruce Howe's strong point.

The new coach of the Victoria Rugby Union's Crimson Tide rep squad admits there have been occasions when the pieces of the puzzle of life could have fitted together neater for him.

Take the 1972-73 season when he was named to the B.C. squad for its match with Wales. Bruce was a reserve and, as he didn't get to play, he thought that was it. The following day he took off on a camping holiday in the United States.

The next day Bruce Howe was selected to play for Canada against the Welsh national team — but no one could find him and he missed his one and only chance to play for his adopted country.

Then, at the end of that season, Bruce returned to his native New Zealand where he spent two years as head of the physical education department of the Palmerston North Teachers' College.

While there, he "played a little" and coached the college team and dreamed up a scheme that would give him an excuse to visit B.C. He arranged a very glamorous tour for the Palmerston North team — two games in Los Angeles, two in San Francisco, two in Seattle, a match in Vancouver against the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds and finally two games in Victoria against the University of Victoria Vikings and a Tide under-23 team.

Then he was offered a job back here — a position he just couldn't turn down — as division chairman of the physical education department at UVic. Bruce and his wife and two small children have been back here since September. And now the Palmerston North boys will make their tour in January — without him.

Still, he hopes to join them for part of their tour and will help them as much as he can with the coaching chores.

When he first came to Canada, Bruce took charge of one of the junior sides at UVic and later coached Oak Bay Wanderers for two years.

One of the best scrum-halves the province has had, Bruce played for the Wanderers and for the Tide and the highlight of his career came in the 1972-73 season when he captained B.C. against the visiting New Zealand All Blacks in Vancouver.

Now Bruce has taken over from B.C. coach Tillman Briggs as coach of the Tide. But why did he come back here and leave behind a veritable rugby paradise?

"We have been away from New Zealand five years and found home wasn't what we'd expected it to be" he explains. "And besides, we missed our friends in Victoria — we missed the rugby people here."

Reds' Series Shares Are Fourth Highest

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Reds received 32 shares worth $19,060.46 each for winning the 1975 World Series, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said today.

The $19,060.46 was the fourth highest individual share in World Series history, with only the cheques received by Oakland A's in 1972, 1973 and 1974 being larger.

Boston Red Sox, who lost in the last inning of the seventh game, earned $13,325.87 each, with 34 members of the American League champions receiving full shares.

All 25 players on each team who were eligible for World Series cheques took home their full shares.

Boston players Denny Doyle who was traded from California to Boston early in the season, and Jim Burton and Jim Willoughby, both in the minor leagues when the 1975 season started, received a full share of $13,325.87.

Only Cincinnati reliever Rawly Eastwick joined the Reds' roster after the start of the regular season but he came aboard before June 1 and automatically qualified for a full share. Eastwick earned his World Series cheque with two victories and a save in the seven-game thriller.

Post-season attendance totalled 584,531, including 308,272 from the World Series, in which four games were played in little Fenway Park with its seating capacity of 35,205.

Scoring Flood

Don Burgess scored two tries and kicked two conversions to lead Ebb Tide to a 26-22 victory over UVic Jutes of the Victoria Union's third division in a high-scoring exhibition rugby match Wednesday at UVic.

Braves Belt Flyers In Rugged Contest

CHEMAINUS — Saanich Braves, sparked by the three-goal output of Ron Vincent, hammered Fuller Lake Flyers 15-1 Wednesday night at Fuller Lake Arena to extend their lead in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League to six points over runner-up Esquimalt Legion.

Perry Carrigan, Murray McLaren and Brent Patterson fired two goals apiece for Saanich while singles were added by Bill Atkin, Ron Jobson, Rob Coldwell, Wayne Larsen, Tom King and Ron Vause.

Pat Hicks averted a shutout for Fuller Lake.

Several players were ejected during the extremely rough third period and a league spokesman said that suspensions will probably be handed out.

PATS PUT MACK HERRON ON WAIVERS

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England Patriots announced Wednesday that they have placed two-year veteran running back Mack Herron on National Football League waivers.

Herron, who set an NFL record for total yardage last season, played with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League before he was waived by the Blue Bombers in 1973.

DIRECTING New York Jets for balance of National Football League season will be Ken Shipp (above), promoted from position as offensive coordinator when head coach Charley Winner was fired Wednesday.

Tarkenton Overtaking Unitas

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton is approaching most career pro football passing records with a lot of publicity. But the thing he may do best is often overlooked.

"He's a doer, not a doubter," says Vikings coach Bud Grant. "He's the complete quarterback."

Tarkenton will erase Johnny Unitas' career record of 2830 pass completions with 14 more completions—a mark within reach in Minnesota's National Football League game against San Diego on Sunday. He is seven touchdown passes shy of Unitas' career record of 290.

"All he does is beat you," Unitas once said of the man pursuing his marks.

Tarkenton has been labelled by his critics as a scrambler and a quarterback who "can't win the big one." But since he was reacquired from New York Giants, he's taken the Vikings to 42 victories in their last 57 games and into two Super Bowl appearances.

"Contrary to most football players, he seems to get better with age," said former Dallas Cowboys great Bob Lilly. "He's certainly different than most quarterbacks with that travelling ability of his."

The 35-year-old Tarkenton, now in his 15th NFL season, will surpass the two major records established by Unitas. Now a television sports commentator, Unitas played 18 years although he didn't enjoy the physical fortunes of Tarkenton, who has never missed a game because of injury.

"He's the best quarterback around as far as we're concerned and he may be getting better," Grant said.

Tarkenton says individual records are meaningful.

"I've always thought of Unitas as the greatest quarterback who ever lived and it's a tremendous thrill to be approaching his records."

The six-foot, 190-pounder is enjoying perhaps his best all-round season. "He's a master at getting the ball to the open man," says tight end Stu Voigt.

"He's the catalyst to our whole passing game. So many times, a play is broken down, yet he's able to salvage it."

Tarkenton has connected on 62 per cent of his pass attempts this season for 1853 yards and 18 touchdowns.

Tarkenton has never really sought the spotlight or glamour accorded to other professional athletes and, therefore, has managed to maintain a comparative low profile.

Grant said the notoriety given other personalities in the game is sometimes puzzling.

"It was amazing to us the people who wanted to see the New York Jets when they were here this year because of (Joe Willie) Namath," Grant said.

New NFL Clubs Get Plenty of Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League owners agreed Wednesday to permit the new Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Seattle Seahawks franchises to stock their teams with players from both the active and reserve pools, creating the largest selection of football talent for any expansion teams in NFL history.

"We have created the largest pool of quality players ever available in NFL expansion," said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle outlined the stocking plan this way:

All teams will be permitted to withhold two players from their total reserve lists as of Oct. 28. These lists included injured players, retired players, players now performing in Canada and other categories.

In addition, the teams will freeze 30 other players before the Buccaneers and Seahawks start picking.

Each existing team is subject to the loss of three players and may protect another player each time it loses one.

In the college draft, Seattle and Tampa Bay will alternate first and second choices in each of the 17 rounds. In addition the two new teams will get extra picks at the end of the second, third, fourth and fifth rounds.

"After the start of the sixth round, the two new teams will have made 28 of the first 158 draft choices of 18 per cent," said Rozelle.

Tampa Bay and Seattle will each receive 39 veterans and 25 players from the college draft for a total of 64 on their roster.

"They also will be signing free agents, waiver claims and other players," said Rozelle.

The commissioner said certain aspects of Wednesday's agreement would be subject to collective bargaining between the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, and the NFL Players' Association.

John Thompson, general manager o thef eSattle team and former executive director of the management council, explained the negotiations problem.

"The decision to expand, in management's view, is not negotiable," he said. "But everything affecting the employees is negotiable. Ostensibly, all of this is subject to negotiations with the players."

Rozelle said the decision to include players on reserve had created the huge pool of talent.

"Cincinnati's pool was 88 players and there were 154 available to Atlanta and New Orleans," the commissioner said, citing the stocking of the NFL's most recent additions.

An important aspect of the plan is the availability of players currently on injured reserve in the NFL. There are 139 players currently on that list and, with five weeks left in the season, more are likely to be added.

Thompson and John Jennings of the Tampa Bay club both expressed pleasure with the formula.

"I'm pleased with the program and I think we'll get quality veteran players to help us in our first year," said Jennings.

"I can only echo the commissioner concerning the size and quality of the pool," said Thompson. "There's no question there will be more quality players available and I am pleased with the formula."

The stocking draft for the two new teams will be held Saturday, Jan. 24 in New Orleans, two days before the Pro Bowl Game. Seattle will play in the National Football Conference West Division and Tampa Bay in the American Football Conference West

Both teams will switch conferences in 1977.

BCST BY FEBRUARY

VANCOUVER (CP) — George May, general manager of the British Columbia Central Credit Union said Tuesday the provincial government's proposed B.C. Savings and Trust (BCST) — financial institution intends to offer its services through the province's 260 credit unions at the end of February, 1976.

May said that BCST will be operational next year whether or not the credit union movement decides to join.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Workers represested by the Canadian Union of Public Employees at radio station CKLG have voted 30 to six to decertify the union.

Egg Men Lose Appeal

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Egg producers in northern B.C. have been refused permission to secede from the B.C. Egg Marketing board.

A decision handed down Wednesday by the provincial marketing board said that to make the marketing board work to its fullest, all producers should be included in the provincial scheme.

Earlier this year, northern producers appealed to the B.C. egg marketing board for exemption, arguing there were irregularities in the quota system as it affects northern producers compared with egg producers in Greater Vancouver.

The appeal was refused so the northern producers took their case to the provincial marketing board.

Meanwhile, in Prince George, one of the producers who wants to pull out of the board says he cannot understand how the board can get away with discriminating against northern proudcers.

Cy Kovachich said Wednesday he doesn't have many options left open to him and has not decided on what further action to take.

Kovachich also said it appears the egg marketing board will be making decisions regarding the quota levy system in the north and producers must wait on these decisions.

OZONE THREAT TO CROPS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ozone pollution is a threat to crops raised near Greater Vancouver and in Fraser Valley, a university of British Columbia plant scientist said Tuesday.

Professor V. C. Runeckles told a seminar sponsored by the Westwater committee on air pollution that even low levels of ozone, a component of smog, can decrease a plant's chance of survival.

"We should be very concerned about the effect on root crops, like radishes, turnips and potatoes," he said.

The ozone attacks the leaves, he said, and to compensate material may be diverted to the leaves from other parts of the plant .The root system could be particularly weakened in this way.

Prof. Runeckles said lettuce farms would be particularly vulnerable because "you only have to destroy one per cent of the cells of a head of a lettuce before it becomes a 100 per cent write-off."

3 Communities Declared Disaster Areas

Three north Island Communities hit last week by torrential rain storms were declared disaster areas by the provincial government Wednesday.

Karen Sanford, New Democratic Party MLA for the area, said residents of those areas will be eligible for full compensation for damages.

The areas affected are Sayward-Kelsey Bay, Alert Bay and Port Alice.

The mayor of Port Alice said Tuesday that provincial government and Rayonier Canada Ltd. officials were "a little stunned" about the possibility of moving the town, but that no one has rejected the idea.

George Lacey made the comment after a three-hour meeting in Port Alice with the officials, including Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer, Ms. Sanford, and representatives from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. and the provincial resources department with whom the possibility of moving the town to another site was discussed.

"They know we have a problem and something has to be done about it," Lacey said. "We didn't really expect them to give us a decision on building dikes and moving mountains."

Recent flooding and mudslides in the pulp mill community have left many yards and streets undercut by water and mud. Lacey said another mudslide was possible.

5-Year SFU Boycott Settlement Near

BURNABY (CP)—The Canadian Association of University Teachers' five-year boycott and censure of Simon Fraser University will be lifted if a tentative agreement over the firing of eight professors in 1970 and 1971 is ratified later this month.

In a memo to faculty, SFU president Pauline Jewett Wednesday released details of the agreement which calls for job offers to two of the seven surviving professors, fair consideration of one if he applies for a job at SFU and research stipends of $9,600 for the others.

Dr. Jewett said the agreement, which has her "entire support," was approved by the SFU board of governors Tuesday and now goes to the CAUT board and council for approval at a special meeting in Ottawa Nov. 28 and 30.

Under the proposed settlement, which must be ratified by Dec. 8, CAUT agrees to withdraw all censures and boycotts placed on SFU since 1970 and SFU agrees to drop all outstanding charges against the former political science, sociology and anthropology department faculty.

"In my view the agreement constitutes a fair and equitable resolution of all outstanding grievances," Dr. Jewett said.

But James Stevens, chairman of the CAUT committee on academic freedom and tenure committee which recommends acceptance of agreement said it is only intended to signify major progress toward resolving the dismissal of the professors.

"As long as progress has been made the CAUT will agree to lift censure," he said Wednesday.

Mordecai Briember, chairman of the PSA department when it came under attack in 1969, said none of the seven will accept SFU's offer if the agreement is ratified.

"We were all fired unjustly for political reasons," Briemberg said. "Never at any time in the dispute were our academic credentials questioned."

Briemberg, Kathleen Aberle, David Potter, Louis Feldhammer, Prudence Wheeldon, John Leggatt, Nathan Popkin and Saghir Ahmad, who died in 1971, were suspended from teaching duties in October, 1968, for participating in a PSA department strike.

Although two independent tribunals found no grounds for dismissal, five were fired in 1970 and 1971 and the other three were reinstated but did not have their contracts renewed.

PULP MAN OPTIMISTIC ON TALKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pulp union official said Wednesday some progress is being made in his union's latest round of negotiations with the British Columbia pulp industry.

Reg Ginn of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC), said "I'm optimistic, I really am."

He said the parties are discussing health and welfare matters at present.

BCFP Claimed Arrogant

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for independent loggers said Wednesday that British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. should be stripped of two-thirds of its permitted timber supply.

Ian Mahood, president of the Truck Loggers' Association, told the Pearse Royal commission on forest resources that BCFP is arrogant and wants to expand an already unfair monopoly position.

Haney to Keep Penal Status

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Haney Correctional Centre, which was to have become an educational facility this month, will be retained as a provincial penal institution indefinitely.

About 17 boys and seven girls now occupy one wing of the centre because the old juvenile detention home in Vancouver has been closed — possibly for good.

Two provincial family court judges said Tuesday during an interview that the home had been closed and said that Haney was the only facility near Vancouver suitable for housing juveniles. The institute is 20 miles east of Vancouver Maple Ridge.

Judges Winifred Murphy and Cecil Lewis said the home closed Oct. 28 when the boiler was in danger of blowing up and "the furnace hadn't worked for days."

Haney closed as a correctional facility in August when the department of education took it over to be turned into a vocational school, with clases scheduled to start Nov. 3.

The children, who come from all over B.C. were brought by bus to Haney, the judges said.

"There are no adult prisoners — that is, any over 17 — there now," Judge Lewis said. "And there will be none."

The judges said they had no idea how long young offenders would be boarded in Haney or if the 41-year-old home would be renovated and put back into operation.

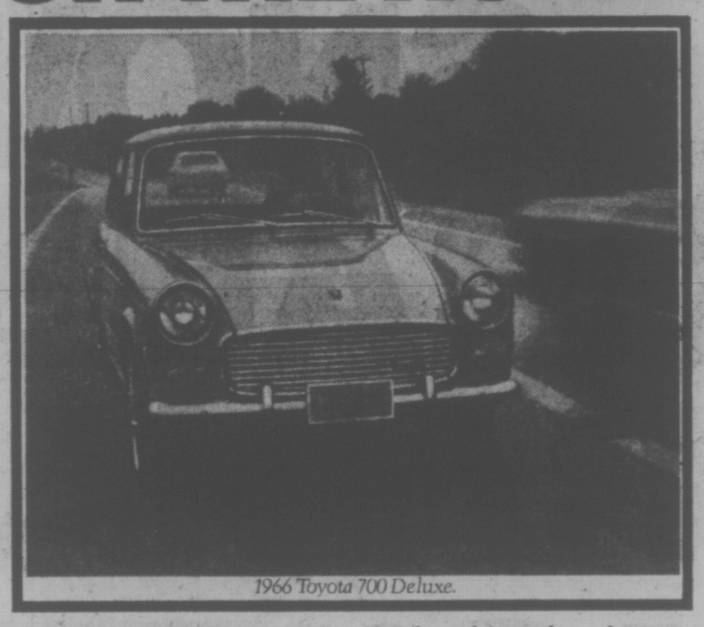
They said that juveniles under arrest now are taken by police to Haney if their parents cannot be contacted and are held overnight until they are brought to family court in Vancouver the next morning. Formerly, youths charged with an offence would be held overnight in the home, they said.

9 OUT OF 10 TOYOTAS EVER SOLD IN CANADA ARE STILL ON THE ROAD.

While most statistics may be pretty boring, we think this one is pretty impressive.

9 out of 10 Toyotas we've sold in Canada in the last ten years are still on the road today.* And we've sold a lot of Toyotas. Over the past five years we've sold more cars than any other import car manufacturer–more than 250,000 of them. And nearly every one of them is still on the road.

All of which makes us very happy. And we're not the only ones. Over the past several years we've received literally hundreds of letters from Toyota owners. And what they have to say, says it all.



1966 Toyota 700 Deluxe.

DEAR TOYOTA:

"In March 1971 when I purchased my Corolla 1200 I had thoughts of trading it in within twelve months–'before I ran into problems.'

The fact that I still have the car and have driven it in excess of 106,000 miles, speaks for itself.

The car has performed beautifully in all kinds of weather, on all types of road and carrying a variety of loads. There have been very few mechanical problems and when work is required parts are readily available, even to the local service station.

Driving the number of miles I do in a year, I am naturally interested in economy. My Corolla provides great mileage while giving a ride which is more comfortable than many standard size cars I have driven.

People with preconceived ideas about small cars being good for about 40,000 miles are amazed when I tell them of my experience with Corolla ...having reached 106,000 miles without problems, I should thank you for a quality product at a reasonable price.

Yours very truly,
W.L. Laird,
Keswick, Ontario.

DEAR TOYOTA:

"This is the fifth anniversary of buying our Corona Mark II. It was our first new car and has taken us over 105,000 miles without any major repairs, and is still giving us thirty miles to the gallon of gas. It has taken us through snowstorms and rainstorms and never left us stranded. Out here on the prairies where winters are bitter it has started on the coldest of mornings.

We think our little Toyota is terrific and we are now aiming for 150,000 miles."

Sincerely,
Jean and Dieter Busse,
Leduc, Alberta.

DEAR TOYOTA:

"We would like to thank you for the outstanding durability of your 1971 Toyota Corolla Deluxe. Up to now, we have put 230,000 miles on the car. In the near future we would like to purchase another Toyota Corolla Deluxe and a Toyota pick up. However, at the moment, this one is still running in fairly good condition."

"Hey Toyota, you're terrific!"

Yours truly,
Gerald W. Maschewski &
L. Daniel McMeekin,
F & J. Janitorial Services,
Hamilton, Ontario.

1976 Toyota Corolla 1200 Hard Top.

THANK YOU.

Of course we can't guarantee that your Toyota will last as long as these, but we can assure you that if you maintain it, service it and drive it properly it will last a long time. Our record speaks for itself.

Thank you Mr. Laird. Thank you Mr. & Mrs. Busse. Thank you Mr. Maschewski and Mr. McMeekin. Thank you all.

We think you're terrific.

TERRIFIC TOYOTA COROLLA.

As well as performing and lasting like a trooper, our Toyota Corolla comes with a nice long list of no cost extras that you won't find on Pinto, Vega or Chevette. Electric rear window defroster, heavy duty battery, power front disc brakes and adjustable, fully reclining bucket seats are all standard equipment. And surprisingly, the Toyota Corolla 1200 costs less than Pinto, Vega or Chevette.

And this is why Toyota Corolla (with 1200 or 1600 cc engines) is the top selling model in the world and why Toyota is the number one import in Canada.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old Duncan man who stole $75 worth of watches was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to six months definite and 10 months indefinite.

Richard William Daniels will spend the term at Wilkinson Road after Judge Fred Green decided against a term at New Haven.

He said New Haven appeared to be a place where "free Spirits" could leave when they were so moved.

Stephen Lorne Sorenson, 23, of Nanaimo, was sentenced to three months when he pleaded guilty to two counts of false pretences.

He had been on parole for a 1973 conviction when the incidents occurred.

He wrote cheques for $43 and $30 early this month to receive cash from Trans-Canada Texaco.

He will also be required to repay the money. Sorenson has a lengthy record of fraud and false pretences.

Eugene Mathe, 61, of 941 McClure, will spend two months in jail for possession of a dangerous weapon.

He had pulled out a bread knife when a Nootka Court night watchman told him to leave the court the night of June 28 when he was sitting there drinking.

The sentence came after a plea of guilty to the offence — and two days after he had been found guilty on it.

Monday's conviction was declared a nullity when it was found Mathe had never been given the option of higher court trial.

Peter Stephen Gaw, 20, of 2655 Belmont, was held in custody for bail hearing today on two counts of trafficking in MDA.

He was also charged with three counts of possession of MDA, hashish and marijuana and was remanded to Friday on those.

Judge William Ostler was told he has previous convictions for trafficking and possession of narcotics.

He has a prior conviction.

"I realize it's against the law, but . . . I found I was drinking too much, and it was a good substitute," he told the judge.

Donald Robert MacDougall, 25, of 309 Niagara, was fined $250 and put on six months' probation for escaping the custody of a peace officer.

He had panicked after being arrested near his home for marijuana possession on Nov. 12.

"It was the first time he'd been arrested and he was frankly scared," said Legal Aid duty counsel Richard Anthony.

Judge Ostler warned MacDougall that escape usually merited tougher sentence, but since he had turned himself in to police just eight hours later he would only be fined.

Roger Keith Purdy, 645 Baltic Place, admitted stealing two shirts and a drill set worth $19.43 from Woolworth's on Saturday.

Court was told he has a record including theft, possession of narcotics, and break-in and theft.

In traffic court, several persons were fined $350 for impaired driving, put on three months' probation and ordered to take the impaired drivers' course: Elden Lee Burns, 19, of 989 Jenkins; Kenneth Earl Beebe, 33, of 369 Obed; William Bannigan, 55, of 660 Niagara; Robert John Hayes, 233, of 119 Croft; Melvin Jimmy, 24, of 7785 Pat Bay Highway; and Gary Thomas Mullins, 23, of 575 Marifield.

Brian Frank Ford, 35, 3372 Oak Bay, was fined $200 for driving under suspension. He is prohibited from driving for three months.

Alan John Hill, 19, of 3372 Kingsley, was fined $300 for impaired driving and $200 for dangerous driving.

Hill was also put on three months' probation, ordered to take the impaired drivers' course and prohibited from driving for one week except for work.

The Long Arm of The Law

The authority of a B.C. Supreme Court justice was extended Wednesday from the courtroom to a worksite immediately below.

Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie, presiding at the murder trial of Larry Lovell, was straining along with everyone else to hear witnesses in the makeshift courts in St. Ann's Academy above the noise of bulldozers and graders preparing a parking lot.

As the noise rendered listening impossible, Mr. Justice McKenzie dispatched a deputy sheriff with orders to stop the noise.

Within minutes, there was silence.

Later in the day, heavy trucks began doing what heavy equipment had done before. Away went the deputy sheriff. And again, silence.

The parking lot is three floors below the courtroom and is being paved after turning into a quagmire in recent rain.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit Party, which had one candidate nominated when the Dec. 11 provincial election was called Nov. 3, is the first party to complete nominations in all ridings.

The party had candidates running for all 55 seats on Wednesday.

Only Rafe Mair had been nominated to run in the riding of Kamloops before Nov. 3.

Nominations for the New Democratic Party have not been held in the ridings of North Vancouver-Capilano and West Vancouver-Howe Sound. When the election was called, NDP candidates had been named for 11 seats.

The Liberals had nominated six candidates before Nov. 3 and now have 29 candidates.

There are 19 persons running for the Progressive Conservatives so far, an increase from the four nominated before the election was called.

There were no candidates nominated for the Communist Party before the election was called. Now there are 13 persons running in 11 ridings.

The League for Socialist Action has nominated a candidate in West Vancouver-Howe Sound.

By Wednesday, 170 candidates were in the running. Nominations close Nov. 27. The 1972 election was contested by 226 candidates.

Returning Officer Hanky-Panky Veto

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief returning officer Ken Morton Wednesday denied a suggestion that new returning officers chosen for the Dec. 11 provincial election were selected because they are supporters of the New Democratic Party government.

Only eight of the returning officers who conducted the 1972 election have been reappointed.

There are 40 new returning officers who, Morton said, are replacing people who have moved, died or are otherwise unavailable.

Morton said the new officers were chosen by himself and that he was not given any list of favored candidates.

"And," he said, "regardless of who they may be, when they are appointed they are non-political.

"They come under me, and if anybody starts any finagling — Boom, that's it."

Morton gave the explanation after a former candidate for the Social Credit nomination in the Shuswap riding charged that the returning officer there was replaced for political reasons.

Leonard Galbraith, who tried unsuccessfully for the Social Credit nomination in 1972, said that Herbert Gord was removed as returning officer for Shuswap in favor of Steve Inglis of Armstrong.

Ford is coroner for Salmon Arm and Sicamous and held the position since 1956.

Galbraith, as president of the Salmon Arm District Air Society, sent a letter to Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen objecting to Inglis' appointment.

He said in an interview that he believes Ford's removal was politically motivated and that he thinks the same thing has been going on all over the province.

Inglis' name appears on the official list of returning officers, but Ford said he was never officially informed that his appointment was rescinded.

He said he told D. V. Drew, Salmon Arm government agent, in August he would be available, but heard nothing more about it.

Ford said he has been a Social Credit supporter in the past, but has no idea why he was removed from the post.

Morton said there was a big turnover in returning officers this time and could not recall whether there had ever been such a big change-over in 11 general elections which he has overseen.

His procedure was to check the list of former returning officers and reappoint those he could reach, he said.

"If I couldn't catch them I just appointed another of my own chosing," said Morton.

He said he had to make appointments as quickly as possible to have the list complete and that three previous returning officers are visiting the new appointees to brief them on procedures.

GIBSON IN CITY

Area candidates will also attend the meeting at 8 p.m. at the Tally-Ho. The Liberal leader goes to Duncan and Nanaimo on Friday.

Posters Don't Win Votes...

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Telephone and B.C. Hydro have asked all political parties to refrain from attaching election posters to telephone and power poles during the current campaign.

The companies say linemen have slipped and been injured when their spurs slipped on cards, nails and staples.

NOMINATIONS

Oak Bay — Ray Vickery.

Liberal

Vancouver-Burrard — Thom Ferguson; Helen Boyce. Oak Bay—Lee Jamieson. Saanich and the Islands — Edgar Rhombeg. West Vancouver-Howe Sound — Kitty Maracle.

Liberals Also Pledging Pension for Homemakers

A six-point program for women, including pensions for housewives, was announced by Liberal leader Gordon Gibson Wednesday.

Gibson, speaking to the Vancouver-Burrard association which nominated Helen Boyce and filmmaker Thom Fersuson, said women's rights are one of the more overlooked areas of political philosophy of this country.

"We are dealing with half of the human race. It is hard to understand why these changes have taken so long in coming."

He said a liberal government would:

—Recognize in law the housewife's contribution to the marriage;

—Provide real enforcement of the law of equal pay for equal value;

—Hire women of competence in the public service;

—Expand daycare for children of working women and kindergartens down to age three;

—Set up an advisory council on the status of women which would report directly to the premier.

Gibson said Liberal pensions for housewives would be much more meaningful "than the one Barrett is talking about."

He would seek to have a portion of Canada pensions accrue to the housewife, he added.

Meanwhile, in Prince George, Premier Barrett said he finds it "absurd that the Social Credit party apparently feels there is no need for a northern affairs department."

The premier was referring to a suggestion made there several months ago by Bill Bennett, that there was a possibility a Social Credit government would abolish the department.

Establishment of this department has been "one of the main achievements" of his government and Alf Nunweiler, minister without portfolio responsible for northern affairs and member for Fort George, has done "a truly outstanding job," he added.

"It would be a major blow to the people of the north if a Social Credit government is elected and the northern affairs department is scrapped."

Barrett also dismissed as "absolute nonsense" speculation his New Democratic Party government might take over the forest industry in the same way the NDP government of Saskatchewan is planning to take over that province's potash industry.

Conference Probes Family Breakdown

Suburban living, shift work and pressure from such groups as the women's liberation movement are among the factors that break down the quality of family life in British Columbia.

These are some of the findings coming out of the provincially-sponsored four-day conference on the State of the Family which ended at Centennial United Church today.

The 200 leaders of various religious denominations and others who attended the conference will now be drawing up programs for discussions in small neighborhood and church groups.

Dr. Donald Brundage, associate professor of education and co-ordinator of graduate studies at the Ontario Institute of Studies told the delegates that those interested in saving the quality of family life should get involved in city planning.

"Locking people in little boxes in suburbia does not encourage anything other than the nuclear family," he said. such a family, he added, is cut off from the old supports of the extended family of grandparents and aunts and uncles.

Brundage also charged that the women's liberation movement and other groups that agitate for change also tend to break down the family.

Another speaker, Rev. Reuben Schmunk of Port Alberni, blamed the split shift system of industry as a major cause of family breakdown.

"A man who works afternoon shift and has kids in school will go a full two weeks without seeing his children. He might as well be living in another town," he said.

Delegates also conceded that today's mobility has a detrimental effect on families but Victoria labor council secretary Larry Ryan pointed out that many workers have no choice

A worker who refused to move to take a job can be cut off unemployment insurance, he said.

The traditional religious view of family life received a shock during the conference when delegates were confronted with homosexuals, lesbians and commune dwellers.

Most vocal of these was Malcolm Crane of Vancouver who said, because he has chosen to live with a man, society's doors are closed to him.

He said he is deprived of premarital counselling because he cannot have a legally-recognized marriage and the community support that the "Christian ideal" of marriage brings.

Communal living advocate Phyllis Coleman of Ganges complained that society was unable to be sympathetic to her conception that all members of her commune are family.

Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo told Crane and Coleman that while he was "personally empathetic to individual situations such as described" any civilization which does not transmit meaningful values into the future is doomed.

"Don't demand that the whole society relinquish its values because you want to do your thing and have your individual experience," he said.

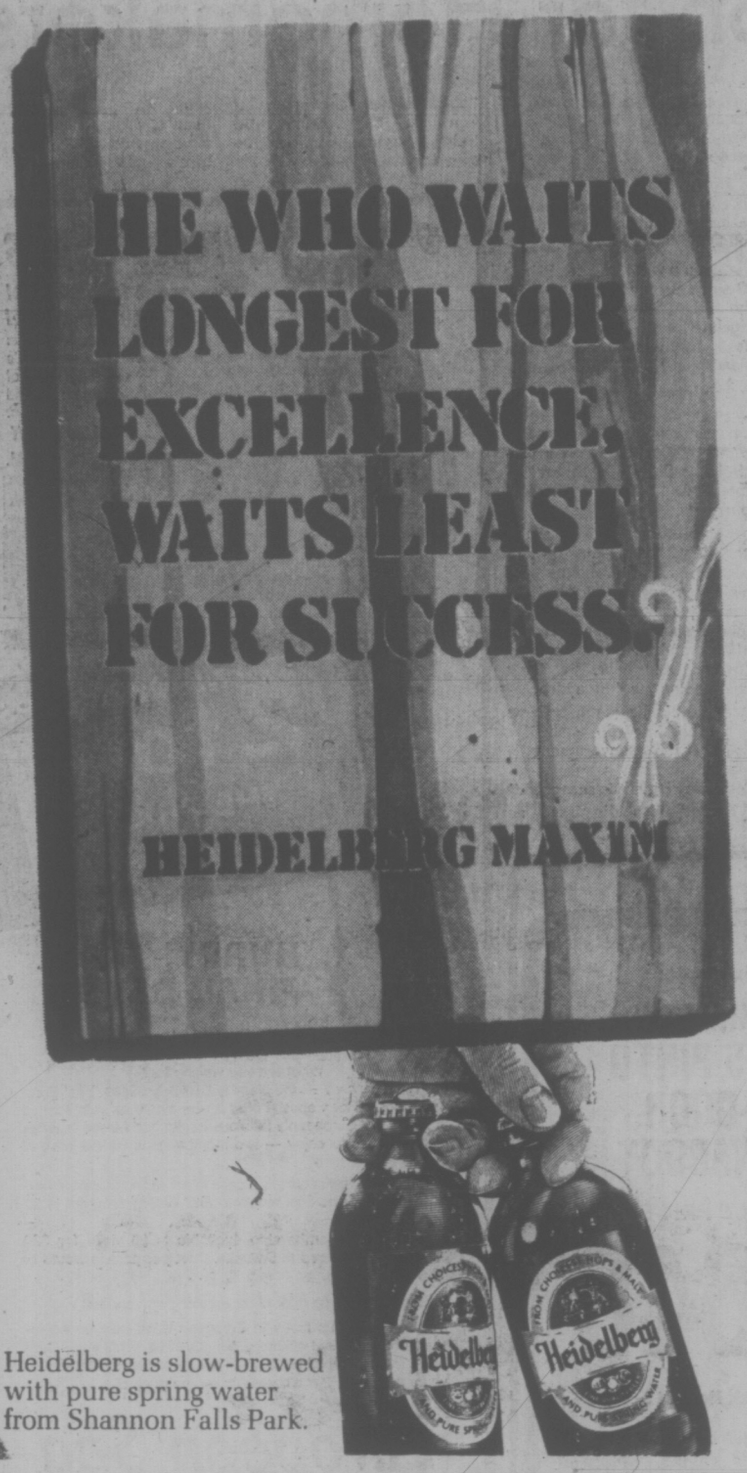
Pot Law Eased

LAGOS (Reuter) — Nigeria has scrapped a nine-year-old law prescribing the death sentence for growing or selling marijuana. The penalty for possessing and smoking the drug is slashed from 10 years' imprisonment to a fine of $285 or six months' jail or both.



Heidelberg is slow-brewed with pure spring water from Shannon Falls Park.

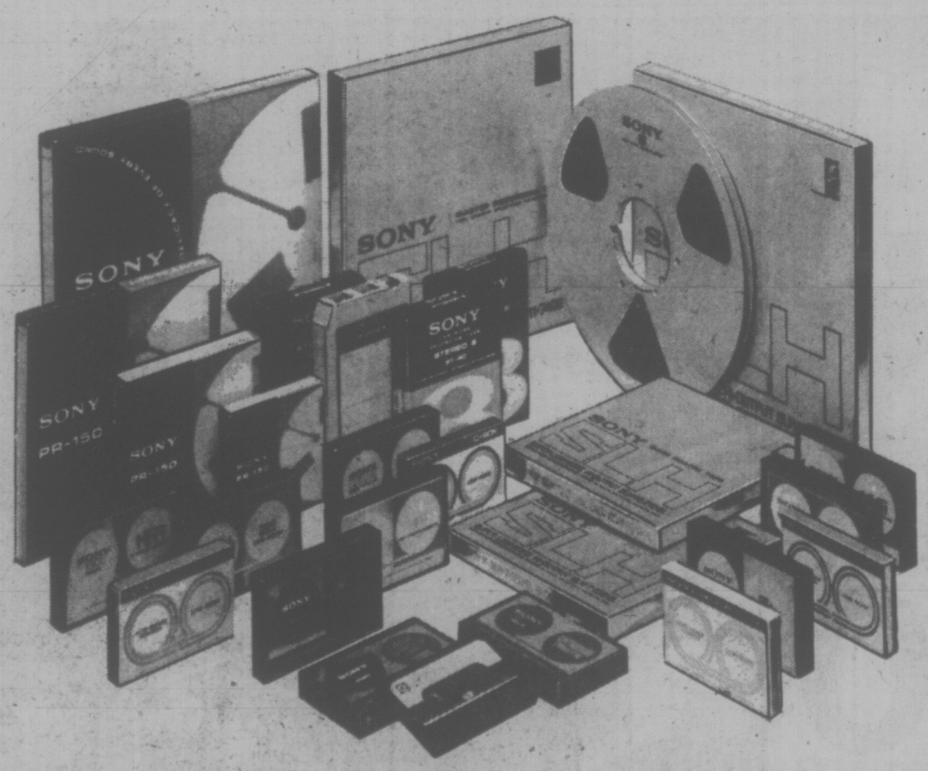
Sony
Professional Recording Tape



Why compromise great sound! If you've taken the time and money to set up a truly fine stereo system you should use a truly fine tape... Sony. Over the years the development of Sony Quality Recording Tape has kept pace with the development of Sony hi-fi and stereo components. They compliment each other and are made to exacting specifications. That's not to say Sony tape only works well in Sony equipment. Any system or tape recorder would sound its best with Sony tape. And Sony makes a full range of tapes for every application too,—cassettes, 8-track cartridges and open reel tape. Sony has specially developed tape, like SHL—"Super-Low-Noise-High-Output"—used by professional recording studios and audiophiles who require only the most faithful reproduction. Another Sony breakthrough is the Ferri-Chrome Cassette. By combining the normal tape coating with the new chromium dioxide type Sony has created a cassette that will record the full musical spectrum, from the lowest note on a cathedral organ to the highest overtone of a piccolo. If you've treated yourself to a top quality stereo then treat yourself to the top quality tape. Sony...your sound is only as good as your tape.

Reagan Enters Race

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan today announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination and launched his campaign to drive out President Ford in the strongest conservative challenge for the White House in more than a decade.

The 64-year-old former two-term California governor made his long-anticipated formal announcement at a Washington news conference.

Then he headed for Florida and New Hampshire, two states with early primaries where Reagan hopes to damage and possibly cripple Ford's quest for a presidential term in his own right.

Reagan is considered the most serious contender from the GOP's most conservative wing since Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona won the nomination in 1964.

In his written announcement, Reagan called for an end to the "buddy system" in Washington and the beginning of "responsible, responsive government."

He appealed for the support of all Americans "who share my belief that our nation needs to embark on a new, constructive course." He added, "I am running because I have become increasingly concerned about the course of events in the United States and in the world."

He cited economic decay, lack of cheap and abundant energy and weakening of military superiority among the nation's problems.

He said he favors continued detente but only if the United States makes "it plain that we expect a stronger indication that they also seek a lasting peace with us."

Reagan said "... the root of these problems lies right here — in Washington, D.C. Our nation has become the seat of a 'buddy' system that functions for its own benefit — increasingly insensitive to the needs of the American worker who supports it with his taxes.

"Today," he said, "it is difficult to find leaders who are independent of the forces that have brought us our problems — the Congress, the bureaucracy, the lobbyists, big business and big labor.

"If American is to survive and go forward, this must change. It will only change when the American people vote for a leadership that listens to them, relies on them and seeks to return government to them."

Defence Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Wednesday appropriating $3.9 billion for military construction and requiring the United States to negotiate with the Soviet Union to maintain the Indian Ocean as "an Ocean of Peace."

The bill, a compromise between Senate and House figures, is $65.2 million more than the House-passed version, $75.28 million below the Senate-passed bill.

First U.S. Turbo Smash

The train collided with a truck en route from Chicago to St. Louis. It carried 111 persons.

Seven of the injured were admitted to hospitals, and three suffered injuries described as serious.

The train was one of only five of Amtrak's new $2.7-million turbo units in operation across the United States. Damage was estimated at close to $1 million, said James Taylor, Amtrak's regional vice-president.

The Chicago-St. Louis run by turbo trains was one of the first of its kind put into operation two years ago. Turbo trains can reach speeds up to 120 miles an hour but run slower because of track conditions, an Amtrak spokesman said.

WOMEN OWN WORST FOES

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Pollster George Gallup says one of the biggest roadblocks the women's liberation movement must overcome is women themselves.

Gallup told a career's conference at Virginia Tech the goal of many women is to become a housewife and mother.

He said polls show that only about "one in every three women see as their ideal being married, having children and getting a fulltime job outside the household."

Gallup said, "one of the biggest roadblocks in making headway in the women's liberation movement is women themselves. They have a big job in convincing women to making headway" in career-type occupations.

He said the women's liberation movement "has a long way to go before making a mark in male dominated occupations."

On another topic, Gallup said there seems to be growing public support for federal assistance to financially troubled New York city.

"The public is still closely divided," he said, "but there seems to be a little more on the favorable side than the unfavorable side."

Gas mileage tests conducted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in 1975 proved that no other car in Canada got better gas mileage than a Datsun B210. The test results on the 1976 cars have just been announced and, once again, the Datsun B210 is the gas mileage winner.* The B210 delivered 40 miles per gallon in combined city-highway driving (getting up to 35 mpg in the city, and up to 49 mpg on the highway). No car in Canada does better.

It's Datsun's aerodynamic styling and efficient engineering that produce the money-saving high gas mileage you need. And there's a B210 for everyone ... including 4-door sedans, stylish 2-door hatchbacks, and budget-pleasing 2-doors starting as low as $3,295.†

Check out all the 1976 Datsuns, and test-drive the one you like, at your Datsun dealer today. If you enjoy driving, you'll love the feel of a Datsun. The '76 Datsuns have all the economy you need, and all the driving feeling you want. That's what the Datsun spirit is all about.

*The Datsun B210, with manual transmission, gets 40 mpg in combined city-highway driving (35 mpg in the city, and 49 mpg on the highway), according to latest U.S. E.P.A. test results, when converted from U.S. to Imperial gallons. In the same tests, Subaru and Chevette tied with Datsun B210 at 40 mpg for top spot in combined city-highway driving. Your own gas mileage may vary from these results, as it depends on many factors, including the kind of driving you do, the condition of your car, and its optional equipment.

†Manufacturers suggested retail price F.O.B. Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, Dartmouth. Local freight and Provincial sales tax extra, where applicable.

Buy it for the economy, drive it for the feeling!

U.S. Terror Bombs On Increase: FBI

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Bombings by left-wing revolutionaries are on the increase in the United States, FBI director Clarence Kelley said Wednesday, adding he cannot understand lack of public outrage over the fact.

There were 46 bombings in the first six months of this year, one more than in all of 1974, and chose to double the 24 claimed by or attributed to revolutionary groups in 1973, he told a Senate hearing..

Bureau afforts to fight terrorism have been complicated because those responsible have adopted the "cell system" to prevent infiltration, Kelley added.

"Many terrorists are expect in the use of false identification, and are able to melt into a whole subculture of communes that extends across the nation."

Meanwhile, the bureau acknowledged Wednesday that it could not justify its repeated attempts to discredit the late Martin Luther King and many of the other victims of its disruptive counter-intelligence program.

Assistant deputy director James Adams told the Senate intelligence committee that there were approximately 25 separate "action" taken against King in the 1960s, all without any "statutory basis."

Sen. Philip Hart said he was just as concerned about the other faceless victims of FBI harrassment — from black activists to women's liberationists to anti-war leaders and people wrongly suspected of being Communists.

FBI documents, Hart pointed out, indicated they were subjected to efforts to break up their marriages, force them out of their jobs, swear them in the eyes of parents and teachers and, in some cases, perhaps even to kill one another.

The Michigan Democrat disclosed, for example, that on Jan. 30, 1969, FBI headquarters approved the mailing of a letter to Jeff Forte, a leader of the Blackstone Rangers gang in Chicago, asserting that the Black Panthers there had "put out a contract on his life."

Don't Give Names: CIA Chief

WASHINGTON (WP) — Central Intelligence Agency director William Colby made an unusual public appeal Wednesday against the Senate intelligence committee's release of the names of 12 intelligence officials involved in alleged assassination schemes aimed at foreign leaders.

He warned, in a hastily called press conference at CIA headquarters, that the naming of the CIA operatives as well as American citizens and foreigners who worked with the agency could subject them to "extra-legal retaliation" by individuals and "unstable or extremist groups."

Colby said, in response to a question, that he was not acting at the request of the White House which earlier asked the Senate committee not to make public its assassination report.

The director acknowledged that he already had asked the committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church (D. — Idaho), in testimony and by letter not to divulge the names of agency officials and co-operative private citizens. Colby's intention was now to put himself on record publicly against the committee's plans to release the names.

Satellite Probing Ozone

WASHINGTON (WP) — A satellite that will attempt to discover if the earth's protective ozone shield is breaking down was put into orbit Wednesday night.

Called the Atmosphere Explorer, it can fly close to earth because it carries 370 pounds of fuel to fire tiny engines that kick it back into a higher orbit each time it makes its closest approch to earth, about 80 miles.

One of the 12 instruments aboard the satellite is a backscatter ultraviolet spectrometer, which will measure the ozone in the stratosphere and troposhere by measuring how much of the sun's ultraviolet light is reflected back from the upper atmosphere.

Military Help Tied to Rights

WASHINGTON (WP) — New legislation is expected to be introduced today to cut off U.S. security assistance to any country that engages in "a consistent pattern of gross violations of human rights."

The move follows the refusal by the administration to provide Congress with a report on human rights violations by military aid recipients.

An amendment to last year's Foreign Assistance Act stated that it was the sense of Congress that "except in extraordinary circumstances, the president shall substantially reduce or terminate security assistance to any government which engages in a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights."

Sen. Alan Cranston said Wednesday he was introducing an amendment to the foreign military assistance bill that would require a cutoff to such countries except in "extraordinary circumstances."

CLAMPS AID BLACK USER

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Federal Trade Commission Wednesday announced three more actions in a continuing crackdown on deceptive advertising of products marketed specifically for black consumers.

The agency said it had accepted consent orders barring three manufacturers of hair straighteners from misrepresenting that the products are safe and from making other false claims. In addition, they must include a health hazard warning in all advertising and on the package labels.

Mussels—fine first course fare

Despite Numbers, Mussels Most Overlooked Shellfish

Victoria Times
THIRD SECTION
FOOD and nutrition

Mussels would certainly qualify as the most overlooked shellfish in the North America. While it hardly seems a logical explanation, the one heard most often for mussels' lack of popularity is their abundance.

If not that, certainly the fact that they are supposed to be so difficult to clean would be an explanation why people leave this delicious, cheap shellfish at the fish market. In other countries, they are so well regarded that ropes are put out for them to cling to and grown on; there they are simply harvested wild. (Mussels are available in Victoria in cans.)

Mussels are almost as easy to clean as clams. Both must be scrubbed and soaked in cold water. When selecting mussels, use the same criteria that apply to other shellfish. The shells should be closed, or if slightly open, they should close when handled. They will remain alive in the refrigerator for several days.

How many to buy: As a main course, four pounds of mussels will serve four to six people. It they are sold by the dozen, 1½ to 2 dozen will serve four people. Three quarts of mussels will serve four to six people.

Mussels make an excellent first course but are equally as good as the main dish, especially with a lot of crusty French bread.

MUSSELS MARINIERE
(Makes 4 to 6 Servings)

Probably the most famous of all mussels recipies, this is basically just a method for cooking any shellfish in a court bouillon.

- 4 pounds mussels, scrubbed and cleaned
- 2 medium onions, minced
- 4 teaspoons peppercorns
- 4 sprigs parsley
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- 3 cups white wine
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley.

To make court bouillon combine onion, peppercorns, parsley, thyme and wine and cook for 5 minutes. Add mussels; cover and cook for 10 minutes. Strain pan juices through fine sieve or triple layer of cheesecloth. Set mussels aside and keep hot. Reduce pan liquid over high heat by half.

Remove from heat; stir in butter and parsely and pour over mussels. Serve in shells in soup bowls with cocktail forks and tablespoons.

Variations. To the court bouillon mixture add 4 tablespoons prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons dried dillweed, 2 cloves garlic, chopped, and the butter and the parsley which are added at the end of the mariniere recipe (but in this one are included in the mixture in which the mussels are steamed.) Steam mussels until they open, (about 10 minutes) and serve with strained broth.

Mussels Normaude

Makes 4 to 6 servings as first course.

- 3 dozen mussels
- 1 cup apple brandy
- 3 shallots, diced
- 1 bay leaf
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup heavy cream
- Salt and pepper.

Cook mussels with apple brandy, shallots, bay leaf, 2 tablespoons butter and carrot. Cover and steam until shells open, about 10 minutes. Remove mussels and keep warm. Strain sauce; stir in remainng butter, cream and salt and pepper to taste. Heat sauce but do not boil and pour over mussels.

Hungarian Veal Goulash

(serves 4)

- 2 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 1 cup sliced Spanish onion (packed)
- ½ to 1½ tsp. paprika (amount depends on your nationality)
- ¼ tsp. thyme
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- 1¼ to 1½ lbs. veal cubed (1")
- 1¼ cups hot water
- 1 tbsp. flour
- ¼ cup cold water
- noodles (about ½ to ¾ lb.)

Melt the butter or margarine and gently saute in it over low heat the onion until limp but not brown. Add the paprika, thyme, salt, bouillon cube, veal and hot water, mix well and simmer gently, covered for 45 minutes.

Meanwhile put noodles on to cook in large amount of salted boiling water and cook until very tender.

At serving time mix flour and cold water to a smooth paste and stir into goulash.

Seminar to Discuss Running Business

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

For a woman, or for anybody, it is a big jump from part-time employee to owning the whole business.

"But why not?" says Mable Dean, president of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club.

The club, in co-operation with the provincial government's women's economic rights branch, is sponsoring a one-day workshop Saturday on operating your own business. It is being held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at First United Church auditorium, Balmoral and Quadra.

Originally the seminar was going to discuss part-time jobs available in Victoria, Dean said.

But at the September meeting of the club, several Victoria women discussed the problems and challenges they encountered in running their own businesses.

"That got us thinking about the opportunities of starting businesses in Victoria," she said.

The club got encouragement from the provincial government's department of economic development, which had participated in similar workshops in other B.C. points.

This is believed to be the first workshop in Victoria organized by women on the topic of owning a business.

While women are organizing the seminar, it is open to both men and women. Almost one third of the early registrants are male.

Figuring prominently in the program will be Eileen Caner, co-ordinator of the provincial government's women's economic rights branch, and Jen Mohart, vice president of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club.

Dean said a woman faces a big decision when she decides to go to work or whether to start her own business or work for somebody else.

"It is largely a question of personality. Some people don't mind taking orders from somebody else while others want to be independent," she said.

"A job is only as good as your employer. Some women work hard only to find that the boss has promoted his son-in-law over them and this can be discoraging.

"It can be a soul-satisfying thing to run your own business and it gives a sense of independence."

Often a hobby such as houseplants can develop into a business opportunity. A store can be leased and opened with a small cash outlay.

The seminar opens at 10 a.m. Saturday with a panel discussion by women in business in Victoria.

In the afternoon, government officials will discuss the various types of financial and technical assistance available in starting up a business.

The $5 registration fee includes lunch.

Dean stressed that the workshop is open to men as well a women and hoped that the registration would end up with about an equal balance.

FISH BROTH

- 2 pounds fresh fish bones, preferably with head, but gills removed (see note)
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 1 cup dry white vermouth
- 6 cups water.

Combine all the ingredients and simmer, uncovered, about 30 minutes. Strain.

Yield: About seven cups.

Note: Mrs. Benson, who has an ample supply of fish at all times, uses one whole two-pound weakfish instead of fish bones. After cooking, fish is discarded.

Revealing Letters

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a military man for 12 years. I started snooping through his things when he was home last and found some love letters from three different women. One lives in the Canal Zone, one lives in Virginia and the other lives in Florida.

All three women are under the impression that he is married but separated from me, which is a lie.

Their letters contain some sickening descriptions of their sexual encounters. The women in the Canal Zone keeps referring to the "day we can be together forever."

Abby, my husband has told me repeatedly that he loves me, and has never indicated that he wants out of this marriage.

Some of those letters were written within the last three months. I can't understand how a grown man would continue to keep three women on the string while still married.

Right now he is overseas, but when he gets home I am going to let him have it.

I neither love nor trust him anymore, but I have three children who need a father. What do you advise?—FED UP

DEAR FED: I agree, children do need a father, but a woman needs a husband she can trust and depend upon. Confront your husband with the evidence and ask him for an explanation.

It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting to restore your marriage. If that's what you want, I hope you're up to it.

DEAR ABBY: We recently attended a beautiful outdoor wedding in a park.

The bride and groom made up their own vows and spoke them aloud to each other, but there was no minister present to pronounce them man and wife.

Is it legal in California for a couple to marry themselves? —WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. And it's not legal anywhere else either.

Southern Cooking Judged Best

CRAIG CLAIBORNE

NAG'S HEAD, N.C. (NYT) — It has long been our persuasion that Southern cooking in the home, whether it be soul food or conventional bourgeois dishes such as beaten biscuits with baked country ham is the best and most varied in the United States. We grew up in the land of corn pones and hominy grits, and we can hear the hoots and jeers of our colleagues when we say that we have an unabashed passion for the likes of hush puppies and spoon bread.

Since fried chicken, collards and mustard greens were mother's milk, so to speak, in our infancy, we never dreamed that the day would arrive when we would state that some of the best Southern cooking we've ever tasted would be cooked by a Yankee born and bred.

And by someone who, until 11 years ago had never so much as put her hands to a saucepan or skillet. Her name is Laura Benson, whose husband, Robert, is an artist.

"I had never cooked a day in my life," Mrs. Benson declared, "until I married Bob. I started cooking with Dione Lucas, French, of course, and subsequently I took seven courses in Chinese cooking with Virginia Lee."

The Bensons spend approximately six months a year here, the remainder of the year in New York where she has a weekly yoga session with Yogi Vithaldas, who has in turn a considerable reputation as an Indian cook. Thanks to his influence, the young woman has a number of Indian dishes in her repertoire. They also have the services of a marvellous Southern cook, Phenas Manuel, the source of many of Mrs. Benson's Southern dishes.

At our request the majority of the dishes sampled in the Benson home were in-depth Southern. Someone had given the hostess a dozen quail, and scuppernong, a traditional Southern grape with a pronounced fruity flavor, was available, so we dined on braised quail with Port wine and scuppernongs.

There was a distinguished Nag's Head fisherman's soup made with a local catch (some of the seasonings, which included saffron, fennel and turmeric, were a trifle exotic for the traditional Southern kitchen). There were sauteed, fresh soft shell crabs and a delectable, hearty fish stew made with channel bass, also known as drum and red drum.

The most Southern of dishes included fried catfish; Phenas Manuel's custard-like corn meal and egg bread; the most gossamer hush puppies we've ever eaten: a she-crab soup, thus called in that it is traditionally made with the roe or coral that comes only from female crabs; and steamed rutabagas.

NAG'S HEAD FISHERMAN'S SOUP

½ cup olive oil
2 cups finely chopped onion
1½ cups seeded, chopped sweet green or red pepper
1 cup cubed carrot
1 small, hot green or red pepper, chopped, optional
1½ pounds potatoes, peeled and cut into quarter-inch slices
2 pounds fresh red, ripe tomatoes, cored and cut into half-inch cubes or use four cups imported canned tomatoes, chopped
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
7 cups fish broth (see recipe below)
2 teaspoons loosely packed stem saffron
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon fellen seeds, crushed
¼ teaspoon turmeric
1 thin slice orange peel, white pulp removed
1 teaspoon sugar
1½ pounds fresh scallops, cut in half or quartered, if desired
1 whole, cleaned two-pound salt water fish such as white fish, preferably with head on.
1¼ pounds raw shrimp, the smaller the better, shelled and deveined scrubbed to remove sand.
24 Littleneck clams, well

1. Heat the oil in a kettle and add the onion, sweet pepper, carrot and the hot pepper if used. Cook, stirring, about five minutes. Add the potatoes and cook about one minute. Add the tomatoes and salt and pepper to taste. Add the fish broth and bring to a boil.

2. Combine the saffron with the tablespoon of water and add it. Add the fennel, turmeric, orange peel and sugar. Simmer about 10 minutes and add the scallops and the whole fish. If the fish won't fit, cut it into pieces.

3. Cover and simmer five minutes. Add the shrimp and clams and cook about 10 minutes or until clams open. If desired, the clams may be steamed separately and added to the soup, layered with the other ingredients. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve piping hot.

Yield: Six servings.

NAG'S HEAD CHANNEL BASS OR RED DRUM STEW

2½ pounds skinned and boned bass
6 strips bacon
2½ cups thinly sliced onions, about one pound
6 tablespoons flour
2 hot, fresh, red or green peppers, chopped, or ¼ teaspoon or more cayenne pepper added to taste
3 cups peeled potatoes, cut into one-inch cubes, about one pound
5 cups water, approximately
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
Finely chopped parsley for garnish.

1. Cut the fish into one-inch cubes and set aside.

2. Cut the bacon into fine cubes and add it to a Dutch oven. Cook the bacon, stirring, until crisp.

3. Add the onion to the Dutch oven and cook, stirring, until wilted. Sprinkle with flour and stir. Add the hot peppers and potatoes.

4. Add the water, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Add salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about 15 minutes or until the potatoes are nearly tender. Watch carefully and stir often from the bottom to prevent sticking. The stew should be thick, but it may be desirable to add a little water.

5. Add the cubed fish and cover. Cook about six minutes. Serve in hot soup bowls sprinkled with parsley.

Yield: Six servings.

By MARY MOORE

On September 20th I sent out an S.O.S. to our readers for a recipe for a dessert called Bienenstich for Anne W. to whom it had been served on a Lufthansa flight.

To date I have received 86 replies and they are still coming in. My grateful thanks to all.

There are three different versions of it and because they sounded so mouth-watering I selected one and made it. It was gorgeous.

Roughly translated Bienenstich means Bee's Sting but I think it should be Bee's Kiss. A rich, delectable torte.

BIENENSTICH (Bee's Sting)

Batter:
¼ c. butter
½ c. sugar
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. almond extract
2 c. SIFTED cake-and-pastry flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. milk

Topping:
½ c. butter
½ c. sugar
¾ c. slivered or coarsely chopped almonds
2 tsp. vanilla
2 tbsp. milk

Filling:
1 c. half and half cream (10%) (first amount)
¼ c. sugar
3 tbsp. half and half cream (10½) (second amount)
3 tbsp. corn starch
½ c. butter
1 tbsp. vanilla

To make Batter cream together butter and sugar until light. Beat in egg, vanilla and almond extract. Sift together the sifted cake and pastry flour, baking powder and salt and add to bowl alternately with the milk, beating. This batter resembles a rich, drop cookie dough. Spread into two well-buttered 8" layer cake tins. These must be teflon-lined OR pans which have a swivel bar in bottom to facilitate removal of cake. Do not bake yet.

To make Topping in a shallow heavy medium pan over medium heat melt the butter, add the sugar and almonds and stir constantly until it bubbles all over — about 2 or 3 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in the vanilla and milk. Spoon this syrup EVENLY all over top of unbaked cakes. It is thin and runny but do not worry. All turns out well. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 15 minutes. Do not overbake or syrupy edges will harden. Carefully turn out on cake racks.

To make Filling in a small saucepan bring just to boil (watch it!) the 1 cup cream and the sugar. Remove from heat. Stir together to a smooth paste the milk and corn starch. Return pot to burner and stir this paste into milk over medium heat until thick. CHILL. Beat the butter with the vanilla until creamy. When milk mixture is cold beat on high into the butter until light and airy like whipped cream — at least 5 minutes.

Put one cake, almond side up, on large fancy cake plate. Cover with cold filling. (It will be nearly ¾" thick.) Cover with second cake, almond side up and let rest for an hour or so before serving. Use a sharp knife to cut into wedges. Serves 8 generously.

This Bienenstich cuts neatly and is delicious the next day if kept cold. The results are worth all of the cost, time and energy. Another beauty for your torte file.

Produce Exhibit Brought Family from U.K. to City

elizabeth forbes

A Follow-Up — The beginning of this month I wrote about colorful fruit and vegetable exhibits assembled in the old museum wing of the Legislative Buildings in the early 1900s.

These displays appeared at exhibitions and in railway stations across Canada, the United States and overseas, to interest people in coming to British Columbia to settle.

A few days ago I received an interesting follow-up to that column, when Lottie Morrison phoned to tell me her family came here from London, England, as a result of those exhibits.

He was asked by J. H. Turner, British Columbia's Agent-General in London, of that day, if he would take charge of any fruit and vegetable exhibits sent over from here.

The first display to arrive was one that gained considerable acclaim at a Regina exhibition in 1910. Briers set it up in London and also in Glasgow.

After a couple of years of assembling and showing further exhibits, he decided to emigrate and at the urgings of Turner, chose Victoria as his new home.

He got work with Victoria Transfer, driving what was called a "hack" (horse-drawn taxi) from a stand in the middle of Government Street, opposite a pioneer firm of Tye and Wheeler.

Very soon he sent for his son Frank, then 14 years of age. He travelled out here alone and immediately went to work in the Westholme Hotel.

Later he moved to the Victoria fire department where he remained for 42 years (except for a stint in the Second World War) eventually rising to the position of fire chief.

In 1914 the rest of the Briers family arrived — mother and three girls, Lottie, Helen and Edith — just before the father joined up and went back overseas in the First World War.

A family home was established at the corner of Cook and Pandora and there the young people grew up.

Eventually they all married. Lottie, who now lives in the Executive House became Mrs. Stanley Morrison; Helen married Fred Tubman and Edith exchanged vows with George Hardenburgh. They both live in San Francisco, where Edith has been employed by the telephone company there for 47 years.

Corn Dollies — You may remember, back in early October, I told you about some old-time harvest customs that still prevail in some parts of England and Scotland, including the making of corn dollies, for luck in the homes and in the fields.

Well, when I was down east recently I discovered Ontario knows all about making corn dollies, too.

Everywhere on the Niagara Peninsula and up as far as London, I saw them in the windows of homes, attached to doors, hooked above the entrances to barns and hanging over many gates.

Nearly all of them were made with an ear of Indian corn (black and yellow kernels) as a base, then decorated and tied with wheat, barley or some other grain.

A Question — Last Sunday I sat beside Rev. Douglas Kendell, padre of the Clan MacLeod Society of Vancouver Island, at its 20th annual dinner meeting in Holyrood House.

In conversation the padre asked if I had ever heard of a Calathumpian Parade.

Seems he remembers hearing those words used back in his boyhood days on an Ontario farm, to describe parades that, he thinks, included clowns, animals, horses and people.

Yet, although he has thumbed through every dictionary he can lay his hand on, and questioned many who originally came from Ontario, he cannot find anything or anyone to clear up the mystery of the word "Calathumpian" for him.

If any reader of this column can help to sort out his memories and give him the actual meaning of that word, he would appreciate it. His telephone number is 477-6622.

The 128-page bilingual booklet "How your 1975-76 Tax Dollar is Spent" ("Ou va l'argent de vos impots") is a brief summary in non-technical terms of this year's government spending program.

The booklet has three chapters. The first outlines total government expenditures. Chapter two gives information about the major continuing and new government programs and the last chapter explains how the government has to account to Parliament for its planned expenditures.

If you want to get an idea about the many levels of activity of our government, this publication will open your eyes.

Franco's Dying Words: Remain Alert

Times News Services

MADRID — In a political last testament, typed on his deathbed, General Franco warned Spain that its enemies were on the alert and that the authoritarian policies of his 36-year rule must continue.

★ ★ ★

His typing was crude and there were many typographical errors but his last testament proved that he was an authoritarian in death as he was in life.

It made no concession to widespread demands for democratic reform, warned of the threat of Communism, declared Franco's enemies Spain's enemies and urged Spaniards to rally round Juan Carlos for God and country.

It left no doube he wished Spain more of the same policies that brought economic prosperity but kept remote such freedoms as those of assembly, political choice and the press.

"I ask forgiveness from all as I wholeheartedly forgive those who declared themselves my enemies, without me having considered them as such," Franco wrote.

"I believe and I wish not to have had other enemies than those who were enemies of Spain.

"Do not forget that the enemies of Spain and of Christian civilization are on alert. Stand guard . . .

"I wish in my last moment to link the names of God and Spain and embrace you all, to cry out together, for the last time, in the immence of death, 'Arriba Espana, Viva Espana.'" — up Spain, long live Spain. There were immediate stirrings from the outlawed Communist and socialist parties expressing hope for political reforms and anguish that violence will follow the dictator's death.

★ ★ ★

There were mixed emotions in Madrid. Some people wept openly on the streets, others looked to the future with renewed hope.

Franco's belief that Spain's 35 million citizens are not mature enough to manage an open society is certain to be tested more vigorously under Juan Carlos, a soft spoken, handsome aristocrat who spent more time at backgammon tables and on bird hunts than at state councils Juan Carlos will be sworn in as Captain-general on Sunday.

Any moves by Juan Carlos at major reform will certainly be braked by his heavy inheritance of Francoists at the top of the government, military and internal security commands and industry. These loyalists will seek to limit the new king's fredom of action.

Juan Carlos already has stated that he will not allow the once strong Communist and Anarchist parties of Spain to take part in any return to democratic processes.

The death of Franco has also removed the biggest single barrier to Spain's entry into the European family of nations, European common market officials said today in Brussels.

★ ★ ★

Officials at the Brussels headquarters of the ECM and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, however said Spain must show signs of liberalization before membership in either organization can be considered.

In London, reaction to the death was bitter. First comment came from a Labor member of Parliament who spoke of the "most unmourned corpse in Europe.

Robin Corbett urged the British government not to be represented at the funeral and said he will introduce a parliamentary motion noting Franco's death "without regret."

★ ★ ★

Michael Stewart, a former foreign minister in Harold Wilson's labor party, said Franco "was responsible for the overthrow of the Spanish republic and establishing a fascist dictatorship.

"He was in strongest sympathy with Hitler and Mussolini and in consequence an evil influence both at home and abroad. I don't think there's much more to say than that."

There was no immediate reaction from the Vatican to the news, but sources said Pope Paul would send his condolences later today.

Relations between the Franco regime and the Vatican reached an all-time low two months ago when Franco refused to heed a papal decree for mercy for the five urban guerrillas condemned to death.

Dissent Mounting Over Bangor Trident Base

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

If the American military juggernaut has its way, within four years the Trident submarine, called "the most destructive instrument ever conceived by the mind of man" will be based less than 60 miles from Victoria.

But it won't be without a fight from a growing number of conscientious objectors who shudder at the thought of the awesome, death-dealing potential of the submarine, the epitome of modern warfare.

Some sign of that mounting dissent and concern was apparent Wednesday when nearly 700 people attended a noon hour forum on the subject at the University of Victoria's old gym.

They came to hear UN disarmament specialist Dr. William Epstein, ex-missile designer Robert Aldridge, and Victoria MLA David Anderson condemn the U.S. proposal to create in Bangor, Wash., the world's largest nuclear arsenal.

What the speakers brought was a gloomy message:

—that the U.S. militarists are bent upon developing the Trident weapon system, the most lethal ever-built;

—that the system will involve initially 10 subs, each one-tenth of a mile long, weighing 16,000 tons, twice the displacement of any other sub built, and able to carry 24 multiple nuclear-headed missiles;

—that together the missiles will be able to destroy 4,080 cities and military sites almost simultaneously each with a blast seven times that which ripped into Hiroshima;

—that plans are being developed for a second generation Trident in the late 80s — weapons with even greater destructive capability and even greater range and accuracy.

Aldridge who was in charge of the design sector for the Polaris and Trident at Lockheed, said he found the prospects of Trident so frightening he quit his job to devote full time to telling "just how bad this menace is."

Epstein called the Trident program "a form of international insanity."

"If a person showed this kind of behavior he'd be committed . . . but you can't commit a government."

He said the cost of one submarine has been estimated at $1.8 billion and the cost of 10 will exceed B.C.'s gross provincial product for the current year.

"There's no reason for it. It's no good, a waste of money and worse it can destroy us all."

He said Trident was unnecessary, it will give the U.S. more capacity, more overkill that they could possibly ever need.

He noted that already the U.S. has enough arms to destroy the 218 cities in Russia with a population over 100,000 not once but 36 times over.

"Russia can do the same thing to cities in the U.S. . . . but only 12 times over," he said.

Epstein warned Trident only served to escalate the nuclear arms race, that it would weaken detente, and that it increased the danger not only of other countries acquiring nuclear weapons but also of terrorist groups acquiring them too.

He could see no reason for the establishment of the base in Bangor and chided the failure of the Canadian federal government to protest the development.

He said he had recently been in Ottawa and was "appalled by the complacency, apathy and ignorance displayed there."

He derided the official federal view that the question of nuclear arms can only be resolved by the superpowers.

"No one has the right to bring a tiger on his land which will tear his neighbor to pieces," he said.

Anderson, a former MP with an interest in environmental and defence matters, said the base in Bangor will make the Strait of Juan de Fuca "one of the most heavily travelled waterways in the world — an industrial canal."

He said the installation will mean Bangor will probably become the first target if war ever broke out and that would result in the total annihilation of life in the Pacific Northwest.

He said the issue was above party politics and that the objective was to get a change in government policy not by antagonism but by focusing attention on the dangers and making people aware of the concern.

Epstein gave a blueprint for action:

"I would hope Canada would try to persuade the U.S. to stop the program because it is cheaper and better to stop now.

"But if the U.S. won't then we should ask for a delay — to postpone the program to see what happens next in the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT).

"If the U.S. still thinks the the program is necessary then we should encourage them to put the missiles in the Poseidon sub and not create a new line.

"But if they go ahead anyway then we should urge they move the base away from Bangor to Guam, Hawaii or the Aleutians . . . anywhere but here."

At the conclusion of the forum James Douglas, spokesman for Pacific Life Community, said a resolution asking the government to protest the Trident "on moral, ecological and territorial grounds" would be introduced in the House of Commons Dec. 16 or 17.

Moderates Take Power

LONDON (Reuter) — Moderates here regained control of Britain's second largest union, the 1,170,000-member Amalgamated Engineering Workers, after winning two vacant seats on the seven-man policy-making executive.

Power had been divided with three moderates and three extremists on the executive. Leftwing president, Hugh Scanlon, held the tie-breaking vote, taking an increasingly militant line on pay policy and other issues.

Dismal Progress At Olympics Bared

QUEBEC (CP) — Government spokesmen painted a dismal picture of construction progress on the main stadium for the 1976 Montreal Olympics in the Quebec national assembly Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the assembly gave second reading — approval in principle — to a bill that would give the provincial government full control over construction and financing of the 70,000-seat main stadium, swimming pool and velodrome.

Solicitor-General Fernand Lalonde told the assembly the Games would be compromised without the government takeover but gave no assurances the seven-member Olympic Installations Board proposed by the bill could get the stadium built on time.

Lalonde, minister responsible for the Games, said the lower part of the stadium was five weeks behind schedule while installation of some of the seats, expected to be half-completed by Nov. 2, has not yet even started.

The minister said some other features of the revolutionary stadium designed by Paris architect Roger Taillibert are up to four weeks behind schedule.

Questioned by opposition Parti Quebecois members why the government waited so long before taking over from the City of Montreal, Lalonde said that in the past the city had proven it could handle major projects and "it was only proper for the government to have confidence until proof to the contrary.

"Now we have proof that unless the government intervenes energetically, it will be impossible to have the stadium sufficiently ready for the Games," he said.

PM Hints Montreal Will Win

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau obviously feels Montreal Alouettes will win the Grey Cup next Sunday.

He made this clear in the Commons Wednesday when Steve Paproski, a former Edmonton Eskimo football player who now is MP for Edmonton Centre, noted that Trudeau would be in Calgary for the national pro football final between the Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos.

"Is the . . . gentleman from Montreal giving odds on the outcome of the intellectual and cultural contest?" Paproski asked.

"I am not a betting man," replied the prime minister. "If I were, I would bet that the Polish-Canadian who sits opposite will be disappointed next Sunday."

Paproski then shouted:

"How about betting on the next election?"

This time there was no reply.

RICHARDSON FAVORS NEW TANK

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson says he will recommend the Canadian armed forces get a new tank, or at least a modernization of its corrent elderly machine.

He says if Canada is to purchase a new Boeing long range patrol aircraft (LRPA), some other government department will have to put up some of the estimated $1 billion cost.

He also says that defence should have a higher priority in government spending and indicates that use of the terms army, navy and air force may be on the way back in the defence lexicon.

Balky Yukon MD Jailed Again

OTTAWA (CP) — A Yukon doctor is in jail for the second time this year for refusing to pay premiums in the territory's medical care programs and Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), said Wednesday the doctor is being persecuted.

Dr. Stephen Wigby of Watson Lake has a practice of about 3,000 persons, about half of them from British Columbia. The B.C. border is nine miles from Watson Lake.

Nielsen, himself an opponent of the Yukon's medical care scheme, said in an interview: "The government shouldn't pick on him this way."

When he brought it up in the Commons, Health Minister Marc Lalonde replied that the court had put the doctor in jail, not the government.

Nielsen said afterward that it is "all very well" for the minister to say it is the court's responsibility, but he suggested it was at the government's instigation.

Dr. Wigby, in his early 50s, has had the Watson Lake practice for six to eight years.

"His objection is that he just doesn't believe that the government has a right to tell him he . . . has to register," Nielsen said.

The doctor, a general practitioner, spent three weeks in jail last spring because of his refusal to pay premiums.

Nielsen said the Yukon Medical Association has complained to the territorial government about its treatment of Dr. Wigby.

Basford Vows Speedier Justice

OTTAWA (CP) — Long delays between investigations of crimes and convictions of the guilty have caused low morale among police and a feeling among criminals they have immunity from prosecution, Justice Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday.

Winding up Commons debate on second reading of a government bill making 102 changes to the Criminal Code, the minister vowed action will be taken soon to reduce long delays in the administration of justice.

Basford also promised action on recommendations of the law reform commission, set up in 1970 as an advisory body to bring the law up to date.

The minister said amending the law from time to time is not enough to deal with changes needed in the justice system.

The B.C. Price Freeze: HOW IT'S WORKING

The British Columbia Price Freeze has been working since October 24th, 1975. Here are some statistics and recent news about the program.

DURING THE FIRST TWENTY DAYS:

- Nearly 1,500 people contacted the Department of Consumer Services to get additional information on the Price Freeze.
- Of these, about 800 were business people and about 700 were consumers.
- In the same period, consumers registered 91 formal complaints about price increases.
- The department resolved 81 of these complaints, and in each case merchants rolled back any unjustified price increases. The other ten cases were still under investigation.

Your support makes it work.

Few complaints about price increases have been received largely because consumers and businesses are fully supporting the freeze.

The Department of Consumer Services has met with representatives of all the major retail and wholesale food and drug outlets—including supermarket chains. All have pledged to support the freeze program.

Continued contact with these firms is helping to ensure that the price freeze operates with the least possible inconvenience for both sellers and shoppers.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR SHOPPERS

Shop for October 24th prices.

THE FREEZE COVERS FOOD AND BEVERAGES (except in restaurants), PRESCRIPTION DRUGS, AND PROPRIETARY AND PATENT MEDICINES—AT THE PROCESSING, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL LEVELS.

Any item in these categories offered for sale on October 24th at a particular store has its maximum permitted price frozen at that particular store. Prices may be reduced and raised again, as long as they do not go above their October 24th level.

So it will pay to shop for items covered by the freeze.

New items (brands, sizes, qualities, grades) not offered for sale on October 24th are not covered by the freeze. So once again, it will pay to shop around for the hundreds of regularly-stocked items which are covered by the freeze.

Ask to speak to the store manager if you have any questions. He or she should have a list of prices for all items offered for sale on October 24th.

Many of the retail chains are also placing special signs next to items which were not offered for sale on October 24th and are not covered by the freeze.

How to register complaints.

If you believe there has been an unjustified price increase, first bring the matter to the attention of the store manager.

If you are unsatisfied with the explanation, fill out the complaint form below and get it to us. Extra complaint forms are available at some supermarkets, and at offices of Government Agents and the Department of Consumer Services. If you are not near one of these offices, call your nearest Consumer Services office collect.

Husband-Wife Teams Of 'Lifters Nabbed

Two husband and wife shoplifting teams were fined by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Wednesay.

"I suppose you realize you're the second husband and wife team up for theft," the judge told Jillian Harriet Schwartz, 21, of 2824 Heath Drive, when she appeared following her husband.

Grant Robert Schwartz, 26, had also been charged with theft after the couple took jewelry valued at $12.72 from K-Mart on Saturday.

"It's a serious economic drain," said Ostler. "It raises the price of things for everybody, and contributes to an inflation that is already unmanageable."

He fined Schwartz $350 and gave his wife a suspended sentence and six months probation.

Just before them, Erich Adolf Rolshmandt, 26, and Linda Grace Rolshmandt, 23, of 1334 Pandora, had also pleaded guilty to theft.

They were arrested by The Bay security staff after each took a sweater without paying. The woman also took other small items, and total value of the goods was $33.45. Each was fined $200.

Hospital Test Deferred

A full-scale community hospital disaster exercise scheduled this month has been deferred to early January, Victoria General Hospital assistant executive director Dr. D. R. Carlow said Wednesday.

The test was to have involved members of the armed forces and 50 to 75 hospital personnel from Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Both hospitals were on alert this week for several hours in anticipation of a Korean ship landing with victims of a shipboard explosion. The vessel landed instead at Port Angeles because of a fuel situation.

Dr. Carlow said the hospitals were warned early Sunday they would receive 30 injured seamen, some with severe burns as a result of the accident which occurred off the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait.

Emergency plans went into effect and staff and equipment were readied to handle 15 victims at each hospital.

Six or seven doctors including a plastic surgeon, general surgeon, internal medicine specialist and general practitioners were on standby for Victoria General, where the burns unit was set up for treatment.

All ambulances of the Emergency Health Services were arranged for and nursing specialists were to meet the ship at Ogden Point docks.

Staff not already on duty were called at home and placed on standby. The emergency was cancelled at 1:30 p.m.

"It was an example of how local hospitals can co-operate to deal with these situations," the doctor said.

15 Vehicles Crash

DOLO, Italy (UPI) — Fifteen automobiles and trucks rammed into each other in a chain reaction collision that police blamed on reduced visibility caused by heavy smoke from a roadside pile of burning refuse. Six persons were killed and 15 injured.

EQUUS AUDITION ON SATURDAY

Certain conditions surrounded the granting of permission to Victoria producer Robert Price, to stage Peter Shaffer's electrifying play, Equus, in Victoria.

Stipulation by royalty owners was that it must be done on a professional basis governed by Equity rules.

The play, still-running major success in both London and New York, is scheduled to run Jan. 7-14 at McPherson Playhouse as a presentation of Price's new Pacific Theatre Society.

Price has engaged a prominent Canadian directorial talent, Tom Kerr, as director of the complex and brilliant piece.

Readings for it will be held Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Langham Court Theatre (on Langham Court, off Rockland Avenue.)

Price, who cleared with Bastion's Ed Stephenson before going ahead with the project, says that he would like to see as many Victorians as possible involved in the production, although he is also seeking actors outside the city.

Ribald Farce Slated for City

An anti-war farce replete with sexual double entendres for International Women's Year, is the medium chosen by Victoria Youth Theatre for their fall production.

Aristophanes' comedy, Lysistrata, rich in dialogue and in satire aimed at the absurdity of war, bites deep into the jugular vein of the Grecian people of his time, endlessly involved in fratricidal conflict.

The play will be performed at Springridge Theatre, Fernwood at Gladstone, starting tonight and running through Saturday, and Monday through Saturday next week. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The plot hinges on the action of Lysistrata who, fed up with their men's preoccupation with war, calls all the women together and brings about a pact whereby they lock themselves into the Acropolis, expropriate the treasury and refuse to have sex with husband or lover until all wars cease.

What then happens is highly comic but with an underlying impact that is deadly serious.

Victoria Youth Theatre was created to provide an area of training and encourage participation in theatre activity, both as performers and audience members, by the city's young people.

There is a nine-member board presided over by Judith Koltai. An annual $5 membership fee includes workshops and productions, and anyone between the ages of 16 and 30 may join. For further information call Michael Stephen, 477-8331.

Arion Choir Sets Concert for Fund

A concert by the popular Arion Male Voice Choir will be presented Friday at Centennial United Church, Gorge Road, on behalf of the church's choir fund.

Conductor and also one of two soloists, will be Bert Storar. The second soloist will be tenor Jim Oakman.

The program is a varied one, including many arrangements made for the choir by Storar. Among them is Dashing White Sergeant, Eriskay Love Lilt and Mozart's Gloria in Excelsis. In addition, a composition by Storar, Splendor sine occasu, will be sung.

Popular numbers included in the program are They Call the Wind Maria and Hernando's Hideaway.

Tickets at $2 general admission and $1 for senior citizens and children will be available at the door.

St. Luke's Stays with Winner

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It seems there's nothing like comedy to warm the cockles of audience's hearts and keep them coming back for more.

Through the years St. Luke's Players have dealt almost exclusively with comedy and they continue to draw substantial audiences to the hall on Cedar Hill Crossroad, happily able to ignore theatrical trends of the day.

Current choice, which began its short run Wednesday, is another Philip King piece entitled, I'll Get My Man. The English writer who fabricates farces on a formula basis and with sausage machine regularity, has provided St. Luke's with several successes.

Outstanding was See How They Run, which brought now professional actress Margaret Martin to a Victoria stage for the first time a number of years ago.

I'll Get My Man is another vicarage-based absurdity that introduces a couple of the same characters — Rev. Arthur Humphrey and the Bishop of Lax.

Adrian Jarvis has directed the play with an uninhibited approach to the farcical elements and has managed to maintain reasonable grouping and movement on the small stage.

But despite the vigor of a cast that includes such experienced comedians as Phyl and Ted Gaskell, the production often drags its feet as cues are left hanging in the air for unforgiveable seconds.

The show needs tightening up and in certain aspects, controlling.

Angela Pietarinen for instance, who plays a limited but key role, is allowed to perform it at such a pitch and speed that she becomes totally incoherent and objectionably shrill. In her last scene it was apparent that she is not only capable of being better but also charming.

The play continues tonight, Friday and Saturday with curtain at 8:15.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

At all levels of play, catastrophes occur in either the bidding, the play, or both. In today's deal we have an example of a defensive catastrophe in play. The West player, who shall remain anonymous, was one of our nation's top players. The deal arose in a national championship event a few years ago.

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ A J 10 5 2 ♥ A ♦ K J 8 7 4 ♣ 6 3
WEST ♠ 7 6 ♥ 5 ♦ A 9 5 2 ♣ A Q J 9 8 4		EAST ♠ Q 9 4 3 ♥ 10 6 2 ♦ 10 3 ♣ K 10 5 2
	SOUTH ♠ K 8 ♥ K Q J 9 8 7 4 3 ♦ Q 6 ♣ 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♦	4 ♣	4 NT	6 ♣
Pass	Pass	6 ♥	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

When West's premature sacrifice bid of six clubs brought a six-heart bid by South, West doubled for two reasons: (1) he didn't want his partner to possibly make a non-vulnerable sacrifice bid of seven clubs, and (2) he thought that with his two aces he could defeat South's slam.

But after doubling, West apparently was assailed with doubts concerning his opening lead. He evidently had a fixation of South ruffing his opening club lead, and then establishing North's diamond suit (North had bid diamonds) for a discard of a losing spade from the South hand. So he opened a spade, in the hope that he might be able to set up a spade trick in East's hand.

It is not difficult to see that the spade opening was like nectar and ambrosia (on toast) to declarer. He put up dummy's jack and East played low. A spade was next led to South's king. Then came a trump to the board's ace, and this was followed by the ace of spades. On it South discarded his singleton club. Eventually declarer lost a diamond trick to West's ace, but that was South's only loser.

In my opinion, West's decision not to lead the ace of clubs at trick one, for fear that it might get trumped, was faulty. In making this decision, he failed to come up with a logical inference from a certain bid made by South, namely, the latter's four no-trump Blackwood call. While inferences do not come with a guarantee, it is the relatively rare day when the four no-trump bidder has a void in some suit, since an ambiguity invariably develops when the responder shows aces: the four no-trumper doesn't know which aces responder has.

Thus it seems that West should have led the club ace at trick one — and the ace of diamonds would then have taken the setting trick.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
Astrological Forecast for Friday, Nov. 21

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What was a "quiet atmosphere," could be disrupted. You will find that family members, older persons all seem to know what is best for you—and all may be speaking simultaneously. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take special care in traffic. You could be expending too much energy, trying to be here, there and everywhere. Relative is in mood to argue. Don't compound error. Remember you have to face others—and yourself—in morning. An idea could be sparked into viable concept.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Highlight ability to be flexible. You get news from people at a distance. You get money for efforts, where in recent past you were getting pats on the back. Insist on being treated as a mature person, one who is capable and worthy of compensation. You'll understand!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You get "action" regarding favorite projects. Your personality sparkles, arouses envy and may result in your being called in for consultation. Avoid taking unnecessary chances around machinery, electricity. Be more cautious than daring. You are due for an honor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What was feared could now be welcomed. You are going to emerge from cocoon. Means you look about, test, experiment and realize that "secret fears" were groundless. Gemini, Virgo could figure prominently. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friends surface, kicking, screaming, and letting you know what's best for you. Retreat with dignity! Make adjustments in domestic area. If diplomatic, you could score victory over odds that are awesome.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on achievement, legal go-ahead, compromise with partner or mate. Be positive of terms. Take nothing for granted. Some people seem to feel you will stand for anything. Disabuse them of this notion. Maintain balance, dignity and sense of value.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Ability to communicate is stressed. You get organized by being "in touch" with various factions, viewpoints. Older, serious individual is willing to lend benefit of experience. Accept without diminishing your own style, principles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let go of what has been blocking progress. Realize you have life of your own to live. Carrying another's burden is not constructive. Accent on money as it affects partner, mate. Personal involvement tests your ability to be grown up where emotions are concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may feel rebellious in connection with possible legal restrictions. Key is to collect data, to wait and observe, to gain allies through dynamic presentation of case. Avoid basing actions on impulse. Give logic "equal time."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relative who complains of work and health, may be crying out for understanding, sympathy and love. Know it, time your moves, be supportive without becoming inextricably involved. Another Aquarian figures prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Creative activities intensify—member of opposite sex plays key role. Accent on change, variety, travel, communication, style—and the reaching of understanding with young person. Gemini, Sagitarius could be in picture.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have comedic sense, love to travel, have artistic ability, a possible weight problem and a fascination for Gemini, Sagittarius persons. August could have been your most important month this year. You will be more independent in 1976, will make new starts in new directions — and July will be outstanding.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"When d'you plan to finish the rec room?" asked Ann. "It looks like a rectangular barn now with no furniture and the floor not done."

Greg smiled. "It's the vinyl tiles. I'm trying to decide between 9-inch squares at 19 cents and 12-inch at 29 cents each," he replied. "no wastage with either and you prefer the smaller tiles, but they'd cost us $33.11 more for the complete floor."

What were the dimensions of that room?

Thanks for an idea to F. C. Asbury, Toronto, Ontario.

Same Charges Facing Cleaver

CLEAVER

SAN DIEGO — It was a tearful reunion for Eldridge Cleaver and his older sister. They discussed the former Black Panther leader's future in the United States now that his seven year self-imposed exile is over.

"He looked fine, just fine," said Wilhelmina Cleaver, 48, at the end of her 90 minute conversation with her brother Wednesday at the Federal Correctional Centre.

"He looks a little older. In seven years all of us got older."

Cleaver, 40, was apprehended Tuesday in New York after his flight from Paris, on a charge of travel to avoid confinement. He now faces the same assault and attempted murder charges that forced him to flee the country in 1968.

In Oakland, Alameda county district attorney Lowell Jensen said he planned to reinstitute the charges filed after the April 6, 1968, shooting in which Cleaver was wounded and Bobby Hutton, 17, was killed.

"It was travel to avoid persecution, because at that time that's exactly what it would have been," Miss Cleaver said. She said her brother believes he will get fair treatment from California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

"He feels Brown is a fair man," she explained, "that he has demonstrated an interest in the little man, the underdog, that kind of thing."

★ ★ ★

LONDON — Prince Andrew, 15, second in line to the British throne, is to learn gliding at the Royal Aid Force pilot's school in Milltown, Scotland.

★ ★ ★

LOS ANGELES — Marjoe Gortner, boy evangelist turned actor, has signed for two movies with American International Pictures, the first to be The Good of the Gods, based on the H. G. Wells novel.

Gortner appeared on television in The Marcus-Nelson Murders and The Gun and The Pulpit and played a psychotic in the feature film Earthquake.

LOS ANGELES — The disparate talents of Carol Burnett and Beverly Sills will be joined for a 1976 television special, Sills and Burnett at the Met.

Producer Joe Hamilton announced that the CBS special will be taped before an audience at the Metropolitan Opera House early in March. It will be Miss Burnett's only special of the 1975-76 TV season.

LOS ANGELES — A marijuana possession charge against Linda McCartney, wife of ex-beatle Paul McCartney, was dismissed Wednesday.

Municipal court judge Brian Crahan accepted a report that Mrs. McCartney, 33, had successfully undergone psychiatric counseling in London, a condition he imposed for dismissal.

★ ★ ★

RALEIGH, N.C. — Joan Little, the young black woman acquitted of murdering a white jailer she claimed sexually attacked her, has lost an appeal of a breaking and entering conviction.

Jerry Paul, her chief attorney, had earlier said he would appeal an adverse ruling.

A Chance To Push Button

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Jesse James Leftwich says he's a law abiding citizen but relishes the chance to live up to his notorious name just once.

Leftwich, 20, of Charleston, is one of hundreds of persons who have entered a local contest to push a button blowing up the Kanawha City bridge spanning the Kanawha River. The deadline for contest entries was Wednesday.

"Blowing up the bridge would be another shot 'heard round the world.'" he said.

The contest sponsored by the Charleston Daily Mail has captured the interest of potential bridge destroyers in this capital city and across the nation. Though the newspaper has asked contestants to tell why they want to blow up the bridge, the winner will simply be chosen by a drawing.

"I would gladly push the button to blow up the bridge because I once lost a skiff full of moonshine which smashed into one of the piers," quipped John Bradford, 66, of South Charleston.

"Because my sweet blonde-haired girlfriend is such a cute girl and we've been in love for years, I think blowing up the bridge will give me enough courage to ask her to marry me," said Paul Sowards, 48, of St. Albans.

"I never liked to cross the Kanawha City bridge after a mother and her two children went through the rail and were killed 45 years ago," said Mrs. Daliah Bostic, 53, Charleston.

And then there was this reply from 10-year-old Darrin Todd McCormick of Charleston who said he's "wrecked just about everything else. My mom said I could do it with a hammer, but I'd rather push a button."

CAROLINE CANCELS BIRTHDAY PARTY

LONDON (AP) — A transatlantic telephone call from Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis has led to cancellation of an elaborate 18th birthday party planned for her daughter Caroline next Thursday, says Daily Mirror gossip columnist Paul Gallan.

"The party is off. I'm not holding one next week, and that's that," Caroline is quoted as saying.

Callan says the call was "urgent and shrill" and added:

Winter Roses, Without Pruning

Newcomers to Victoria and district are puzzled by our roses. After living in part of Canada where roses are severly pruned by the beginning of November it is bewildering to find blossoms persisting and foliage in good condition at this time of year.

The questions being asked are:—should the blossoms and buds be removed? Should the leaves be pulled off to stop further growth? When do you prune roses?

True, the outer petals of the blooms have suffered frost and those are removed, but the perfume remains, the color is usually deeper than in heat of summer, and buds open more slowly, lasting longer.

So we leave all the buds, cutting them for the house as the petals start to spread. We also leave the foliage so that the plants can continue making a limited amount of food.

There is no doubt that this growth, which continues in any mild spell over winter, has an effect on the display produced the following June. As newcomers often tell me, our June display is not as grand as found on bushes that have been forced into a winter rest period.

However, it is the best we can do under the circumstances, and we are willing to forego masses of blooms in June if we can have the pleasure of a few blossoms until Christmas.

If we cut off these tips we should force growth buds to become active lower on the stems. A cold spell in January could kill these growths and very few, if any, growth buds would be left at the base to make foliage and new flowering shoots the following spring.

So we leave our bushes just as they are. New leaves will develop in mild spells, but these will be from tip growth buds; the lower buds will remain dormant. We just ignore these tip growths.

Around the end of March to the middle of April we do the regular pruning, because the new growth that follows immediately is safe from winter damage.

There is one exception to the no-pruning rule. In gardens exposed to gale force winds it is wise to reduce the length of stems which exceed 36 inches from soil level. Some vigorous varieties can have stems to five feet, and these should be shortened to about 36 to 40 inches in length to prevent the roots from being loosened in the soil as the winds tear at the long shoots.

Don't worry about your roses. They will take care of themselves if left alone. Enjoy any buds you can pick and marvel at a climate that allows roses to bloom until Christmas.

Room for development in the basement — large 100x150 foot lot with just enough trees to make it nice but leaves room for a garden and for parking several cars. Two separate outbuildings — a garage with cement floor, and another building with a cement floor and power to it which would make a good workshop. Asking $43,400. Second mortgage of up to $10,,000 available if required.

Beautifully treed lot, physically subdivided into 2 parts of about 15,000 square feet and 90,000 sq. ft. There is over 300' road frontage on both sides of the road. On hydro and water. FRANCO DEAD

Times News Services

MADRID — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's dictator for 36 years and Europe's longest surviving head of state, died early this morning after a month-long battle against heart failure, intestinal bleednig and paralysis, pulmonary infections, edema and other grave illnesses.

He was two weeks away from his 83rd birthday.

His death carries heavy symbolism as well as immediate importance for Spain and Europe. He was a living reminder of one of Europe's darkest moments in the 20th century, the rise of dictators espousing fascism in the 1930s.

Supported by Hitler and Mussolini, Franco began his reign in the bloodshed of the 1936-39 Spanish Civil War, which served as a testing ground for the Second World War at a cost of one million Spanish lives and enormous destruction.

Tories Demanding 18-Month Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Wednesday night drew the line against the federal anti-inflation program, threatening to fight it in Parliament unless it is shortened to an 18-month time limit.

In a speech to the National Press Club, he said he had gained support for his position at a meeting of the 95-member Progressive Conservative caucus earlier in the day.

Only two days earlier, the Conservatives joined the Liberals to crush a New Democratic Party motion condemning the controls by vote of 183 to 19. Stanfield had said in debate on the NDP motion that it was premature and clearly destructive."

Wednesday, he said his party's decision to oppose the legislation in its current form may weaken public acceptance of any pay and price restraints.

But he said the Conservatives cannot allow "patriotic consideration" to stand in the way of what he regards as a principle — the fear that "open-ended controls will lead to permanent controls."

If the government pushes through its proposed three-year program, the Conservatives will stop short of supporting any defiance of the selected wage and price controls with guides by organized labor, he said.

The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), representing two million workers, has promised to fight the controls program in every legal way possible. But the CLC has never specified whether it will defy the controls by strikes and lock-outs if they become law.

In Vancouver the Seafarers' International Union of Canada declared Wednesday that it will fight to prevent application of federal wage controls in the west coast towboat industry.

SIU president Roman Gralewicz said the union had been offered an "insulting package" and has no alternative but to break off negotiations and seek a strike vote.

An industry spokesman, however, said he fully expects that talks will continue.

The demonstration, organized by the 160,000-member Metropolitan Toronto Labor Council, was part of the campaign by organized labor against the controls.

Also on the labor front the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) today urged the fedeal government to freeze the prices of all goods and services until Feb. 1, 1976.

The alliance, which represents 170,000 federal government employees, said in a 25-page statement that the federal anti-inflation program cannot succeed without the support of organized labor.

But that support would not be forthcoming unless the federal program restricted price increases, corporate incomes and professional fees as severely as it restricts wages.

"If labor is to be drafted to fight the war against inflation, others who have eaten high off the hog of inflation for four years must not be allowed to escape the draft."

The association said "there are no effective price controls in the government proposals as they now stand."

BIG CARS HIT

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec motorists will have to pay as much as $30 more to drive large cars when they purchase their 1976 automobile licence plates.

STRIKE HARDSHIP

B.C. Cheques For Families

Families on welfare in B.C. will receive an advance from the provincial government equal to the family allowance money they would normally receive from Ottawa this month.

Federal authorities have announced that November family allowance cheques will not be delivered due to the postal strike and at the beginning of December families will receive double cheques for both months.

Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said today the delay would place a severe hardship on families already on social assistance so the province has decided to advance them the money.

The province will advance $20 per child for the approximately 50,000 children in social assistance families for a total advance of about $1 million.

The money will be deducted from future social assistance cheques some time in the new year, said Levi.

All human resources offices have been contacted about the emergency arrangements today and families on social assistance can pick up the advance where they have been picking up regular welfare payments—at government agents or human resources offices.

October family allowance cheques were sent out.

More than 240 Victoria letter carriers, meanwhile, completed thier appointed rounds today, delivering more than 50,000 federal pension cheques to recipients.

The one-day respite from the nation-wide postal strike, now in its fifth week, went off without a hitch, post office spokesman Buz Sawyer said.

The striking Canadian Union of Postal Workers withdrew its picket lines from post offices on Vancouver Island today so members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada could enter the offices to pick up the cheques for delivery.

Sawyer said the letter carries received a great reception from the general public and everyone greeted them with "big smiles."

The cheques were sorted by CUPW members who earlier

1-in-4 Youngsters 'Moderate Drinkers'

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — About one of every four 13-year-olds in the United Stttes can be considered a "moderate" drinker while only 38 per cent never drink alcoholic beverages at all, according to a Research Triangle Institute study.

Results of the study, based on a survey of classrooms across the country last year, were released Wednesday.

The study said about half the students reported that they had been drunk within the past year and the ranks of teetotaling teen-agers dwindled steadily with age from a high of 38 per cent at age 13 to less than half that by age 17.

A moderate drinker is defined as one who has one or two drinks in a week's time and occasionally gets intoxicated.

Thirst Comes First

OTTAWA (CP) — If delegates at a four-day conference on alcoholism here found themselves a little thirsty, they could nip just outside the conference room to a portable bar thoughtfully provided by the hotel.

"The hotel offered it to us and we accepted it.

"I think it is interesting to note that originally two bars were set up, but they have received so little use that the hotel closed one down."

The conference, on occupational alcoholism and drug abuse, also was sponsored by Humber College of Toronto.

UNFAMILIAR but especially welcome sight for Victoria's senior citizens today was their friendly neighborhood postman, delivering goodies in the form of federal old-age pension cheques. Smiles for postman Steve Henry from Alva and Phyllis Wetherell, 519 William Street, were a typical reception as letter carriers—laid off because of the strike—were recalled today for the special job. Bennett Grabs Thunder Of B.C. Rail Proposal

MERRITT (CP) — Social Credit leader Bill Bennett beat Premier Barrett to the punch Wednesday by releasing details of a major federal government rail offer for northwestern British Columbia.

In Dawson Creek, Barrett said Wednesday he would make a major announcement today on coal development in northern British Columbia.

The premier said that during a visit to Terrace he will have an announcement of good news for all of northern B.C. concerning coal development.

Barrett also said the announcement will also include the role of the B.C. railway in the development.

Bennett said the premier cannot sign the multi-million-dollar agreement because it would be unethical, now that an election has been called.

When Barrett was asked late Wednesday about Bennett's revelation, Barrett would say only that he would make the announcement today in Terrace as originally planned. He would make no further comment.

Bennett had an eight-page telegram from federal Transport Minister Otto Lang stamped "Received Oct. 29, Premier's Office." The provincial election was declared four days later.

The telegram says that under a joint Canadian National-British Columbia-Railway revenue-and-construction sharing program, the federal government is prepared to give the B.C. government $117.5 million over two years.

The federal government is seeking a final understanding with the province on an Ashcroft-to-Clinton line connecting BCR and CNR and an intensified development of the Port of Prince Rupert.

The telegram from the transport minister proposes that the CNR line which now runs 456 miles from Prince George to Prince Rupert on the coast, connect with the BCR through a new line north of Terrace, which lies between the two cities.

About three-quarters of the extension has been completed and an additional stretch of 125 miles from Dease Lake to Lower Post at the Yukon border is to be constructed.

The telegram says Ottawa wants four changes made in an agreement on new northern rail lines reached with the B.C. government in 1973.

Why Save The Bacon?

OTTAWA (CP) — The trouble is that no ones seems to give a damn about it, Liberal Senator J. Harper Prowse of Alberta is talking about the seven pounds of peameal back bacon on his desk.

What bothers the senator is the price. He bought the bacon last Saturday in an Ottawa Loblaws store in three different packages. One was $1.99 a pound, another was $2.38 and the third was $3.35.

The senator has run into one brick wall after another as he tried to draw attention to the fact that a store was selling packages of bacon at three different prices.

Wednesday, as a last-ditch effort, he even carried it to the Liberal caucus.

But there was little reaction to his appeal for action.

"I don't understand why people are not more concerned about this," he said in a later interview. "Perhaps this explains why we're in the trouble we are in — nobody gives a damn."

$54,000 FOR PEPIN

OTTAWA (CP)—Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the federal anti-inflation board, gets paid $1,038 a week, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Vice-chairman Beryl Plumptre gets $770 a week and the five, part-time regional members of the board are paid $200 a day when they meet.

Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet announced the pay rates. When the board was set up a month ago, Pepin said he could not be precise about his salary and as late as last week board officials told a reporter they did not know how much their boss was being paid.

Ouellet said Pepin, at an annual rate of $54,000, is receiving less than the top scale for his rank. He has been designated the pay of a second-level deputy minister or DM2 category, with a salary range between $47,500 and $60,500 a year.

Egg Board Faces Challenge

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Anti-Inflation Board will challenge the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) to justify a recent one-cent-a-dozen increase in egg prices.

Beryl Plumptre, vice-chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, told the Commons finance committee yesterday that although "farm gate" prices are exempt from the government's controls program, she believes the egg price increase should have to be justified.

Plumptre said the egg price increase had been authorized at a time when feed prices were declining by $9 a ton.

Such a decline in production costs should have resulted in a two-cent-a-dozen decline in egg prices, she stated.

Feed accounts for 50 per cent of egg production costs, she told the committee. And if the cost of purchasing production quotas in not included, feed amounts to 70 per cent of the egg production costs.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said today the anti-inflation board is welcome to "monitor anything it wants" but it will have no authority over CEMA.

The minister made the statement at a meeting of the Commons finance committee, which began clause-by-clause consideration of the legislation establishing the government's anti-inflation program.

New USC Fund Drive Launched

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, is in town until Saturday to launch the Victoria portion of the annual USC fund raising campaign.

She will speak at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Friday at St. John's Amublance Society Auditorium, 941 Pandora.

The topic will be "Entering the Fourth Decade of USC Service Around the Globe".

A special appeal will be made for volunteers.

Dr. Hitschmanova founded the USC in 1945, with headquarters in her own small apartment on Cooper Street in Ottawa, where she filled the roles of secretary, receipt writer and fund-raiser.

Spurred on by the knowledge that thousands of children, mutilated by bombs or scarred by memories, needed aid in war-savaged Europe, Dr. Hitschmanova appealed to Canadians for help.

In February of 1946 the UBC was officially recognized as a non-denominational, charitable organization without church affiliation.

By the end of 1946, Dr. Hitschmanova was able to report $46,000 raised in cash and $134,000 worth of clothing and other gifts shipped to France and Czechoslovakia. Through the USC Foster Parent Scheme Canadians were already supporting 127 children's convalescent homes in Czechoslovakia.

Today more than 21,000 children have passed through USC-sponsored homes in 11 countries and the agency has raised a total of over $13 million in funds and over $12 million in gifts in-kind.

This year's USC campaign objective has been set at $2,600,000 in funds and gifts, before the Dec. 31 deadline. The goal for the Greater Victoria area is $25,000, $3,600 more than was raised in this area last year.

USC contributions can be made at all Banks of Nova Scotia on Vancouver Island.

'I Killed Those Ladies in Esquimalt'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Two witnesses told B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday that 21-year-old Larry Lovell confessed to them that he killed two women in Esquimalt Sept. 6, 1974.

Capt. Dennis Clooney, head of security and military police at Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, told the jury and Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie that Lovell asked to see him March 3 while in detention on other matters.

"As soon as I entered the cell he asked to be given civilian clothes and taken to the Esquimalt police department," Clooney testified.

"I asked him why. He said: 'Sir, can I sit down.' He sat on the edge of his bunk, his head in his hands, and cried very convulsively. It took a minute or two for him to compose himself."

Then, Clooney said, Lovell told him:

"Sir, I need help, it's got to me, I killed those ladies in Esquimalt."

Lovell, who had been an able seaman in the navy, is accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the deaths of Isabel Jane Plume, 51, and Isabel Florence Bevan, 62, at Ray's Food Market, 1325 Esquimalt Road.

Plume was found stabbed 47 times and Bevan was found stabbed 20 times.

Lovell's trial was in its seventh day Wednesday and for the first time in a week the jury returned to the courtroom.

The jury had been excused at noon last Wednesday while legal arguments were heard before Mr. Justice McKenzie. It was the longest voire dire, or trial within a trial, which several criminal lawyers could recall.

Clooney said he told Lovell to refrain from further comment and he made arrangements to go to Esquimalt police station.

Jack Enston, then a sergeant with the special investigation unit at CFB Esquimalt, told court he and Sgt. Doug Sproxton of the Esquimalt police interviewed Lovell after he arrived at the police station that day.

He said Lovell told them he threw the knife overboard from a ferry Sept. 13, 1974, and threw the shoes he wore Sept. 6 into a garbage can in Vancouver.

When Lovell went into the grocery store Sept. 6, the younger woman was in the back cutting cheese, he saw the till open and he took some money, Enston said.

"At this time the lady came in from the back of the store, with a knife in her hand, and she began yelling at him," Enston said.

"He took the knife from her, stabbed her in the stomach. The older lady came into the store. After this point he doesn't remember what happened because he went crazy."

After Sproxton arrested him, Lovell made a phone call to his father in Vancouver and said he didn't want to discuss the matter further until his father arrived via ferry.

"I asked him what prompted him to tell the truth," Enston said.

"He said he'd been bothered by his actions for some time and he felt it was time to tell the truth."

Lovell later said he went to the store to pay for groceries he had bought the day before. He also bought some gum.

He said he carried the knife, probably in a paper bag, and left it on a counter in his apartment on Constance Avenue. Later he put the knife in a drawer and took it from there Sept. 13 when he went to Vancover.

"He said he thought he had $60 extra in his pocket that he had taken from Ray's" (Food Store), Enston said.

He added that Lovell said his statement to Clooney was "blurted out" by him.

100 Million From Booze: Just One for the Damage

Item: Some interesting follow-ups to our visit to one chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, notably a fine article by Nicole Strickland, formerly of these parts, now with the Vancouver Province.

Reduced to the simplest statistics it appears that the provincial government realizes revenue of some $108 million a year from the sale of alcohol, but that "alcohol-related damage" in British Columbia is estimated at $250 million annually and the total amount spent by the provincial government for services for alcohol-related problems is only about one-and-a-quarter million dollars. Any way you look at it they're alarming figures.

Nicole quotes Dr. Christine Rodgers, program director for the alcohol and drug counselling service of the Vancouver Resources Board: "Everything is either AA or religion-oriented treatment and a lot of people that's not acceptable ... We're away behind every other province in Canada."

Another frightening statistic, this time from Human Resources Minister Norman Levi: One in every five persons in British Columbia is either directly or indirectly affected by alcoholism.

Item: Listening today to Geoffrey Spencer, public relations man for the province's community colleges, who has become the staunch advocate of a "press council" as the cure for the excesses of newspapers. It is, I think, an opinion held by many well-meaning men who have reason for their mistrust in the public prints, yet really offers no solution whatever.

Mayor Peter Pollen is another who sees this as a check on newspapers. In a recent note to me he asks: "Would a Press or Media Council be one small step toward upgrading the standards of Canadian newspapering? Not, of course, a Press Council with the very limited objectives of the 'toothless bulldog' in Britain, but rather a Council with a number of well-articulated objectives including the standards to which newspapering could aspire."

Having seen it at work in Britain, and in a limited way in Ontario, I cannot see it as a realistic solution. Apart from any limiting of the freedom of a newspaper, always the threat of the most well-meaning of censors, it ignores the avenues of rebuttal open to any who fancy themselves maligned. Through the courts there are the laws of libel and slander. Through the papers, themselves, there is the right to reply through a letter to the editor, a right that's rarely denied by any responsible journal.

Item: A fascinating report from Bill Ward, the editor of Wildlife Review, on seven weeks spent in roaming Britain, mainly about the pubs. Though Bill visited many of our old war-time haunts in London his notes on the country and provincial inns are equally enthusiastic and should be a guide for any Canadian going that way.

Of the Bentinck Arms, hard by the railway station at Nottingham, he writes: "You check in through the bar. There is no 'office' as we know it. In our case we arrived at about two in the afternoon. The pub closed at three. Shortly after that the landlady knocked on our door to say she was going out for the rest of the afternoon. She handed us the key to the bar, the only way in or out. I wondered aloud whether she might not worry about a guest getting into the available drinks. She looked puzzled for a moment and then said, 'Why, of course, if you need any refreshment just help yourself.'"

Most pubs offer bed and breakfast and Bill gives the example of a typical breakfast at the Lion and the Lamb, in York: Two fried eggs, sausages, a thick slice of ham, fried tomatoes, fried bread, mushrooms and toast, tea.

It was also at the Lion and the Lamb, after arriving in a pouring rain, that Bill announced he'd be taking off for the bus station for a tour of the city. When they arrived at the door there was the landlord in his private car. "Couldn't see you walking all that way in this rain," he explained.

Bill's conclusion: "There is a sort of personal obligation assumed by the landlords and the landladies that is quite touching."

Item: A perplexing report today from Duncan that the MacMillan Bloedel Co. Ltd. has cancelled its scholarship fund to the Cowichan School District, a grant, I gather, of a mere $500 annually.

The reason, of course, is that the company for the moment is not doing too well financially — "adverse market conditions," as the saying goes. Yet it does seem astonishing that such a token "gift", in the very heart of a valley that's contributed to those millions earned in happier times, should be withdrawn. "A poor gesture" as one of the school board trustees called it. That is the understatement of the year.

Andy Bigg, former publisher of the Cowichan Leader and the Pictorial, has put up the $500 as a temporary replacement until the big boys come to their senses. (The donation was made Oct. 15, several weeks before he made the decision to contest the B.C. election as an independent.) What makes it all the more ironic is that the Mac-Blo cancellation was announced by their local manager of "community relations."

B.C. TEL'S Victoria customers will have "line of sight" service to up-Island and Vancouver when new microwave tower and radio complex atop Smith Hill, at end of Summit Street, starts operating early next month. The $1 million tower will carry phone conversations from Victoria and eliminate need for the tower now on top of Blanshard Street B.C. Tel office. Battle Brewing Over Spectrum Auditorium Plan

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Spectrum community school supporters will lock horns with Saanich council to fight for the school auditorium rejected in Saturday's referendum.

At a stormy meeting Wednesday night, parents rejected suggestions of a sit-in at Mayor Ed Lum's office but they will band together under defeated mayoralty candidate Jim Maxwell to get action from council.

The auditorium was rejected 8,978 to 5,855.

The meeting was called by the Greater Victoria school board to discuss changes in school boundaries, but that agenda was quickly rejected by parents who wanted trustees to be aware of the anger and frustration over the "doomed" future of a community school without integral auditorium facilities.

One parent accused the joint school board and municipal planning committee of meeting only three times on the auditorium — "a scarce amount of meetings for a project of this importance."

But Trusteee Daphne Temple said an in-camera meeting between the board and council had been held and "Mayor Lum was very well informed. All the background on this was sent out special delivery for council and we got to the meeting and some of them hadn't read it and some hadn't even brought the material."

"Mr. Lum knows he doesn't have to go to referendum on this and they backed off and put it on the shopping list," she said.

"I suggest we all go up there to the mayor's office and sit there," said on parent.

Maxwell said he fought for the auditorium during the campaign "and I'll still do it.

"It would be a very great pleasure for me to fight municipal hall," he said.

Board chairman Bill Ross added his support for any initiatives by a community organization.

He said the board is in a bind because to receive provincial funding for joint recreational facilities the municipality must initiate the project.

He said, however, that the board would likely be willing to earmark its share of the funds, $165,000 of the $420,000 cost, in the upcoming budget. The community group could use that as a lever to pressure the municipality.

There are several options open to council to fund, at least a good portion of its share, without going to referendum, the meeting was told.

Maxwell said that if council really supported the project, it could have explored use of local improvement measures which would result in residents in the area paying a special tax to fund the facility. Under the Municipal Act a council can raise up to $100,000 without going to referendum leaving $65,000 to be raised by the community, an option the parents were willing to take on.

"It's in the Saanich bailliwick," said school superintendent Jake Longmore. "It's not our prerogative to do Saanich business."

"We've got to lean on Saanich to get this god-damned thing going," said one man. "It can get going and I nominate Mr. Maxwell to lead us."

Spectrum principal Wally Russell said "that auditorium was critical. It would have forced Saanich council to play ball with us in terms of community education programs.

"We have no funding for the auditorium, the municipality is not supporting us," he said, adding cost of custodians to work overtime to keep the school open late in the evening for the community is going to be prohibitive in some cases — "and we feel that our lighted (community) school house is kind of doomed."

Pollen Slams Absent Sam

Mayor Peter Pollen suggested today that Ald. Sam Bawlf resign from city council if his campaigning for the provinical election prevents him from carrying out his aldermanic duties.

In making the comments at this morning's Group A committee meeting, Pollen didn't mention Bawlf by name.

But he was obviously referring to both Bawlf and Ald. Malcolm Anderson, who has attended few city meetings since he switched jobs from stockbroker to radio station salesman a few weeks ago.

One of the committees in Group A is the finance committee, of which Bawlf is chairman, Pollen had to chair the meeting in his absence.

But Anderson fas present as the mayor suggested that council members with higher political aspirations or new occupations should resign from council if they couldn't properly fulfill their civic responsibilities.

"If these people can't come to these meetings because of their new positions I think they should resign," he said.

"Quite frankly I find the demands of this office ... overwhelming, but I still think there should be a basic responsibility to fulfil their elected commitments to the citizenry, and it is quite easy to resign if you can't fulfil them."

After the meeting Pollen and other members of the committee adjourned to the cafeteria for coffee, but Anderson pointedly sat at another table.

Bawlf defeated Pollen Tuesday night for the Social Credit nomination in the two-seat Victoria riding. Insurance executive Ian Rendle is the other Socred candidate.

ARTS GROUPS ECSTATIC OVER B.C. GRANT BOOSTS

Major increases in grants to professional arts organizations in British Columbia from the B.C. Cultural Fund were welcomed today.

"We're elated," said Dennis Killian, Victoria Conservatory of Music administrator, concerning their $31,600 boost over 1974. "It's going to help us tremendously."

The conservatory's $45,000 grant is part of a total $1.5 million announced Wednesday by Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall.

Concerning Bastion Theatre's $72,500 compared to $43,620 in 1974, Helen Simpson-Baikie said: "It's fabulous. We can scarcely believe it."

Other Victoria groups receiving substantial amounts are the Northwest Coast Institute of the Arts which receives $17,250, and Laszlo Gati's Summer Festival, $25,800.

Amity Singers of Victoria will receive $3,000, and in other parts of the island, Nanaimo Symphony will get $3,800 and the Courtenay Youth Music Camp, which is operated from Vancouver, $55,000.

TAX BREAK DENIED RACQUET CLUB

Saanich council decided this week against giving Victoria Racquet Club tax concessions in return for the club's facilities being open to the public at certain times.

"We would be opening up a big can of worms," Mayor Ed Lum said, adding there were other private recreation facilities in Ssanich that would also want tax concessions.

"It's unfortunate, but I agree it is precedent-setting," Ald. Joe Bourque said.

"We did consider buying some of the time available to the municipality for public use but this (the time) is all in the early morning and time we don't want," said Lum.

CBRT in Huff Over Teamster Tenancy

Delegates from the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers Union walked out of the Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday to protest the Teamsters Union's tenancy in the Union Centre on Quadra.

Jack Sullivan, secretary of the CBRT unit at The Empress and an executive member of the labor council, resigned from the council and walked out of the meeting after delegates upheld a ruling that the council had no right to attempt to evict the Teamsters from the co-operatively-owned union centre.

Another CBRT delegate followed Sullivan.

Sullivan had asked the council to write to the Victoria Building Co-op which operates the centre, and ask that the Teamsters be removed from the building.

The Teamsters Union is not affiliated to either the labor council, the B.C. Federation of Labor or the Canadian Labor Congress.

Sullivan said the Teamsters Union has been raiding the CBRT and his union had lost about 2,000 members in B.C.

International Woodworkers of America delegate Jack Groves said the Teamsters Union is not just a tenant in the Union Centre, it is an owner because the building is run as a co-op.

Sullivan said the CBRT is mounting an offensive against the Teamsters over the raiding practices.

The union attempted to have a motion prohibiting any CLC or B.C. Federation of Labor affiliate from assisting the Teamsters put before the B.C. Federation of Labor convention earlier this month, but it was not brought up before the convention ended.

Canadian Union of Postal Workers president Stan Darlington said the council could ill-afford to lose a delegate "with the enthusiasm Brother Sullivan has shown" and said he hoped he would reconsider his decision.

Schibli said he felt every officer of the council shared those sentiments.

In other council business, delegates voted to donate $25 to the B.C. Federation of Labor's political education fund to support the NDP in the Dec. 11 election, but not without a fight.

Several delegates spoke against the contribution to a political party and one delegate slammed out of the meeting saying, "I leave you to your political rally."

Canadian Labor Congress representative Bill Smalley, in Victoria to promote the CLC's fight against the federal wage controls, said he supported the donation to the NDP because "what you win at the bargainig table can be taken away by the stroke of the legislative pen."

"Don't you think that MacMillan Bloedel donates to a political party? Your money is going to a political party through the giant corporations," Smalley said.

The council endorsed Frank Mitchell, NDP candidate in Esquimalt and listened to Gordon Hanson, Victoria NDP candidate who said the party had a fight on its hands and needed labor's help.

Portugal Gov't Goes on Strike

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The Portuguese Government of Prime Minister Pinheiro De Azevedo walked off the job without resigning today in a showdown protest against rising anarchy in the streets of Lisbon. It said it would not return until the military restores law and order.

The Communists and other radical groups responded with calls for a general strike and thousands flocked to the presidential palace to demand the cabinet's replacement with a Soviet-style "peoples government."

Teen-age toughs wandered through the city threatening shopkeepers with violence unless they shut their doors, corrugated iron shutters clanged down in the face of the warnings in some neighborhoods, but business activity in the city centre remained normal.

As the left-wing crowds swelled outside the president's Belem Palace, President Francisco Da Costa Gomes moved his headquarters to the greater security of suburban Sao Joao De Barra fortress where he met with Azevedo, then presided over an emergency meeting of the military's powerful 19-man Revolutionary Council.

The Socialist-dominated cabinet made its unprecedented move to suspend governmental activity in a predawn statement that said the ministers would not return to their offices until Costa Gomes and the military could guarantee their personal safety and authority in the streets.

Politicians said the cabinet's main target was Gen. Otelo Saraiva De Carvalho, Portugal's flamboyant military security chief who has refused demands for his resignation. They said the ministers also wanted the replacement of army chief Gen. Carlos Fabiao.

Argentine CANDU Deal Near

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Wednesday the government has loaned $15 million to Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. to help it honor a contract being renegotiated with Argentina.

"We feel we are very close to a successful conclusion of the safeguards agreement," Gillespie said in a Commons reply to former New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas.

"I would hope that it would be signed before the end of the year."

The loan enables AECL to enter preliminary stages of producing the Argentina reactor.

The 1973 sale agreement did not foresee rising reactor costs which, Douglas said, might mean a loss to Canada of up to $160 million on the sale.

LOAN PROTESTED

Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday protested the B.C. Development Corp.'s granting of a $25,000 loan to Nu-Way Cleaners of Victoria, a non-union firm.

The loan, announced Wednesday morning by provincial Industrial Development Minister Gary Lauk, was to help expand the firm's business.

Council delegates were read a letter from the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union local at Canadian Linen on North Park, the only union industrial cleaning firm in town, saying the employees of Canadian Linen have been asked to forgo a 1976 wage increase, or the owners would close the plant.

The RWDSU members asked that labor council affiliates try to ensure that uniforms they wore on the job came from Canadian Linen, not from the non-union firms which included White Dove, Individual Dry Cleaners, Commercial Linen and Nu-Way.

Delegates voted to write to Lauk and protest the loan to Nu-Way.

Man Shot By Police Hiding In House

LADYSMITH — One of three Ladysmith men who broke into a house on High Street Wednesday night was shot in the leg by police carrying out a stake-out inside the building.

Craig was taken to Ladysmith Hospital, treated and transferred this morning to the police lockup.

Craig, Randy Arvid Wilson, and Bradley David Lockhart all 23, appeared in Ladysmith provincial court today charged with breaking and entering with intent. Other charges are expected to be laid in connection with the incident.

The spokesman said Craig and Lockhart were to have appeared in court today charged with common assault arising out of another incident in Ladysmith earlier Wednesday involving a woman in her eary 20s.

He said two officers went to the woman's house early Wednesday evening in anticipation of someone trying to break into the house.

The officers were hiding in a bedroom when at about 7:55 p.m. one man forced open the back door and two others entered through the unlocked front door.

The lights were on in the house and the woman inside at the time, the spokesman said.

Following the scuffle and shooting, one of the men fled out the front door, got into a car and drove off. He turned himself in to police this morning, the spokesman said.

Chief Justice Nathan Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court said today the special seminar for newly appointed federal judges will be held at Universtiy of Victoria, hosted by the faculty of law March 31-April 2.

The seminar will be sponsored by the Canadian Judicial Council.

Nemetz said some 24 supreme and county court judges from all provinces west of Quebec will likely attend.

Among the instructors will be Chief Justice Willard Estey, of Ontario; associate Chief Justice James Hugessen of Quebec; Chief Justice Cowan of Nova Scotia; Chief Justice Nemetz; Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon, of B.C., Mr. Justice Ruttan, of B.C., and Mr. Donald Thorson, Q.C., deputy minister of justice of B.C.; The Chief Justice of Canada, Hon. Bora Laskin.

Dean Murray Fraser said the newly established faculty of law was honored by the decision to hold the seminar in Victoria.

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto couple was married Saturday, and became the proud parents of triplets 24 horus later.

"What a wedding present," said the bride, Alma Collins, 19. "How can you beat it?"

Hotel Fire Sends Pair To Hospital

Two men were taken to hospital after a fire broke out in a room on the second floor of the Chandler Hotel, 723 Yates, shortly before 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Sanor Borza, 51, and Charles Plumridge, 43, were treated at Victoria General Hospital for smoke inhalation. Plumridge was released and Borza kept overnight for observation.

The fire, which originated in a mattress, was confined to a room occupied by Borza. Plumridge was overcome as he and the hotel manager tried to extinguish the fire.

In Victoria, six CUPW members were on the job Wednesday and today, an increase of two people. The two returned to sorting duties on the afternoon shift Wednesday.

In Canada's main post office, Terminal A in Toronto, 75 CUPW members are abck on the job. The CBC reported earlier that 150 members had broken union ranks to return. The total CUPW membership in Toronto is just less than 5,000

The 18,000 letter carriers across the country, laid off shortly after the inside workers went on strike, will be called in again either later this month or next month for another one-day delivery of federal family allowance cheques.

The Vietoria labor council Wednesday pledged full support for the striking CUPW members and urged all affiliates, about 80 unions in Victoria, to donate to the union's defence fund.

The first payment of strike benefits since the strike began is scheduled for Friday, but it is not known how much the payments will be.

Clare Walsh, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver local of the letter carriers union of Canada, said the carriers there are not happy about the one-day callback.

"This hit-and-miss day of work is bordering on irresponsibility," he said. "About 1,000 of us have already lost 10 days' pay and this move could jeopardize our unemployment insurance for a day's pay.

"It's not what I would call a good move."

In Vancouver, support for a petition demanding that striking postal workers be allowed a secret ballot on the last government wage offer has not grown "as fast as we would have liked," dissident spokeman Bert Watch said Wednesday.

After quickly collecting 70 signatures by Tuesday, Watch said the number had just nudged over the 100 mark, despite widespread publicity and the establishment of three signing locations.

He blamed a threat by union leaders Frank Walden to suspend anyone from the union involved in organizing the petition as one reason for the disappointing response.

Man Guilty On Heroin Charge

Judge William Ostler remanded him to Dec. 3 for sentencing.

Esks' Castoffs In Key Roles

CALGARY (CP) — Imports Dan Kepley and Wayne Matherne, two newcomers on the Edmonton Eskimo defensive team, have much in common as they prepare for Sunday's Grey Cup rematch with Montreal Alouettes.

Kepley will work at the middle linebacker spot he grabbed after an injury to Sam Britts. Matherne will play the inside defensive back position he filled brilliantly during Edmonton's 30-18 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference final last weekend.

Both believed previously this season that they were through with football, at least until 1976, and both needed a stroke of fortune to help them find a place in the lineup.

Matherne failed in a trial as a defensive cornerback when he could not adjust to the outside position and was cut by head coach Ray Jauch, while Kepley, who signed as a free agent, was released by Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League as one of the final Dallas cuts.

After Matherne was chopped, an injury opened a new spot on the Edmonton roster. A telephone call by Jauch found Matherne eating breakfast in Vancouver at the home of British Columbia quarterback Don Moorhead.

Matherne, who attended Louisiana State Univerity, accepted the new Edmonton offer. He returned on short notice but suffered the injury that kept him on the sidelines after that.

Matherne had a deep hamstring pull that responded slowly to treatment. When the leg was ready, so was Jauch, who knew he wanted Matherne in the lineup and who found space on the active list in time for the WFC final.

Matherne helped clinch the victory—Edmonton's third in three years over Saskatchewan in the final—with a 72-yard punt for a touchdown with 2:55 remaining.

"On the other one the ball was underthrown," said Matherne, who arrived here Wednesday night with the Eskimos, who lost 20-7 to Montreal in the 1974 final, and bowed to Ottawa Rough Riders the previous year.

"I would have caught that ball but I lost my balance," said Matherne. "I'm just glad I could jump high enough to catch the last one."

Kepley was approached by Edmonton general manager Norm Kimball after he graduated last season but he had already signed a trial contract with Dallas.

Kepley got a second chance to join the Eskimos after Britts suffered a neck injury. Kepley arrived as the Edmonton defence was at its lowest ebb. Despite some errors, caused by unfamiliarity with the Eskimo defence and rival personnel, he performed well enough to keep the job when Britts became eligible to come off the injured list.

"When I came up here I didn't know the first thing about Canadian football," said Kepley. "Everybody helped me. This is a great bunch of guys. They knew I was working hard to catch on and they showed confidence in me.

"I'm just glad I've got a chance to play."

The Grey Cup Story Of 'Cool-Hand Luke'

The annual Grey Cup game for the football championship of Canada will be contested in Calgary on Sunday afternoon and I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to give you some of the news reports in advance and then provide the name of the winning team. A pre-game bonus, so to speak.

Naturally, the big story is the day-by-day condition of Bruce Lemmerman. He is the Edmonton quarterback. He has a circulatory ailment in his throwing arm and, as a result, has a problem keeping his pitching hand warm. The question is: can this modern-day "cool-hand Luke" survive the weather and a shoot-out against the Eastern invaders, the Montreal Alouettes?

This is vital to the Eskimo cause. For if they don't get the heat to Lemmerman before the Alouettes put it on him, the Eskimo game-plan could go straight up the blower. Lemmerman is the new darling of the Edmonton fans and coach Ray Jauch, and was the hero of the 30-18 victory over Saskatchewan in the Western final, coming on in relief of Tom Wilkinson.

Jauch will be asked this week: "Will Lemmerman dress?" He will answer: "Lemmerman will dress and he will play even if we have to provide electric mittens to keep his pinkies warm."

Then someone will recall that Edmonton had a similar quarterbacking problem last year, or have you forgotten so quickly? It was just one year ago that Wilkinson, pot belly, cigar, et al, was being feted at the annual Schenley awards as the best player in Canada and there was some question then if he would play. Jauch answered that one: "He'll dress and he'll play. He just pulled some fat in his back."

So coaches are entitled to their funnies.

Otherwise, each coach in turn, Jauch and Marv Levy of the Alouettes will be featured on national TV in the coaches' pre-game media conference where they will reveal all. In fact nothing.

Each will say he respects the other; is aware the opposing team wouldn't be there unless it was extremely capable; admits he fears the place-kicking abilities of Dave Cutler of the Esks and Don Sweet of the Als; fears the breakaway talents of such players as Larry Highbaugh of Edmonton and Johnny Rodgers of Montreal; hopes the field remains dry, and will suggest that it should be an evenly-played contest and the team that gets the breaks, or makes the breaks, will probably win. The clubs are that even.

Someone is certain to ask Levy about Rodgers' charge in a magazine article that Alouette quarterback Sonny Wade is a white southerner and that's why he won't throw to him.

Levy will field this one neatly and bring out statistics refuting the charge and pointing up in particular that Wade threw to Rodgers twice for touchdowns in the Als' 35-12 victory over Hamilton in Eastern semi-final. Wade will be asked a similar question. He'll suggest it isn't true, noting that Jimmy Jones, the other Montreal quarterback, goes to Rodgers more often that he does because he throws the deep pattern oftener and that's where Rodgers is.

Then, of course, will come the day of the big game. And with it, the weather. What will it be like and whom will it favor? Who Knows?

Still, it shouldn't matter at this late stage, even though the Alouettes will likely be three to four-point favorites. The eastern team always is, for some reason, mainly because that's where most of the money is.

Which brings up the original question. What about "cool-hand-Luke"? Will Lemmerman be able to warm to his task and exhibit the hot hand he showed against Saskatchewan before he meets up with the vaunted pigpen patrol of the Alouettes? That's the Montreal front four, the same crowd that put Wilkinson out of last year's game, remember?

The betting here is that he will; and also that Cutler, who never even got a chance to kick a field goal last year, will boot a couple early this time; and, that even if Lemmerman does happen to get caught in a deep-freeze, there will always be a Wilkinson to take over and get the job done.

He can be a cool customer if need be. Edmonton by four, 26 - 22.

Braves Win, Demons Lose

Belmont Braves won and Dunsmuir Demons lost during pre-season exhibiton high school boys' basketball games Wednesday.

Bruce Robertson and Darrell Johnson fired 18 points each to lead Braves to an 83-60 victory over visiting Nanaimo Hubsters while Demons began a road trip to the interior with a 59-55 loss to Hope.

Skinny Denny Loves Labor

By The Canadian Press

Denis Herron is thriving on hard work.

Wednesday was a busy night for the Kansas City goalie and he responded to the challenge by kicking out 42 shots to enable the Scouts to upset New York Rangers 6-4 in a National Hockey League game.

Playing goal behind an often porous defence can be a physically taxing occupation, but the 23-year-old native of Chambly, Que., has been gaining weight since he joined the Scouts last year.

Still a skinny 150 pounds, Herron has used a special training regimen and a diet loaded with milkshakes to build himself up from the 139 pounds he weighed when he turned professional three years ago.

"The extra weight makes me feel stronger," he says.

Kansas City coach Bep Guidolin says Herron has been playing well all along.

"When he came here he knew he was going to see a lot of shots," he says. "He knows that someday we'll protect him like we should."

In Wednesday's other NHL games, Vancouver Canucks defeated Washington Capitals 6-2, Chicago Black Hawks stopped Los Angeles Kings 4-2, Detroit Red Wings tied Boston Bruins 3-3 and Montreal Canadiens blanked Minnesota North Stars 6-0.

A Ranger defence that frequently found itself out of position left Ranger goalie Dunc Wilson over and over again. Wilson didn't deny he had been let down by his defence.

"They must have had 20 good shots," he said. "Things like that shouldn't happen."

Ed Gilbert and Dennis Patterson netted two goals apiece for the light-scoring Scouts, who entered the contest with a four-game winless streak and just 30 goals in their first 16 games this season.

A Landover, Md., crowd of 6,298 saw Rick Blight, Gerry O'Flaherty, John Gould, Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Ververgaert score a goal each for the Canucks.

Dennis Hull and Darcy Rota scored goals for Chicago 16 seconds apart in the final period, snapping a 2-2 tie and helping the Black Hawks stretch their unbeaten string to 10 games.

Hull's goal at 2:17 of the third period, his second of the night, beat Gary Edwards on a five-foot rebound as the Kings' goalie was on the ice. Rota added an insurance tally for Chicago at 2:33 on a breakaway to score his sixth goal of the season.

The goaltending of Ed Giacomin, who made 28 saves, helped the Wings move into a tie with Pittsurgh Penguins for third place in the Norris Division.

A goal by Mickey Redmond with 10 seconds on the clock gave Detroit its tie.

Yvan Cournoyer scored the first of six third-period goals for the Canadiens, breaking up a goaltenders' duel between Ken Dryden of Montreal and Pete LoPresti of the North Stars.

Steve Shutt added two goals and Guy Lapointe, Guy Lafleur and Doug Risebrough one each for the Canadiens, who had a 43-17 edge in shots.

Jon Smith leads pack from start of race

Debbie, Jon Lead Way

Jon Smith of Oak Bay captured the boys' title, Debbie Scott of Claremont collected the girls' crown and Esquimalt swept team honors in both divisions Wednesday during the Vancouver Island high school cross-country championships at Royal Roads Military College.

Both Smith and Miss Scott recently won individual honors in the Greater Victoria league.

In the boys' team competition, Esquimalt finished a mere five points ahead of Claremont and 13 ahead of defending champion Mt. Douglas under the reverse scoring system.

Esquimalt easily retained the girls' team championship with 29 points, 39 less than runner-up Belmont. Sharon Doherty led Esquimalt with a second-place finish, only 14 seconds behind Miss Scott. Cheryl Matthews, Carole Pickard and Rebecca Staples supplied the remaining Esquimalt points with third, fourth and eighth-place finishes.

The top 10 finishers in the individual events and the first four in the team events also qualified for the B.C. championships scheduled for Nov. 29 in Nelson.

One for the Book

By The Canadian Press

Jack Carlson set a new World Hockey Association standard for truculence Wednesday night.

The 21-year-old native of Virginia, Minn., became the first player ever to draw four major penalties in a single game, upstaging Cleveland Crusaders, who beat the Saints 4-3.

Because a third major leads to an automatic game misconduct, a player can accumulate four majors in a game only by drawing a double major after he has already accumulated two majors in the game.

Carlson began by drawing majors for high-sticking and fighting in the first period, then drew majors for slashing and fighting in a second-period brawl that also led to the exclusion of Cleveland's Paul Baxter.

In Wednesday's only other game, Indianapolis Racers downed New England Whalers, 3-1.

NEW ENGLAND (1): Wayne Carleton (8th). INDIANAPOLIS (3): Reg Thomas (9th), Brian Coates (6th), Nick Harbaruk (7th). Attendance: 7135.

Character Alouette Strong Point

CALGARY (CP) — Character has played a large role in the success of Montreal Alouettes, says centre Wayne Conrad.

"I personally think it is the character of this team that's important," Conrad said after the Alouettes' workout Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's Grey Cup final against Edmonton Eskimos in Canadian Football League action.

"I don't think it's the defensive line or the defensive backfield or the offensive backfield," he said. "The team as a whole has so much character. When you have character you have a chance."

"What I mean by character is when you're playing as a team and things . . . are not going well we stick together and that's what I call character.

"We don't have any of this dissension stuff," Conrad added.

Conrad said another key factor with the Alouettes is their backup personnel.

"I don't think its unfair to make a comparison between this year's team and last year's. We have had injuries to guys like Chuck Zapiec and Dave Braggins. Of course this is a tremendous loss.

"Frank Pomarico is filling in Braggins' spot. We have tremendous backup talent on the Montreal Alouettes. I said our strong point was character, which it is, but one of our strong points is our backup personnel. We have a lot of guys that could start on any team in the CFL."

Conrad said the Eskimos have a "fine football club."

"They have Tom Wilkinson, Bruce Lemmerman and of course George McGown. Should I go on? They have great defence with people like Tom Laputka, Dave Fennell and they've added a new linebacker, Dan Kapley. I haven't played against him but I watched him against Regina and he was superb. I'm preparing for playing against him now."

Conrad and teammate Steve Ferrughelli went horseback riding prior to Wednesday's workout because of a promise Conrad made prior to the Alouettes 20-10 win over Ottawa Roughriders last Saturday in the Eastern Football Conference final.

"The reason I rode was that I made a statement in Ottawa that I would ride a horse in Calgary. I said I would show them what the Grey Cup festivities in Calgary were really going to be like," said Conrad.

The Alouettes have been rated as underdogs for Sunday's game against the Eskimos, who defeated Montreal 31-29 in a regular season clash.

"In 1974 we were underdogs and we won the Grey Cup," Conrad said.

"If omens are omens we will be Grey Cup champions again."

Conrad played for Victoria Steelers in 1967.

Meanwhile, coach Marv Levy said it appears Pomarico will start in Braggins' right offensive guard slot in Sunday's game. Braggins suffered a fractured jaw in the eastern final against Ottawa and the top offensive lineman in the East was put on the Montreal injury list Monday.

Defensive half Phil Price is still being bothered by a sore ankle and Levy hopes he will be able to resume full workouts with the club today.
